Dedication to Professor Gilliam

Professor Richard D. Gilliam died in Charlottesville, Virginia on September 20, 1986, a few months short of his 89th birthday. The following tribute to his life and career, authored by Professor Emeritus Frederick W. Whiteside, appeared in the Winter 1986-87 issue of the Kentucky Law Journal.

The Kentucky Law Journal dedicates this issue to the memory of Professor Emeritus Richard Davenport Gilliam who died in Charlottesville, Virginia on September 20, 1986, a few months short of his 89th birthday. Professor Gilliam (known as "Dick" or "Mr. Gilliam" to students and friends) will be long remembered by hundreds of alumni who knew him as Visiting Professor at the University of Kentucky in 1951-1952 and again as Professor of Law from 1955 to 1967.

Born at Petersburg, Virginia, November 16, 1897 into a family of distinguished lawyers, he enrolled at the University of Virginia, but his education was interrupted by World War I. Following military service with the Rockbridge artillery and work in a steel mill, he returned to Virginia to finish his B.A. in 1921 and his LL.B. in 1924. His college and law school honors include membership in Beta Theta Pi, The Raven Society, Phi Beta Kappa, Eli Banana, the Jefferson Society and the Editorial Board of the Virginia Law Review. He practiced law as a member of a small firm in Birmingham, Alabama for 17 years after graduating from law school. Again in 1942 military service interrupted his career. He volunteered as a private in the U.S. Army and was discharged in 1946 with the rank of Captain, after serving on many fronts ranging from Fort Knox to the Persian Gulf. At the end of the war he went to Korea as Court Supervisor for Korean Courts with the United States Military Government following the Japanese occupation. He is remembered by the Korean Bar and educated public for changes in Korean criminal law to include safeguards against illegal arrest and detention of suspects charged with crime. Reforms such as an independent judiciary and procedures akin to our habeas corpus were introduced.

Returning from Korea, Dick resolved at age 50 to enter the teaching profession. He pursued graduate studies at Yale Law School, taught one year as a visitor to the University of Kentucky law faculty and two years at Wake Forest School of Law before becoming a Professor of Law at the University of Kentucky from 1955 until 1967, when he was subject to mandatory retirement at age 70. He then reentered the active practice of law, this time in Owensboro, Kentucky with Hugh Moore, under the firm name of Gilliam and Moore. He was highly esteemed as a lawyer's lawyer, especially in his specialty of real estate titles and conveyances. After his last "retirement" in 1975 he returned to his second home, Charlottesville, where he spent the remainder of his life. He was made an Honorary Member of the Charlottesville-

I.

It is a beautiful day in Lexington as I write. Winter has faded and spring seems to have arrived outside my window and across the campus. My optimism for the College and the University matches the weather in every respect; things are fine and promise to be better in the days ahead. Graduation is still a couple of months away but enough has already happened to mark the year as a good one.

During the fall term our Mineral Law Center completed its first major research project and published a three-volume treatise entitled Kentucky Mineral Law. Initial response to the publication has been very positive. Our Continuing Legal Education Program has had an exceptionally good year. Attendance has been consistently good, quality of the programs remains high, and the transition to a new administration (after the retirement of John Hickey last year) has been smooth and easy. Our decision to employ Todd Eberle as director of this program, which looked great at the time made, looks even better now.

Our National Moot Court team came very close to winning the national competition this year, as indicated elsewhere in this issue of the Review. During the competition, at the "arenas" where the regional and national rounds were staged, everyone was saying that "the team to beat is Kentucky." It was extremely gratifying to know that the reference was not to our basketball team but rather to our moot court participants. Gretchen Lewis and Terry Yewell, in representing the College, put on display in Virginia and New York some things we observe in our students every day—competence, knowledge, and excellence.

II.

In a variety of ways the strength of our faculty is being demonstrated again this year. Professor Kenneth Germain, who has established a strong reputation in trademarks and copyright law, is visiting at George Washington University; he has been a big hit with the law students there. Professor Marty McMahon, who has made some exceptional scholarly contributions in the taxation area, is serving this year as professor-in-residence with the Internal Revenue Service in Washington; his selection for this position is an honor bestowed upon only two law teachers each year. Professor Donald Winslow, our only new faculty member, has completed his initial semester of teaching with very high marks. He adds considerably to the quality of an already very solid young faculty.

Professor Harold Weinberg, a member of our commercial law faculty, will be teaching next year as a visiting professor at the University of Virginia; demonstrated excellence in teaching and scholarship is a prerequisite for this appointment. And last but certainly not least, Professor John Rogers has been honored with an appointment as a Fulbright Fellow for academic year '87-88. With this prestigious appointment, Professor Rogers will have a chance to spend a full year teaching law in the People's Republic of China.

III.

Carroll Stevens, who served the College for ten years as associate dean, resigned early this year to accept a similar position with the College of Law at Yale University. It would be very difficult to overstate the magnitude of Carroll's contributions to the College. When he arrived in 1976 our placement program was still in its infancy; presently, it compares favorably with the best in the country. Doors of opportunity for our students are more open than they have ever been, thanks in no small way to the competence and strong efforts of Carroll.

His contributions in the area of alumni relations and development have been no less significant. In 1976 we had very little active involvement of alumni in the work of the College and received almost no financial support from private sources, mostly because we had never asked for it. During the ten years that Carroll has directed our efforts in these vital areas, we have created a Visiting Committee for the College, revitalized the Law Alumni Association, established an Annual Fund for support of the school, and built a base of alumni support that is a source of great hope for the future of the College. To be sure, the credit for these critical developments must be spread among many. But Carroll clearly played a pivotal role and in many respects was the driving force behind our efforts to create a partnership with our alumni.

Yale presents a new and marvelous challenge for him. He is looking forward to it, and I am sure he will do as well there as he has done here. All of us wish him the best.

