The personal and professional papers of former U.S. Supreme Court Justice Stanley F. Reed, a native of Mason County were dedicated October 15 at a ceremony held at the College of Law.

Nearly 400 boxes of Reed's papers were donated to the University in late 1977. The papers have now been sorted and catalogued and are ready to be used for research. The Justice's personal library also was recently contributed to the University and will be housed in the Evans Law Library.

Justice Reed, who died in 1980 at age 95, was appointed to the Supreme Court by President Franklin Roosevelt in 1938. He resigned from the post in 1957, and served as special judge in the U.S. Court of Claims and the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

A native of Minerva, Kentucky, Reed received a bachelor's degree from Kentucky Wesleyan College, then in Winchester, and a graduate degree from Yale University. He attended the law schools of the University of Virginia, Columbia University and the Sorbonne.
Many changes are occurring within the Law school and every effort is being made to report on these changes. There are, however, a great many other developments, both within and without the Law school, that are of interest to alumni, friends, faculty and students. Readers are therefore encouraged to submit items of general interest, of either news or commentary value, for publication.
Securing and Retaining Excellent Personnel Is Internal Problem

As I write for this issue of the Review, my sixth and last year as Dean of the College of Law is a few days short of being half-finished. It is therefore premature to pen the typical, final dean's report to the Alumni on “What I Believe We Have Accomplished And Where I Hope We Are Going.”

Because the writing of that piece for the next issue of the Review may require a few more words than my usual reports, I have struck a deal with our Editor, Carroll Stevens, to receive a bit more space in the next issue in return for using very little space in this one.

I want to focus on one problem: securing and then retaining excellent faculty and administrative personnel. In my judgment this is the most critical internal problem a law school must solve if it has any aspirations to become and remain an outstanding law school.

(I exclude the dean's position from those under discussion. The Association of American Law Schools noted recently that dean cycles across the country are now running four to five years. By law school standards my six years will constitute a quite substantial term. In present times there are many reasons why law school deanships are not and should not be approached as career positions. None of the available reasons suggest to me that four years are enough, in normal circumstances and where a dean comes from outside the school. But almost all the reasons strongly suggest to me that six years are enough for most persons to give the best of whatever they may have to offer as law deans.)

Overall, we have been fortunate through the years in the quality of people we have been able to attract to the College of Law. But the greater an institution's success in hiring exceptionally strong people the greater will be the challenge to keep them. Opportunities inevitably come the way of high quality J.D.'s, whether those opportunities are to teach at other schools, to practice in private, corporate or government "firms," or something else. In every year that I have been here one or more members of our faculty or administration have had occasion to consider career opportunities outside this law school.

Six years ago we invited Associate Deans Paul Van Booven and Carroll Stevens to join the law school administration. You know as well as I that good recruitment requires some luck, and I certainly believe we were quite lucky to obtain the services of these two young men. Each one provides his own blend of talent, enthusiasm and hard work. Both have made extraordinary contributions to the College and to those who study and work here. I believe their retention by the College is a matter of the utmost importance.

New Lafferty Society and University Fellow L. L. Leatherman '53, shown here with Dean Lewis, was one of seven new inductees honored at a November 20 black tie affair at the Hyatt Regency-Lexington sponsored by Barnett & Alagia. Leatherman is president ('81-'82) of the College of Law Alumni Association.

Presently we have two faculty members on leave, pursuing other opportunities. Rutheford "Biff" Campbell, who joined the law faculty in 1973, is practicing with Stoll, Keenon and Park here in Lexington. John Garvey, who joined us in 1976, has just taken a leave to serve in the United States Solicitor General's Office. In any such leave of absence situation we risk the permanent loss of the individual.

We have not given up on Biff; and we are hopeful that John Garvey will return after a two-year stint. I refer to these individuals principally to illustrate the ever-present competition for people the law school faces.

The two most important internal factors in our efforts to compile more "wins" than "losses" against the competition are our reward systems and our working environment in the College. You have heard me talk about salaries enough to know of their general importance. I should tell you, however, that because of gradual but steady changes in University salary administration policies, the salary problem for persons in administrative lines (again I exclude the Dean's position) has become even tougher to solve than for persons in teaching lines.

