INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The College of Law of the University of Kentucky was organized under the provisions of an act of the Legislature passed in 1908, and was opened for the admission of students in September of that year.

After the expiration of the first year, the course of study was so amended as to meet the requirements of the Association of American Law Schools; application for admission to membership in that association was made, and soon thereafter granted. Other improvements are constantly being made in order to keep pace with the most approved law schools of the country.

Our country is experiencing remarkable growth and development. The requirements for a successful career in all lines of business and in all professions, necessitate the laying of a broader foundation before encountering these greatly changed conditions. The design of this college is to teach the student the fundamental principles of English and American law, and to so extend the course of study as to fit him for the bar in any state. The course offered is thorough and comprehensive, giving such training as will prepare him for usefulness as a citizen, and success as a practitioner. The instruction will not be limited to persons who may choose the law as a profession, but will be given also to students who may elect to take the whole or a limited course, which will be found useful in the pursuit of some other business or occupation. A good knowledge of the law is now being generally recognized as necessary and fundamental in making up a well-rounded preparation for a business life. Besides this, the study of the law as now taught with its collateral work, is an important part of a liberal education.

ADMISSION

In addition to satisfying the general requirements for admission to the University the applicant must offer one year of college work other than law. (Thirty semester credits exclusive of gymnasium and drill.)

SPECIAL STUDENTS

Persons may be admitted as special students under the following conditions: a. They must be prepared to do the work desired, and give good reasons for not taking the regular course; b. They must be at least twenty-one years of age.

LAW REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

The prescribed law work for the first and second years and twenty-four credits for the third year including the subjects of Property 5, Conflict of Laws and Court Practice are required for graduation.

A total of 106 credits must be attained for graduation of which 30 must be secured in another college than the College of Law.
ADVANCED STANDING

Applicants for admission for advanced standing in law for work done in approved law schools must present to the Registrar satisfactory certificates issued by the law school in which the work was done. Such applicants may then be granted any advanced credits in law to which they are entitled. By examination advanced credit may be given to those who have engaged in the practice of law in this state, or have been admitted to the bar in this state since May, 1918. In no event will credit be given for more than two years of law work done outside of this college.

Students who have read law under the supervision of a lawyer in active practice in this state may upon examination receive advanced credits not to exceed one year. Any applicant seeking advanced standing under any one of the above provisions must be able to meet the entrance requirements.

COMBINED ARTS-LAW COURSE

Students in the College of Arts and Sciences may take during their senior year the first year law course and upon the completion of the same will be granted the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Upon completing the two remaining years in law, such students will be granted the degree of Bachelor of Laws, thus obtaining both degrees in six years.

INSTRUCTION

METHOD OF INSTRUCTION

The case method of instruction has been adopted, and the students are required to carefully brief the cases as assigned and report them in class recitations. No student will be eligible for final examination for credit in any subject until he presents his notebook containing the brief of each case assigned in the subject. Special lectures will be delivered from time to time by persons specially qualified in the topics they will discuss.

COURT PRACTICE

The training given in a law school is not complete unless the student acquires a knowledge of actual practice. This is obtained by the introduction of the practice court, which is presided over by one of the professors, and this work is required of all students in their senior year. A room is especially equipped for this work, with all the furnishings usually found in a well regulated courtroom. The court will be provided with a full corps of officers made up of the students, each of whom will alternate in official service until each member of the class has had sufficient practice to become familiar with the duties of each office.
Students will be required first to acquaint themselves with the various courts, their jurisdiction, original, concurrent and appellate. They will then be required to carry many default cases in common law and in equity, from the filing of the original papers to the conclusion. Each student will be required to write out and explain all steps possible to be taken in each case, including the duties to be performed by the various officers of the court. In this connection they will be taught the actual use of the practice code of this and other states, as well as the application of the common law procedure.

Many cases will be prepared setting forth facts upon which issues will be joined. For the purposes of this work, court will be opened in regular order, and in the contests in making issues, the practice of handling pleadings, demurrers, motions and all other steps of every kind will be experienced.

Contested equity cases will be made upon given statements of facts, students will be assigned as attorneys on each side of the cases, others students will act as special judges of the court. In each case, the attorneys will be required to look up the law thoroughly, debate their cases before the special judges, and file briefs with the same. The court will deliver written opinions. Students will alternate in this kind of service.