IV.

Our sense of loss over the departure of Carroll has been tempered greatly by the success and good fortune we have had in finding a successor. Our newest associate dean is Drusilla Winifred Vansant, a native Kentuckian who was born and raised in Frankfort. Her principal areas of responsibility will be in placement, alumni relations, and development. And, as you will soon discover, all of us here at the school are extremely confident that we have put these responsibilities into very capable hands.

Drusilla is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She was a superb student there and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa in her junior year. In 1977 she was graduated from Harvard Law School and shortly thereafter joined the law firm of King & Spalding in Atlanta. After about three years of practice in the real estate department of that firm, Drusilla took a position with The Penn Central Corporation in New York and practiced there for three years in the areas of real estate, antitrust and corporations. In 1983 she left this position and joined The Stearns Company in Lexington as Director of Administration, later promoted to General Counsel.

The diversity of Drusilla's experience in the practice of law gives her some special capability for working with students who are trying to make career choices and decisions. It will also serve her well in working with law firms, institutions and other employers who are trying to match law graduates with personnel needs. She also has some very special potential for success in alumni matters and development and is looking forward to meeting and working with alumni groups. I am sure that all who are interested in the welfare of the College will be pleased with this selection once they have a chance to meet Drusilla.

V. The indispensable support provided the College in recent years by our alumni and friends continued during 1986. By the end of the year we had received in private support a total of $340,153, a truly phenomenal result and a testament to the generosity of our alumni and their affection and respect for the College. Although there are details about this in another part of this issue, I believe it appropriate to conclude my own report with a few highlights about this fund year and a formal expression of thanks and appreciation for this tremendous support of our efforts to improve the school.

During 1986 we made a special effort to attract help in the area of scholarships and financial aid. This has long been a major problem for us and I am pleased to report that the response to our appeal has been most gratifying. A number of existing endowment funds received substantial additions to principal during the course of the year and by the end of the year the following new ones had been created:

1. Thomas P. Bell Memorial Endowment
2. James Park, Sr. Scholarship Fund
4. Colvin P. Rouse Scholarship Fund
5. James L. Rose Scholarship Fund

In addition, the following law firms and individuals provided the means for long-term scholarship support of our students:
1. Stoll, Keenon & Park, Lexington, Kentucky
2. Savage, Garmer, & Elliott, Lexington, Kentucky
3. Landrum, Shouse & Patterson, Lexington, Kentucky
4. Ms. Rebecca Westerfield, Louisville, Kentucky
5. Mr. Joe B. Orr, Bowling Green, Kentucky
6. Mr. William Rudloff, Bowling Green, Kentucky

The list of major gifts to the College during 1986 is a long one indeed. Because of its magnitude and the fact that it comes from a source of long-standing support to the school, one such gift deserves special note. The Ashland Oil Foundation made a $50,000 gift to our Mineral Law Center to establish an endowment to support publication of the Center's Journal on Mineral Law and Policy. This was the second such gift from the Foundation, the first having been made in support of our efforts to establish the Center in 1982. As I have indicated on other occasions, Ashland Oil and its employees have been extremely generous and helpful to the College for a long time. Special thanks are due to Dick Spears, Jim Stephenson, and others in the company for the Foundation's most recent support of our work.

Gifts to the College, large or small, restricted or unrestricted, are increasingly vital to our future. We have been blessed by your generous support of our efforts to make the school a better place and pledge to do our best to deserve the kind of help you have given us. On behalf of everyone connected with the College, it is my privilege to express our deep appreciation and thanks to all who contributed gifts and time during our most recent fund year. Thank you.

Special Developments

Ashland Oil Foundation helps again!

Four years ago, the Ashland Oil Foundation donated $50,000 to the College of Law to assist in the early development of the Mineral Law Center. In a number of ways that gift proved very important to the progress of the Center. It encouraged others to think about some help for the Center and gave the College a chance to begin the development of an endowment fund to provide permanent support for the Center. In addition, it allowed the dean to create in the Mineral Law Center scholarships for students selected as members of the editorial staff of the College's new Journal of Mineral Law and Policy. As Dean Lawson said recently, "This has given Dave Short a chance to attract superior students to the Journal staff and has given the students a means of concentrating on journal activities in lieu of outside employment. This is a big help for the Center."

In 1986 the Foundation repeated its generous act of 1982 and made a second gift of $50,000 to the Center. Announcement of the gift was made during the annual meeting of the College's Visiting Committee by Jim Stephenson, Associate General Counsel with Ashland Oil and member of the Visiting Committee.

This gift, which will be received in two equal installments, will be used for an endowment to support the publication of the Journal of Mineral Law and Policy. Dave Short described the support of Ashland Oil as indispensable to the success achieved by the Center thus far. "The Dean and I have been looking for some permanent support for the printing costs associated with publication of the Journal. The gift from Ashland Oil will relieve us of a significant problem and allow us to concentrate on improving the quality of the Journal. We really appreciate the help."

The College is genuinely grateful for the special support for our students represented by these developments. We still have a long way to go to match what other schools have done in this area. But we made some notable progress last year and will continue our efforts to address this matter in 1987 and beyond.
UK CLE

200th seminar to be presented

The Office of Continuing Legal Education at the College of Law is entering its 14th year of operation and will soon be presenting its 200th seminar. Organized in the fall of 1973, it was the first permanently staffed, full-time continuing legal education program in the Commonwealth of Kentucky. Its stated purpose is to assist members of the legal profession 1) in keeping abreast of changes in the law resulting from statutory enactments, court decisions and administrative rulings, 2) in developing and sustaining practical lawyering skills and 3) in maintaining a high degree of professional competence in the various areas of the practice of law. The office operates as an "income-based" program generating sufficient monies from seminar registrations and publication sales to be a self-supporting component of the law school.