Creating and maintaining the environment necessary to attract and keep the best people in associate dean and faculty positions is a delicate task, and one that must be shared by the various constituencies of a law school. I am not referring simply to a friendly, pleasant atmosphere. That is one ingredient, but a lively, challenging atmosphere is equally important. In my judgment, a proper environment requires: students who by their performance challenge their teachers; teachers who are committed to and work hard for the school and its students, who can gain the respect of their colleagues and who show a proper respect in return; and a well-administered program and physical facility.

Administrators such as Paul Van Booven and Carroll Stevens and professors such as Biff Campbell and John Garvey exemplify the types of people who contribute substantially to a highly attractive working environment. That is why we should do all we can to keep such people in the first place and to get them back if they depart.

As for salaries, a principal purpose of the Law Alumni Professorships—funded with your money—is to provide modest but marginally important help where it is needed most in our effort to be reasonably competitive. We may have to invent a similar concept for administrators. The concept did not keep John Garvey from accepting his new post. But fortunately, positions in the Solicitor General's Office, as law dean positions, generally are not approached as career positions.

So far the College of Law Fund has been most important for the extra support it has provided for student activities and scholarships, faculty research, very limited but essential travel, and library supplementation. But a quasi-endowment has gradually been built through your gifts to support Law Alumni Professorships. This small endowment will need to be enlarged in the future, year-by-year. For during the last six years I have become more convinced than ever that it is only with the help of its Alumni that any law school can achieve the financial edge that is one building block of greatness.

In the next issue of the Review I will describe another building block—the non-financial involvement of our Alumni in the life of the College.

Dean Gives Resignation To Resume Teaching

Dean Thomas P. Lewis has announced his intention to return to full-time teaching and research effective July 1, 1982. A native of Ashland, Kentucky and a graduate of the UK College of Law, Class of 1954, Dean Lewis has headed the law school faculty since July 1, 1976. Before coming back to the Kentucky faculty to assume the deanship, he taught at the University of Minnesota and Boston University Law Schools, in the constitutional law, social legislation and labor law areas.

Dr. Otis Singletary, University president, noted that Dean Lewis had discussed with him "well over a year ago" his interest in returning to teaching as soon as possible. At Dr. Singletary's request, however, Dean Lewis at that time agreed to remain in the leadership position through the current school year.

Dr. Singletary noted that he accepted Lewis' resignation "with deep regret," and added: "Dean Lewis has exerted a very positive influence during his tenure as dean. I am especially appreciative of his strong administrative leadership and for the ties he has developed between the college and the legal community in the state. As dean, he will be sorely missed."

Dean Lewis' accomplishments and a special tribute to him will be published in the next edition of The Review, the Annual Report issue.

The search committee appointed by President Singletary includes Alumni Professor W. L. Matthews, Jr., Professor John M. Rogers; Bert T. Combs '37; Dr. Bradley Cannon, the Graduate School's associate dean for research; Professor Robert G. Schwemm; and Charles E. English, Jr. '83, student representative. Paul A. Willis, '69, director of University libraries, chairs the group. Its formal activities began with an early December meeting with the college faculty, continued on January 30 with a joint meeting with the Law Alumni Association board of directors.

REED PAPERS DEDICATED

After practicing law in Maysville from 1910 to 1928 and serving two terms in the Kentucky House of Representatives from 1912 to 1916, Reed became general counsel to the Federal Farm Board. From 1932 to 1935, he was general counsel to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and was Solicitor General of the United States from 1935 to 1938.

Speakers at the dedication ceremony included Dean Thomas P. Lewis; Gordon Davidson, a former Reed law clerk who now practices in Louisville; Roderick M. Hills, also a former Reed clerk, who is a past co-chair of the College of Law Visiting Committee; Director of University Libraries Paul A. Willis ’69; William Cooper, modern political manuscripts coordinator at UK’s Margaret I. King Library.