Actual controversies will be arranged and assigned for trial on issues of fact before regularly impaneled juries made up of students, when witnesses will be examined, depositions and other evidence heard, juries instructed upon the law of the case, arguments made before the court and jury, and all other incidents of a contested trial will be had. Some of these cases will be prosecuted to the Court of Appeals.

Students will at intervals attend the courts of Fayette county, which are in continuous session, and attend also the sessions of the Federal District Court held here.

Experience gathered in these courts and in the practice court of the college gives excellent training in the work of actual practice.

Students who may desire to spend some part of their spare time in the office of a practicing attorney, in order to gain some acquaintance with the office work and the manner of handling business by the active practitioner, will have this opportunity offered them.

Privileges and Library

Students of the College of Law will be admitted to all the privileges of the literary societies, gymnasium and University library, upon equal terms with other students of the University. They may also attend any of the classes or lectures in other departments of the University without extra charge. A law library containing 11,000 volumes of carefully selected law books has been accumulated and placed in the library rooms of the College of Law, and is open daily. for the free use of students. This library embraces the entire National Reporter system, and the separate volumes of the reports of all but six of the states from the beginning up to the publication of that system. The Supreme Court reports and all other Federal Court reports are complete. There is a complete set of all reported English cases from 1650 to the present time; Trinity System, Halsbury's Laws of England, CYC., L. R. A., Corpus Juris, encyclopedias, and many other valuable sets of law books, including a collection of the best text books. All of the best publications of law books being issued are obtained for this library.

HENRY CLAY LAW SOCIETY

The Henry Clay Law Society is an organization composed of the law students, which convenes once each week in a hall provided for its use. In this society the students by study and actual practice learn the rules of parliamentary law and their use in deliberative assemblies. They organize legislative assemblies and learn the procedure in the framing and passage of bills, both state and federal. Subjects of a public nature are discussed in order to familiarize the students with the affairs of the country which will confront them in their experience as citizens and professional men.

EXAMINATIONS

Examinations will be conducted at intervals in each class as may be determined by the respective instructors to enable them to understand the character of work being done. At the end of the semester written examinations will be held, and only students who have briefed each case assigned them in class will be eligible for examination so as to receive credit for the subject.

Expenses

Each student will be charged an incidental fee of $21.00, and a student's activity fee of $5.00 each semester. The books for the required work can be secured at a reduced price and will cost about $25.00 a year. ### Collateral Reading Course

Students in law are urged to pursue a course of reading under the supervision of the law faculty while they are in the University. This course is not required, but those who may take some part of it will find it of great value, adding much to the accomplishments of the young lawyer, and it should go with the knowledge of the law. The books will be supplied from the law library, and will include any part of the following: History of English Bench and Bar; Pollock and Maitland, History of English Law; Warren, History of American Bar; Bryce, Studies in History and Jurisprudence; Gest, The Lawyer in Literature; Dillon, Laws and Jurisprudence of England and America; Holmes, The Common Law; Pound, Readings on the History and System of the Common Law; White, The Law in Shakespeare; Train, The Prisoner at the Bar. Legal masterpieces: Eminent Lawyers; Holland Law; Campbell, Lives of the Chancellors; Maine, Ancient Law; Stowell, International Law; Blackstone, Commentaries; Reed, Conduct of a Lawsuit; Davis, Letters to a Young Lawyer; Sources of English Law.
The Kentucky Law Journal is a publication issued bi-monthly during the college year by the College of Law, and has for its chief purpose the dissemination of legal literature among law students and members of the Bench and Bar of the state. It contains contributions from leading law teachers and members of the bar both in and outside the state. This journal has been made the official organ of the Kentucky Bar Association and is sent free of charge to the members of that association.

Admission to the Bar

Admission to the bar in this state is regulated by statute which requires the Court of Appeals of Kentucky to make and adopt rules and regulations fixing the moral qualifications, standards of acquirement, both academic and legal, to entitle applicants to admission. Under the present rules, one committee hearing proof passes upon the moral character and fitness of applicants; their report, if favorable, may be rejected by either the Court or the Board of Examiners. If the report is accepted and the applicant has studied law for a period of at least two years in a law school or law office, he will be examined by the Board of Examiners on his knowledge of the law and their report will be made to the Court, and license granted if the report is favorable. Examinations will be in writing and be held three times a year.