The 1986-87 course year saw record high levels of registrations for the seminar presentation series in workers' compensation, construction law, securities law, and federal court practice. 1986-87 also saw the adoption of a new logo, using the stylized letters "UK CLE" with a continuing line drawn through (shown above). In addition to the new logo, many of the seminar brochures carried specialized graphics created by Associate Professor of Law, Thomas J. Stipanowich, Lexington, and recent law school alumnus James S. Thomas of Cynthiana. This year's seminars have reaffirmed the commitment to serve Kentucky lawyers and UK alumni statewide with presentations in western Kentucky (Paducah), eastern Kentucky (Paintsville) and central Kentucky (Louisville) in addition to the many regular offerings in Lexington.

An enormous debt of gratitude is owed to those who contribute their time, expertise and practical insight for the advance planning, the instructional presentations, and the written materials that make the seminars possible. It is a special pleasure to enjoy the active participation of a large number of faculty and alumni from the College of Law in these programs. Faculty and alumni have been well represented in all seminars conducted over the past year:

Mac Swinford lecture

Former U.S. Attorney General Griffin B. Bell, partner in the Atlanta law firm of King & Spalding, delivered the biannual Mac Swinford Lecture at the College September 26, 1986. The speech drew a capacity crowd to the University's Memorial Hall.
The Class of 1951 held its 35th reunion last fall in Lexington, and 23 members were in attendance. Reunion organizer Arloe W. Mayne, vice president emeritus of Ashland Oil, Inc., organized a dinner at the Lafayette Club and an outing the following day at a UK home football game.

Members of the class continue to make news. Delmer Ison, director of risk management for the Washington, D.C. Metropolitan Area and Transit Authority, last summer was named “Risk Manager of the Year” by Business Insurance, a trade publication.

Ison has been with WMATA since its founding in 1966. He is the former executive director of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission, the body which formed the Authority. In a period when WMATA’s work force grew by 27%, outstanding workers’ compensation liabilities were reduced by 35%, from $31.3 million in 1982 to $20.3 million in 1985. An $11 million claims reserve was established, avoiding about 25% in added expense from deferred claim payments.

Patrick H. Dickinson ’53 has become a Fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers. Dickinson is a senior partner in the Sarasota, FL firm of Dickinson, O’Riorden, Gibbons, Quale, Shields & Carlton, P.A. He is a past president of the Sarasota County Bar Association and a past member of the Board of Governors of the Florida Bar. He recently concluded a term as president and chairman of the board of the Federation of Insurance and Corporate Counsel, an international organization of trial attorneys and corporate executives. He has also served on the Board of Directors for the Defense Research Institute and was recently presented with its Distinguished Service Award.

William J. Reik, Jr. ’64 whose investment in the Cincinnati Reds professional baseball franchise was the feature story in a 1985 issue of The Review, has continued his extraordinary achievement as an investment banker. In the fall of 1986, Paine Webber, the parent company of Mitchell Hutchens Asset Management, announced the initiation of a new mutual fund under Reik’s management. In just four weeks it attracted more than $80 million in investments. Shortly after it was fully subscribed, the firm launched another Reik-managed investment program, this time to enlist pension and profit-sharing funds. The goal for that project, $500 million, if reached, would give Reik an investment portfolio of approximately $1 billion, the largest managed by any individual in his firm.

Donald B. Clapp ’66 has resigned from UK to become the executive vice president at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, beginning in May. He won the job over 15 other candidates in a nationwide search. The seminary, which is Kentucky’s largest private school, has an enrollment of about 3,500.

Orson Oliver ’68 has succeeded Samuel H. Klein as president of the Bank of Louisville. Oliver, an executive with the bank since 1975, previously had been executive vice president and general counsel. Early in his career he was chief representative in trusts in the Office of the U.S. Comptroller of Currency.

Oliver serves on the boards of a number of Louisville civic organizations, including the Louisville Ballet, the Louisville Art Gallery, Kentucky Tomorrow and the Old Kentucky Home Council Boy Scouts of America.

Joel Williamson ’70 has joined Mayer, Brown & Platt, Chicago, as a partner. He was formerly with the Internal Revenue Service Office of District Counsel in Cincinnati.

Ronnie G. Dunnigan ’71 has become a member of the Greenup, Kentucky firm of McBryar, McGinnis, Leslie & Kirkland.

Daniel Robert Bartley ’72 recently opened an office in San Francisco for the private practice of law. A Louisa, KY attorney for the first five years following graduation, he moved to San Francisco in 1977 to become corporate counsel for McKesson Corporation. He later served for seven years as regional counsel for Container Corporation of America, then a subsidiary of Mobil Corporation. His areas of concentration include employment law, negligence, antitrust and general business matters.

George Anthony Smith '73 and Patrick A. Thompson '73 served as co-counsel in a Delaware case which resulted in a $29 million verdict, which was cited as one of the highest ever in a construction dispute. The result was obtained after five months of testimony and a four-day jury deliberation. The award consisted of compensatory damages, prejudgment interest and over $2 million in punitive damages, attorneys' fees and consultants' costs. The transcript ran 15,903 pages in length.

Smith, Thompson and their associates from the Atlanta law firm of Smith, Currie & Hancock represented the Nemours Foundation, owner of the Alfred I. duPont Institute Children's Hospital near Wilmington. Defendants were Pierce Associates, Inc., an Alexandria, Va. subcontractor, and its bonding company, Federal Insurance Company of Warrenton, Va. The action was based on negligence, breach of contract and abandonment of the job. U.S. District Judge Joseph J. Farnan presided over the case.

Michael V. Withrow '73 has been promoted to Legal Division Counsel with The Proctor & Gamble Company in Cincinnati.

C. Edward Hastie '74 has become a partner in the firm of Morgan & Pottinger, which in Lexington will be known as Morgan, Pottinger, Hastie & Murray.