Professor Paul A. Freund of the Harvard Law School delivered the principal address of the occasion.
D. Cawood Smith '50, Harlan, was awarded the Doctor of Laws Degree by Union College at its summer commencement held Saturday, August 8, 1981, in Barbourville, Kentucky. Class of '51 Celebrates 30th

Members of the Class of 1951 gathered in Lexington October 31 to commemorate the 30th anniversary of their graduation from law school. Toasted as the class member who had traveled the farthest to attend was Sam Hill, Ft. Lauderdale, Florida.

Members of the class began their weekend-long celebration with an afternoon at the Keeneland Race Course and a buffet luncheon in the Lexington Room. The movable feast next convened at the Lexington Country Club for an elegant soiree as guests of Kentucky Supreme Court Justice Robert Stephens. After attending the University's Homecoming football game on Saturday evening, the group convened for a wind-up cocktail party which was held at the Lexington Marriott Resort.

In attendance were Everett Burton, Jr., Portsmouth, Ohio; Judge John Diskin, Newport, Kentucky; Tom Givhan, Shepherdsville, Betty Spragens Griffin, Lexington; Harry T. Herdman, Portsmouth, Ohio; Sam Hill, Ft. Lauderdale, Florida; William Murphy Howard, Harlan; Herbert Liebman, class chairman, Frankfort; Jim Marcum, Ashland; Ted Marye, Jr., Mt. Sterling; Arloe W. Mayne, Ashland; George Chad Perry, III, Paintsville; Bob Ruberg, Covington; Justice Robert Stephens, Lexington; John Sublett, Tulsa, Oklahoma; and William Deep, Henderson.

James Richardson Dies

Professor of Law Emeritus James R. Richardson, '34, age 70, passed away in Lexington January 2, following a long illness.

Professor Richardson joined the UK College of Law faculty in 1937 as a visiting professor and at the end of that academic year accepted a permanent appointment. He retired in 1974 and was awarded the UK Alumni Association's Great Teacher Award in that year.

He was a member of Delta Theta Phi Legal Fraternity and the Order of the Coif. His undergraduate degree was from Eastern Kentucky University and his graduate law degree from Yale University, where he was a Sturgis Fellow.

Professor Richardson was associated with the law firm of Fowler, Rouse, Measle & Bell (now Fowler, Measle & Bell). He served as legal counsel to the University of Kentucky Medical Center from 1965 to 1969 and was a member of several gubernatorial, legislative and civic committees. He was the author of 18 books, 16 of which were in the field of procedure.

Professor Richardson is survived by his wife, Elizabeth Garvin Richardson, a son, Jerry R. Richardson and a sister, Mrs. A. B. Moore of High Springs, Florida. A fund has been established at the law school to the memory of Professor Richardson by a gift from Dr. Arnold C. Williams '75. Gifts may be directed to the Dean's office or to the University Gift Receiving Office.

Fund Contributions Above Average

At press time, January 16, College of Law Fund Chairman Joe B. Campbell of Bowling Green, who is concluding a two-year stint in that capacity, expressed strong optimism about the success of the 1981 Fund.

“In several categories, we seem to be well ahead of where we were this time last year,” said Campbell. “The number and average amount of gifts are up. We're crossing our fingers as to the final total. Obviously, we were helped along greatly in 1980 by large endowment gifts from Judge Harris Howard, his brother J. Woodford Howard, and Professor Roy B. Bay.

“This year we have been honored by a $10,000 gift from Larry Leatherman, president of the Law Alumni Association and managing partner of Greenebaum, Doll & McDonald in Louisville. Professor Woodford Howard has generously added $5,000 to the endowment of the J. Woodford and Florence Stephens Howard Scholarship, and several key alumni, mostly Lafferty Fellows, have participated at the $1,000 level or above,” continued the chairman.

Several new designated giving opportunities have been added to the College of Law Fund this year. Donors may now designate specific support for the Kentucky Law Journal, the Moot Court Program, and certain other student activities. A new scholarship fund has been instituted honoring Mary Dunne, a long-time college administrative assistant who passed away in the summer of 1981.

Other memorial funds, created near the campaign’s end, will be formally announced in spring, 1982. They include a fund in honor of Professor Emeritus James R. Richardson, who passed away in early January, and Judge Amos H. Eblen, a former member of the faculty who died last year.