Randy D. Shaw '83 is an associate in the Lexington office.

Wyatt, Tarrant & Combs has announced the election of David T. Stosberg '74 and Kimberly K. Greene '80 to the partnership. The action was announced on October 1, 1986, at which time Steven E. Clifton '86, Stella B. House '86, Janie C. McKenzie '86 and Roger L. Nicholson '86 joined the firm as associates.

Eugene Basanta '75, member of the Southern Illinois University School of Law faculty, was appointed in March, 1986 as vice chairman of the Medicine and Law Committee of the Section of Tort and Insurance Practice of the ABA. He also chairs a subcommittee of the Illinois Attorney General's Consumer Advisory Council, which is considering new car buyers' rights and remedies.

Stephen B. Bright '75 was featured in the January 1, 1987 American Bar Association Journal for his work as head of the Southern Prisoners' Defense Committee in Atlanta. The article, entitled "Attorneys for the Damned", described the views of several leading lawyers who represent persons on death row.

Richard P. Caton '78 who has practiced in Seminole, Florida with the firm of Fisher & Sauls, P.A. since 1983, has been named a partner in the firm. He practices in the areas of real property, mortgage lending and estate planning and administration. The firm also has offices in St. Petersburg, New Port Richey and Tampa, Florida.

Michael R. Ramage '78, Tallahassee, at press time had been selected as one of five finalists for a four-year position as Florida's first full-time statewide prosecutor, a post approved to fight organized crime in a fall 1986 election. The prosecutor will have offices spread throughout the state, and will oversee a staff of seven full-time lawyers.

Kurt W. Maier '79 has become a member of the Bowling Green, Kentucky firm of English, Lucas, Priest & Owsley.

Wm. Scott Schulten '79 has inaugurated a firm in Atlanta, Georgia known as the Law Offices of Wm. Scott Schulten. His offices are in the Hurt Building.

Paula Shives '79 has been promoted to associate general counsel for Jerrico, Inc. She had served as corporate counsel since July 1985, when she rejoined the company after four years in private practice with Greenebaum Doll & McDonald, where she had been a partner.

Patricia A. Van Houten '79 has opened an office for the general practice of law at 730 W. Main St., Suite 230, Louisville, KY 40202.

Annette McGee Cunningham '80 has relocated her practice to Dayton, Ohio.

The Lexington law firm of Brock, Brock & Bagby has announced that J. Robert Lyons, Jr. '80 has become a member of the firm and that Helen Maddocks Marks '85 has become associated with the firm. The firm now has five lawyers and is housed in one of Lexington's most historic buildings, The Ridgely House, which is located at the corner of Second and Market Streets.

Penny Travelsted '80 has joined the Bowling Green, Kentucky firm in which Stephen L. Hixson '71 is the senior partner. The firm will be known as Hixson, Downey & Travelsted.

Betty Moore Sandler '81 is now associated with the firm of Mains & Nichols in Woodbridge, Virginia. The firm also has an office in Alexandria.

Karen A. Hensel '82 has joined the legal staff of Humana, Inc. She had been with Western Kentucky Legal Services in Owensboro.

Rogers awarded Fulbright Fellowship

Professor John Rogers' trip to the Peoples Republic of China last June sparked an interest in that country which has resulted in his being awarded a Fulbright Fellowship to spend academic year 1987-88 teaching international law in Beijing.

If John accepts this prestigious appointment, he will spend the year teaching graduate courses in international law, as well as advising on the creation of faculty research programs and tutoring young teachers. While the course material may be similar to his international law classes at the College, everything else about the year in China promises to be vastly different, which is what first interested John in the Fulbright Fellowship.

"The people, the government, the cities, even the landscape bear no similarity to the United States," said Prof. Rogers.

"Everything is done by hand, and there are no signs of the things Americans take for granted every day."

Congratulations to Prof. Rogers on this prestigious appointment and the exciting prospect it offers for his next academic year.
Hawkins to head Cincinnati Chapter

Michael Hawkins, a 1972 graduate of the College of Law, has been selected to serve a second term as president of the Cincinnati Chapter of the UK Alumni Association. Mike, who also was graduated from the UK College of Business, is a partner in the Employment and Labor Relations Department of Cincinnati's Dinsmore & Shohl.

Events sponsored by the Cincinnati Chapter include outings to UK football and basketball games and an annual Kentucky Derby party. Those interested in becoming involved should contact Mike at (513) 977-8270.

One of Cincinnati's largest firms, Frost & Jacobs, has announced that Michael T. Sutton '82 has become associated with its Northern Kentucky office in Ft. Wright. His areas include real estate and general practice. Frost & Jacobs also has offices in Middletown, Ohio, Naples and Marco Island, Florida.

The November 28 edition of The Times of Swaziland, a South African newspaper, carried a lead article on the visit of Thomas Irwin '83, who is working on a book entitled The Dynamics of Constitutional Change in South Africa. Irwin is in the strife-torn country on a fellowship sponsored by the South African Department of National Education. He is also a guest researcher at the University of South Africa's Institute of Foreign and Comparative Law.

In 1985, Irwin spent 10 months as an exchange student in West Germany, where he plans to return in 1987 to continue doctoral degree studies.

William Green '84, an assistant professor of government at Morehead State University, has continued the prolific research he began as a law student. His most recent publications are "The Federal Courts as Super-Arbitration Tribunals: Judicial Review of Non-Reviewable Railroad Labor Grievances," (with Wiley

Graduate assumes key Toyota post

On October 9, 1986, Toyota Motor Manufacturing U.S.A., Inc. announced the appointment of Alex M. Warren, Jr. '65 as vice president for administration for the new company, which will operate Toyota's automobile manufacturing plant near Georgetown, Kentucky. He will be the senior American executive with responsibility for overseeing all administrative and related support functions in the new company.

Warren has held executive positions with a number of other major corporations, including U.S. Steel, Rockwell International, Chemetron and, most recently, Leaseway Transportation Corporation, where he served as senior vice president. He holds an MBA degree from the University of Chicago.

In an interview published October 10 in the Lexington Herald Leader, Warren said his responsibilities would include personnel and legal functions, as well as general affairs and community relations for the plant.

Dedication to Professor Gilliam

Albemarle County Bar and at all times maintained active contact with the law and his friends.

What are the continuing memories stemming from Dick Gilliam’s 15 years in law teaching? His teaching subjects numbered 14, exclusive of the first-year Legal Writing, a proliferation of law teaching loads not equaled in today’s law schools. Always the true Virginia gentleman, he was among the first to urge adoption of an honor code by the Student Bar Association. Outside the classroom he maintained broad intellectual interests and associations in the University community, serving as president of the University of Kentucky chapter of Phi Beta Kappa and as a member of the important non-resident fees committee.

“Thank God for Gilliam” has been the most frequent tribute from former students, many of whom are now highly successful in law practice. Why? The student body twenty years ago was much smaller and was quite different in characteristics from today’s classes. Most of the students were from small Kentucky communities, with Louisville and larger cities less well represented. Many students had deficient academic backgrounds, especially in effective use of the English language. Basic writing skills, not just grammar and punctuation, but analysis and organization of ideas, is a basic tool of the lawyer. Dick saw improvement of these skills in the individual student as a primary need, and dedicated his time and energy to this need. Both in the first-year legal writing classes and in help to students writing law journal notes, Gilliam unselshly gave his time to teaching future lawyers how to write effectively.

Although little of his scholarship is preserved for posterity in the printed page under his name (see, however, Comment on a Review, 45 Ky. L.J. 386-392, 1952), his legacy is preserved in student notes with which he worked and in briefs and opinions of graduates who became lawyers and judges. Thus it may be well said that he wrote in the hearts and minds of students.

Not only was Dick an exacting taskmaker working to see that each individual reached his full potential, he also enjoyed, loved and never forgot his students. More than once when financial times got tough he reached into his own pocket to help. Mr. Gilliam did not marry, but had a large number of relatives, including much younger nephews and nieces with whom he kept in touch. Their reputedly calling him “Dickie-Boy” was really a mark of respect for his friendship. He did not talk down to children, but entertained and educated them with wit and humor.

Small of physical stature, but forceful of demeanor and conviction, Dick Gilliam made a lasting impression upon students. His concept of right and wrong was so clear, and he attempted to put into practice what he preached. One example will demonstrate. Before election day he had emphasized to his students their strong duty to vote. When election time came David Short’s (class of 1967) car broke down. Without hesitation, Dick handed Dave his car keys to drive to Harlan to vote, although he knew from their discussions that Dave would cancel his own vote. He believed everyone should come to class, prepared, even at 8 a.m. Saturdays following Friday night parties. He never forgot a friend. Graduates who visited him 10 to 15 years after his retirement from teaching say he would customarily ask about activities of all their classmates.

Professor Gilliam’s personal friendship with students is reciprocated by many alumni who have continued to ask about him over the years. It is altogether fitting that the Alumni Relations Office has created a special fund in his memory to support student scholarship.

Frederick W. Whiteside

Paul Oberst, professor of law emeritus. ACTIVITIES: Panelist, Bicentennial of the Federal Constitution, sponsored by the National Park Service at Mammoth Cave National Park, October 30, 1986 (with Kentucky Senator Walter Baker, Glasgow); reappointed to the Kentucky Commission on Human Rights for a sixth three-year term. Professor Oberst celebrated his decennial year at the law school in 1986-87. He entered as a freshman 50 years ago, and returned as an assistant professor 40 years ago.

Gift document presented

David C. Short ’67, Director of the College’s Mineral Law Center, left, is shown with Dean Lawson and Rick Thomas ‘83, a partner in Lexington’s Pfeiffer, Thomas & Hunt. Short and Thomas, authors of a three-volume practice aid entitled “Kentucky Mineral Law,” donated all proceeds from the sale of the book to the Mineral Law Center. They are shown here presenting the gift document. The book is published by Banks-Baldwin.

Frederick W. Whiteside, professor of law emeritus. PUBLICATIONS: “Laws and Programs for Older Kentuckians” (with Carol Davis Hendricks, J.D., 1977), 40 Bench & Bar 56 (fall, 1986); “A Handbook on Legal Concerns of Elderly Clients,” 49 Bench & Bar 32-33 (fall, 1985). AWARDS: Kentucky Bar Center Award for dedicated service to the Kentucky Bar Association and the citizens of Kentucky. Professor Whiteside was cited for his work as chairman of the KBA Committee on Legal Concerns of Elderly Clients and as editor of the handbook for older Kentuckians; he was also cited for 50 years distinguished service at the Bar, for which an honorary life membership was conferred.

Former faculty members

He holds both an undergraduate and a law degree from the University of Illinois. He was a graduate fellow at the Yale Law School and studied theology at Holy Cross College in Washington, D.C., after which he practiced law in Kansas City and taught on the law faculties of the Universities of Kentucky and Illinois.

Lewers was ordained as a Holy Cross priest in 1965. He taught international law at the Catholic University of Chile in between his two teaching appointments in the Notre Dame Law School. From 1973 to 1979 he served as provincial superior of the Indiana Province of the Congregation of Holy Cross.

He holds an honorary doctor of laws from Notre Dame and is a trustee of the University.

Reuben B. Hutchcraft, Jr., a member of the law school faculty from 1912-1914, was the subject of an article in the Filson Club History Quarterly, October, 1986 issue describing his gallant heroism in World War I.