A couple of new solicitation “twists” will be undertaken in January and February. Local phonathons are expected to be organized in Jefferson County, Fayette County and Northern Kentucky. Alumni living outside those areas will receive a unique giving check list which will itemize 26 different specific needs for which gifts may be designated.

Membership in the Lafferty Society has continued to grow apace throughout 1981. Several new Fellows were inducted at the University’s banquet held November 20th in Lexington. The total of gifts and pledges from Lafferty Society Fellows now approaches the three-quarter million dollar mark.

MR. GARVEY GOES TO WASHINGTON

Law Alumni Professor of the Law John H. Garvey began a leave of absence in January, 1982 to become an assistant solicitor general for the U.S. Justice Department in Washington.

Professor Garvey, 33, will be among 20 lawyers arguing the government’s cases before the Supreme Court. He expects to be in the position for about 2 years.

“This is a real feather in Professor Garvey’s cap,” Solicitor General Rex Lee said in Washington. “It’s an excellent kind of legal experience. It will help him as a teacher and as a scholar.”

Dean Thomas P. Lewis called Professor Garvey’s job offer “a unique opportunity.” Dr. Art Gallaher, vice-president of Academic Affairs, acknowledging Garvey’s value to the college, said, “It’s an excellent opportunity. He’ll be sorely missed. He’s a first-rate scholar and a first-rate teacher.”
University of Florida Law Professor Michael J. Moorhead spoke to BALSA and minority pre-law students at a conference held in early November on campus. John C. Merchant '82, center and Jeff Alston '83, right, current BALSA president, shared the head table.

Rehnquist Delivers Lecture

Dean Thomas P. Lewis announced in early January that United States Supreme Court Justice William H. Rehnquist has accepted an invitation to deliver the 1982 Judge Mac Swinford Lecture. It is expected that the address will be scheduled for mid-September, just preceding the beginning of the Supreme Court’s term. Formal announcements and invitations will be distributed to all UK College of Law alumni and members of the Kentucky Bar Association in mid-summer.

The Judge Mac Swinford Lecture series is co-sponsored by the University of Kentucky and the Kentucky Bar Association, to honor the late Mac Swinford, United States District Court Judge for the Eastern District of Kentucky. The series was begun in 1977.

Moot Court, Kentucky Law Journal Officers Named

Kendrick Riggs of Louisville has been selected president of the 1981-82 Moot Court Board; Linda McCubbin, Bowling Green, Kentucky, is vice-president. Jody Curry is secretary-treasurer; and the Ethics Committee is composed of Steven Lee, Becky Combs, Josh Pons and Joe Owmby.

The new Moot Court Board will include Kathleen Binder, Rudy Bisciotti (Best Oral Argument), Diane Blandford, Carolyn Jean Boswell (Best Brief, Outstanding Advocate winner), Vicki L. Brooks, Kathy Curtis, Robert Duncan, Denis Fleming, Rick Griffith, Charles Haines, Michael Head, Mark Hinkel, Charles Kuster, James Litsey, Bernard Lovely, Wesley Loy, Joe Phillips, Stephen Porter, Mark Riddle, Brian Rieger, Joseph Rosenbaum, Neil Roth, Richard Wehrle, and William Wetterer.

PRISON GRANT RENEWED

A U.S. Department of Justice, Bureau of Prisons Grant to support a legal internship clinic at the Federal Correctional Institute-Lexington has been awarded to the College of Law for the fifth consecutive year.

The grant, administered in past years by Professors Robert Schwemm and William Fortune, is now being overseen by Associate Dean Carroll Stevens. It provides for the employment of an administrative intern, a law student who acts as "personnel director" for the program, and as many as four part-time upper-class student lawyers.

The program is fairly unique within the federal prison system, and is regarded by both regional Bureau of Prisons officials and Federal Correctional Institute administrators as an economic way to handle referrals and provide basic legal services to the inmate population.

NOTES ON FORMER FACULTY MEMBERS

KENNETH GUIDO recently resigned from the position of general counsel to Common Cause to enter private law practice in Washington D.C.