A native of Bourbon County, Hutchcraft had been the Class of 1907 valedictorian at Transylvania University. He was also a graduate of the Harvard Law School, where he was associate editor of the law review. He went on to become a two-term member of the Kentucky General Assembly and a leader in the commission that revised Kentucky’s tax laws. He had a prosperous law practice in Paris, and was made a director of the First National Bank and of the Bourbon Building and Loan.

For his bravery, Reuben Hutchcraft was given a battlefield promotion from First Lt. to Captain and awarded the Distinguished Service Cross. He was killed in action on November 7, 1918, during the Meuse-Argonne offensive. After his death, the Kentucky General Assembly held a memorial service in the House chamber, at which Governor Edwin P. Morrow, all members of the Court of Appeals, and both Houses of the Legislature were in attendance.

UK Moot Court team sweeps regional competition; reaches national semifinals

After winning the Region IV competition in Williamsburg, Virginia in November, the UK Law National Moot Court team of Gretchen Lewis and Terry Yewell placed in the top four at the 37th Annual National Moot Court Competition in New York in January. Over one hundred and fifty schools entered teams in the competition, which is sponsored by the Young Lawyers Committee of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York and the American College of Trial Lawyers.

"This is the first time UK has won the regionals since most of us can remember," said Professor John Rogers, advisor to the UK moot court program. Region IV consists of 14 law schools in Virginia, North Carolina, West Virginia, and Kentucky. According to Rogers, "we always send topflight teams, but the region is particularly strong." The UK team won six straight rounds in Williamsburg, to emerge the winner in a field of 28 teams from the 14 schools. Lewis and Yewell's brief was also judged best in the region. Although their brief was for respondent, they had to switch sides four times in proceeding through the competition. According to Rogers, "in the hallways you could hear it: UK is the team that will be hard to beat."

Notified of the victory in Williamsburg, Dean Robert Lawson said, "I thought Gretchen and Terry might do it!"

Winning the region entitled the UK team to participate in the national competition in New York on January 26-29, 1987, along with runner-up Wake Forest. Twenty-nine teams participated in the national competition. Although the UK team's flight to New York was cancelled for weather reasons, and the team arrived at their New York hotel only an hour before the first round, the team won its first three rounds, defeating Southern Illinois University, Northwestern University, and Rutgers University (Newark), respectively.

The team then defeated St. Johns University in the quarter final round, placing them in the top four in the national competition. In an obviously close semifinal round, the UK team lost to the University of Kansas. Wake Forest then defeated Kansas in the final round, to win the national competition. According to Rogers, who accompanied the team to New York,

Awards Night honors student excellence

The second annual Awards Night ceremony was held in the College of Law courtroom on Thursday evening, April 2, 1987. Richard W. Spears ’61, Senior Vice President of Ashland Oil, Inc., gave the keynote address applauding the students’ accomplishments. A number of alumni were on hand to assist Dean Lawson with the presentation of awards and to share their fondest (or at least most memorable) tales of law school.

Greenebaum Doll & McDonald Awards
First presented were the Greenebaum Doll & McDonald Awards for Academic Excellence, given to the students with the highest grade point average for their class for the year. This year the second-year student receiving the award was Mary Ann Born, and the two first-year students who tied for their class award were Edward Arnold and deLora Moore. The awards were presented by Larry Leatherman ’53. Dean Lawson recognized the invaluable contribution of Greenebaum and its members to the successful reinstitution of Awards Night last year and the importance of their continued support for this year’s ceremony.

Mineral Law Awards
The success of the Mineral Law Center and the new Journal of Mineral Law and Policy has been recognized by the creation of several awards. Dr. Lyle Sendlein, Director of the Institute for Mining and Minerals Research and a professor of geology at the University, was present to award the Institute’s research fellowship to second year student Bill Gorton.

The Massey Foundation of Massey Coal Company endowed a scholarship fund in 1983 which has grown every year since its inception. This year the endowment funded a $1,000 scholarship to each of four outstanding students on the staff of the Journal of Mineral Law and Policy. The recipients of the Massey Foundation scholarships, all second year students, were Pat Byrne, Todd Leatherman, Steve Moore and John Whitesell. The awards were presented by Associate Professor David Short, director of the Mineral Law Center.

Kentucky Law Journal Awards
Several alumni whose fondest memories of the College relate to their service on the Kentucky Law Journal have established awards to recognize outstanding contributions to the Journal. Colvin P. Rouse ’28 has endowed an award to the third-year student who contributes the best writing to the Journal. This year’s award was presented by Professor Sarah Welling, faculty advisor to the Journal staff, to Keith Hunter.

Charles S. Cassis ’63, has established an award to recognize excellence in legal research and scholarship as evidenced by publication in the Journal, which was presented this year to Professor Richard Ausness.

Among the scholarships funded by Stoll, Keenan & Park are two which reward outstanding work on the Journal by second year students. Bill Lear presented this year’s awards to John Grant, who received the award for the best writing, and Garry Perry, who received the award for the outstanding over-all contribution to the Journal.

Professor Sarah Welling presents third-year student Keith Hunter with the Colvin P. Rouse Award for best student writing for the Kentucky Law Journal.

Bill Lear ’75 looks on as Dean Lawson presents the Stoll, Keenan & Park Award for most outstanding overall contribution to the Kentucky Law Journal to Garry Perry, a second-year student.
Moot Court Awards

A number of awards were presented to the Moot Court teams. The 1986 national team of Gretchen Lewis, Terry Yewell, Reginald Carver and Mathew Staver was recognized, and Terry Yewell and Gretchen Lewis were congratulated by their coach, Professor John Rogers, and the audience for their remarkable success in the regional and national finals, as reported elsewhere in this issue.

Due to the generosity of several alumni and friends, all four members of the 1987 national team will receive scholarship funds for their third year at the College. Bill Garmer '75, presented the Savage, Garmer and Elliott scholarship to Robin Cornette. The Stoll, Keenan & Park moot court award was presented by Bill Lear '75 to Andrew Self. Charles Landrum Jr. '42 awarded the Landrum, Shouse & Patterson scholarship to Frank Miller, and took the opportunity to advise the students in attendance that "Litigation is where the fun is." The fourth moot court scholarship was funded by Truman Chaffin, a West Virginia attorney, and was presented to Dana Patterson.

Two years ago, Roger B. Leland '54, in remembrance of his moot court experience, established three annual awards to recognize student achievement in the College's own moot court competition. This year the Roger B. Leland award for Best Oral Argument was presented to Robin Cornette, and Dana Patterson won the Leland awards for Best Brief and Outstanding Advocate.

National Women Lawyers Association Award

The National Women Lawyers Association sponsors an award to the outstanding woman in the graduating class, which was presented by Professor Carolyn Bratt to Mary Stephens.

Scholarship awards to incoming students

The number of scholarships available to incoming students has increased significantly over the past year. Several of the students receiving scholarships attended Awards Night and had the opportunity to meet those who made the scholarships possible.

John Thomas Soyars, from Hopkinsville. John's father was Judge J. Thomas Soyars '56.

Thomas P. Bell Scholarships

The scholarship fund created last year upon the death of Thomas P. Bell '50 has in one year grown to be the single largest scholarship fund established for the College of Law. Two of the first Tommy Bell Scholarships were presented at Awards Night by his wife, Leslie Bell, and son, Bruce Bell '83. One recipient, Brett Burrow, is a Hardin County native and a graduate of Vanderbilt University, where he captained the basketball team. His father was an All-American basketball player at UK. The other, Gene Vance, is from Oil Springs in Johnson County. This spring Gene will complete his undergraduate degree at Transylvania University.

Sallie Bingham Scholarship

Rebecca Westerfield '76 was on hand to award the first Sallie Bingham Scholarship, described elsewhere in this issue. The recipient, Caroline Keely, is from Paducah and a graduate of the University of Louisville. She worked full time and raised a family while obtaining her degree, and then worked in several fields before deciding to enter law school.

Brown, Todd & Heyburn Scholarships

This year the members of Brown, Todd & Heyburn donated funds sufficient to

New scholarships and awards

Three new scholarships funded

Generous donations from three individuals will fund scholarships beginning in academic year 1987-88. They are as follows:

Sallie Bingham scholarship award

Distinguished alumna Rebecca Westerfield (Class of '76) has funded a scholarship in honor of Sallie Bingham, noted Louisville citizen, writer and philanthropist. Eligible for the scholarship are students who had a career prior to entering law school, with homemaking recognized as a career. Special consideration will be given to those whose family obligations (such as child care) create a particular degree of financial need and to individuals from gender and racial groups under-represented in the legal profession. The Sallie Bingham Scholars will receive annual awards of $1,000.

K Men's Association football scholarship

A merit scholarship for the student athlete has been established in the name of the K Men's Association by Joe B. Orr, a 1939 graduate of the College and former UK football player. Individuals who earned at least two undergraduate letters in football are eligible to receive grants of $2,000 annually.

William J. Rudloff scholarship

Warren County residents will be eligible for merit scholarship awards of $1,000 per year from the scholarship fund established by Bowling Green attorney William J. Rudloff. The commitment of these alumni and friends to the College and its students is greatly appreciated.

Richard D. Gilliam, Jr. Memorial Scholarship Fund created

A special scholarship fund has been created in loving memory of Professor Emeritus Richard Davenport Gilliam, Jr. Truly a gentleman and a scholar, Professor Gilliam will be long remembered for his devotion to his students and his dedication to teaching them the precision essential to legal writing and legal thought. That devotion and dedication will be perpetuated through the scholarship fund.

The Gilliam fund will be used to support student scholarships. When total gifts exceed $10,000, a permanent endowment will be created, with the income used to fund annual awards to deserving students.

award three full tuition scholarships for outstanding students, and two of those scholarships were announced at Awards Night. Jim Park presented the first award to David Thompson from Owensville in Bath County. David will be graduating from Transylvania, where he has done extremely well while pursuing a number of outside interests. The other recipient announced was Robert Lilly, a Louisville native and graduate of Brimmer Young University who was working in Utah at the time of the awards ceremony.

South Central Bell Scholarship

The South Central Bell Company has funded a scholarship to attend the College of Law which is awarded to a Kentucky resident on the basis of academic performance, with particular consideration given to graduates of UK's College of Business and Economics. Creighton Mershon, the Company's Kentucky general counsel, presented this year's scholarship to Shawn Johnson. Shawn, who is from Pike County, will graduate in May from the College of Business and Economics, where his record has been outstanding.

Stoll, Keenan & Park Scholarship

Among the several scholarships established by the Stoll, Keenan & Park firm is a merit scholarship for incoming students. Dean Lawson presented the award to the first recipient, Todd Page, who is attending Transylvania University on one of its prestigious Thomas Jefferson merit scholarships.

W. L. Matthews, Jr. Scholarship

The W. L. Matthews, Jr. Scholarship, endowed by the UK Athletics Association, is awarded to a UK undergraduate for pursuit of a graduate degree at the University. This year the scholarship was awarded to a student admitted to the College of Law. Carol Matthews was in the audience for Dean Lawson's announcement of the recipient, Russell Adkins. A political science major, Russell has been very active on campus while maintaining an exceptional academic record.

Nancy Lewis Awards

Upon completion of his service as Dean, Professor Tom Lewis established these awards in the name of his late wife to recognize exceptional contributions by members of the College staff. Dean Lawson announced three of this year's recipients at Awards Night—Antionette Fiske, a member of the library staff, new Associate Dean Todd Eberle, whose responsibilities include the Continuing Legal Education program, and Associate Dean Paul Van Booven, who remarked upon receiving his award that "Dean Lawson seldom surprises me, but he has tonight."