ROBERT SEDLER, now Professor of Law at Wayne State University in Detroit, Michigan, was featured on the PBS show "Firing Line", hosted by William F. Buckley. The show was aired in Central Kentucky December 5. Governor John Y. Brown, Jr. '61 was Buckley's guest on the segment carried by KET on December 12.

ADMINISTRATION

Thomas P. Lewis, Dean, College of Law. Dean Lewis is a native of Ashland, Kentucky, a graduate of the University of Kentucky's College of Arts and Sciences (A.B., History, 1957), its College of Law (LL.B., 1954) and the Harvard Law School (J.D., 1964). While a student at Kentucky, he was named Editor-in-Chief of the Kentucky Law Journal and was elected to the Order of the Coif. He served as a member of the college's faculty from 1957 to 1965 and returned as Dean for the period 1976-82. During the interim he held faculty appointments at the law schools of the University of Minnesota and Boston University and visiting professorships at the University of Chicago and the University of Washington.

Dean Lewis' teaching areas are Constitutional Law, Labor Law and Federal Courts. He is an active labor arbitrator and a member of the National Academy of Labor Arbitrators. His book, Social Welfare and the Individual (with Levy and Martin), was published by Foundation Press in 1971.

He and his wife, Nancy, have four children.

Paul C. Van Booven, Associate Dean. Paul Van Booven has served on the administrative staff since his graduation from the College of Law in 1976. His undergraduate degree (in Economics) is from Indiana's DePauw University, where he was a Rector Scholar. He was a member of the Kentucky Law Journal staff during his law student days, and served as its Managing Editor in 1974-75.

Dean Van Booven oversees many internal administrative areas including admissions and academic counseling. He serves as the Dean's deputy in matters relating to the curriculum and scheduling. In addition, he oversees the college's legal writing and tutorial assistance programs and periodically teaches Professional Responsibility.

He serves on the Board of Directors of the DePauw University Alumni Association, the Kentucky Bar Association Ethics Committee and the Law School Admissions Council, Services Committee.

Carroll D. Stevens, Associate Dean. A member of the college's administrative staff since 1976, Stevens is a native of Owensboro and a graduate of Georgetown College (B.A., 1971, Communication Arts). While pursuing his law degree, he served as Assistant to the Deputy Secretary for Legal Affairs in the Kentucky Department of Transportation. Before coming to law school, he was on the administrative staff of his undergraduate alma mater. He is married to Elizabeth A. F. Stevens, a member of the Department of Pathology at the University Medical Center.

Associate Dean Stevens heads the Career Development Center, the college's placement clearinghouse. In addition, he oversees financial aid, student recruitment, several student activities, and many off-campus continuing legal education activities. He serves as liaison to the College of Law Alumni Association and the practicing bar, which responsibilities have led to several committee appointments within the Kentucky and American Bar Associations.

The College of Law Fund, the fund-raising effort of the law alumni association, is also within Stevens' area of responsibility.

Stevens has served as Chairman of the Southeastern Law Placement Consortium board since 1979. In 1978-82 he held an appointment on the Executive Committee of the National Association for Law Placement. He frequently serves as consultant to other law schools, bar groups and law firms on lawyer placement and training.

John King Hickey, Director of Continuing Legal Education. John Hickey is a graduate of the University of Kentucky College of Law (J. D., 1948) and the George Washington University (M.A., International Affairs, 1964). He served in the United States Air Force as a Judge Advocate from 1948 to 1970, and retired with the rank of Colonel. His military awards include the Distinguished Flying Cross with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Air Medal with Three Oak Clusters, and the Bronze Star Medal. From 1971 to 1973, he was Director of Legal and Judicial Administration at the Council of State Governments in Lexington. He is a founding member of the Air War College Alumni Association.

He joined the college's staff in 1973 to open the Office of Continuing Legal Education, and has served as its director since that time. He is a member of the Kentucky and Colorado bars and is admitted to practice before the United States Supreme Court and the Court of Military Appeals. He is a member of the International Law Society and formerly a member of the Society of International Law and the Inter-American Association of International Law. He is currently active in the Association of Continuing Legal Education Administrators and the Filson Club.

Mr. Hickey's pastimes include hunting, fishing and coin collecting. He and his wife Betty, a registered nurse, have three children.