The next surprise was for former Associate Dean Carroll Stevens, who came down from New Haven for the ceremony. On behalf of the faculty, Paul Van Booven presented Carroll with a silver julep cup inscribed to commemorate his years of dedicated service to the College of Law.

Robert M. and Joanne Duncan Faculty Improvement Award

Robert M. Duncan '74 and his wife, Joanne Duncan '74, have created an award designed to recognize outstanding teaching by members of the College faculty. This year Dean Lawson presented the Duncan Award to Associate Professor Tom Stipanowich.

Upon conclusion of the Awards Night ceremony, Greenebaum Doll & McDonald sponsored a cocktail reception at the new Faculty Club.
James Park, Sr.
Scholarship Fund created

James Park was one of those rare individuals whose achievements were as pervasive as his interests. His endeavors were many, his failures nonexistent, and his successes in life truly extraordinary.

He was a gifted athlete at the University of Kentucky in the early part of the century. Some of his records as an intercollegiate athlete, nearly three quarters of a century later, are yet to be broken. Subsequently he competed against the best athletes in the country as a professional baseball player in the major leagues.

He also distinguished himself as a student at the University of Kentucky. He graduated from the College of Law in 1920 and had a long and distinguished career as a member of the legal profession of this state. He remained deeply interested in the welfare of the University throughout his life and contributed to its progress in a number of ways. He served for sixteen years as a member of the Board of Trustees.

In 1986, in recognition of his great contributions to the University, to the profession of law, and to the general public, the James Park Scholarship Fund was permanently endowed in the College of Law. An extremely generous gift to the College by Mrs. James Park, Sr., her daughter Ridgely, and her son James Park, Jr. (who is also an alumnus of the College from the Class of '58) funded the endowment.

Income from the endowment will be used annually for merit scholarships for students of the College. The first award will be made for academic year 1987-88.

Brown, Todd & Heyburn Scholarships

The law firm of Brown, Todd & Heyburn, with offices in both Louisville and Lexington, has created a scholarship program in the College of Law to help the dean and the faculty attract outstanding students to the College. An annual gift of $6,000 will be made to the College to be used to award two or more merit scholarships to entering students.

The recipients of the Brown, Todd & Heyburn Scholarships will be selected by a College committee appointed by the dean. The dean is extremely pleased to have this kind of support for the College. "For a long time we have seen some of our very best Kentucky applicants leave the state for law study because of scholarship offers from other schools. And when this happens the Commonwealth of Kentucky is the ultimate loser, for rarely do these outstanding individuals return to Kentucky after completing their education. The Brown, Todd & Heyburn Scholarships will give us a chance to compete for some of these superb students."

Charles S. Cassis (Class of '63) and C. Edward Glasscock (Class of '69), both of whom have been very helpful to the College in other ways, worked closely with Dean Lawson in formulating the program creating the scholarships. "Charlie and Ed were mainly interested in finding a way to help the school and were more than willing to help us address this problem," said Dean Lawson.

The initial Brown, Todd & Heyburn Scholarships will be awarded to students entering the law school in the fall of 1987.

Stoll, Keenon & Park scholarships created

The Lexington law firm of Stoll, Keenon & Park has created a diversified scholarship program in the College of Law. Toward the end of last year, following some earlier discussions with Dean Lawson, the firm announced that it intended to award four tuition scholarships to students of the College each year. Each award will carry a stipend of $2,000 which is sufficient to cover the cost of tuition and books.

Bill Lear (Class of '75), David Lester (Class of '75), and Bob Houlihan, Sr. (Class of '41), all members of the firm, met with Dean Lawson for the purpose of determining how the firm might best assist the College with financial support for students. In a memorandum of understanding subsequently signed by the firm and the dean, the following awards were created:

1. Stoll, Keenon & Park Scholarship. This award is made to an entering student of the College on the basis of merit as demonstrated by LSAT score, undergraduate academic performance, and other indicators of outstanding scholarly potential.

2. Stoll, Keenon & Park Writing Award. This award is made to the student on the Kentucky Law Journal who writes the most outstanding case comment during the academic year.

3. Stoll, Keenon & Park Outstanding KLJ Service Award. This award goes to the student who has made the greatest overall contribution to the Kentucky Law Journal during his or her second year of law study.

4. Stoll, Keenon & Park Moot Court Award. This award is made to a student who achieves excellence in the moot court program of the College, specifically, by being selected to the national moot court team on the basis of competition within the College.

"If the weaknesses of the Kansas team had been brought out by the judges in the semifinal round, in the way that they were in the final round, UK would have beaten them for sure. Kansas lost the final round to the same Wake Forest team that Gretchen and Terry had defeated in Williamsburg. So UK really came within a hair's breadth of winning the whole thing." According to Dean Lawson, "Gretchen and Terry's outstanding performance at the nationals in New York shows the national quality of our moot court program. We are very proud of them."

Gretchen Lewis graduated from UK in December, 1986, and has taken the Kentucky and West Virginia bars. She is from North Myrtle Beach, South Carolina. Terry Yewell will graduate in May, 1987, and will practice in Atlanta. He is from Sacramento, Kentucky.

UK sends two teams to the regional competition each fall, following an extensive intraschool competition. UK's other team this year consisted of Reginald Carver of Hopkinsville, and Mathew Stover of Lexington, both third-year law students.

The case for this year's competition was United States of America v. Jane P. Walker, Esq. and Thomas P. Johnson, Esq. It concerned the Fifth and Sixth Amendment issues raised by the service of a grand jury subpoena on attorneys whose clients are targets of a grand jury investigation. The issues posed by such subpoenas have been the subject of several court decisions and legal commentaries in recent years.
