The College of Law

Since its founding in 1908, the University of Kentucky College of Law has had as its primary purpose the legal education of individuals so that they might render the highest quality of professional service to the Commonwealth of Kentucky and to those who seek their assistance; lawyers who are interested in and capable of achieving improvements in legal process; and who are prepared to fulfill the vital role of the lawyer as a community leader and as a protector of ordered liberty. To achieve this goal, a blend of certain elements is necessary: a talented and dedicated faculty, a highly qualified student body, a broadly diversified and well-structured curriculum, excellent physical facilities, a strong relationship with an outstanding university; and the support of alumni, the organized bar, and the community.

The College of Law is a member of the Association of American Law Schools and is approved by the American Bar Association.

Faculty and Curriculum

The University of Kentucky College of Law faculty consists of 25 full-time professors and several adjunct professors. The faculty engages in research and publication, but concentrates on classroom teaching to sustain the high level of academic excellence the school has long maintained. The faculty has designed a curriculum that accomplishes several major goals. Prominent among these is supplying the student with a working knowledge of the existing legal system, its principles, and its doctrines. Clients cannot be served effectively or liberties preserved by lawyers lacking basic knowledge; and the law cannot be improved by attorneys having a vague and fragmentary knowledge of legal institutions.

Students at the College of Law are trained in legal reasoning and become aware of both the virtues and the defects of the existing legal order. Students are reminded of economic, political, and social values that compete for recognition and implementation through law. Above all, students are instructed about a lawyer’s ethical responsibilities and the necessity for the highest personal and professional standards.

To further these ends, emphasis in the curriculum is placed upon the origin of legal doctrines and rules, the factors that influence change, the social purpose and significance of legal principles, and the role played by law as a rational method for the resolution of disputes. Recognizing the complexity and diversity of modern society, the faculty continues to modify and expand the curriculum in order to keep pace with current developments.

Like all state-supported law schools, the University of Kentucky College of Law exercises a special responsibility for legal service and leadership in its jurisdiction. Like all nationally-oriented law schools, the College proceeds on the premise that excellence in legal education cannot be attained by concentrating on the laws and institutions of a single state jurisdiction. Rather, experience has demonstrated that the best legal training does not come from study devoted primarily to the decisions and statutes of any single state; such specific training in law school is not required to enable the student to qualify for admission to the bars of the various states.

College of Law students represent a wide range of interests, skills, abilities, and accomplishments. Students at the College come from many states and from all types of undergraduate institutions. There is currently a total enrollment of 480 students representing over 100 colleges. Approximately 10 percent of the students come from outside Kentucky; the Kentucky residents represent all parts of the Commonwealth; in 1981, of 160 students admitted to the first-year class, 33 percent were women and 4 percent were minority students.

Our applicants present credentials that represent a variety of test scores, undergraduate records and major fields, extracurricular activities, work experiences, and special circumstances. Increasing numbers of students have been involved in some kind of academic or nonacademic activity between graduation from college and entrance to law school. As a result, the ages and experiences of our students vary significantly. This diversity provides an exciting environment for the exchange of ideas and opinions—an invaluable aid in the process of legal education.

Facilities

The University of Kentucky College of Law is located on the main campus of the University of Kentucky in Lexington, Kentucky. The College is self-contained, and has all the facilities for a complete program of legal education. The law building contains a model courtroom for Moot Court and practice court sessions as well as for convocations and other large assemblies; amphitheatre rooms for instruction in large classes; rooms designed for seminars and conferences; and offices for faculty, staff, and student organizations. The three-level library complex, equipped with private study carrels, small study rooms, and other conveniences provides a quiet atmosphere for law study.
University Community

The College of Law benefits from its association with the research and instructional facilities of a major university. There are an increasing number of inter- and cross-disciplinary programs and courses in which the College plays a role; however, the school does not participate in any joint degree programs with other Colleges of the University.

The University supports Colleges of Arts and Sciences, Agriculture, Engineering, Law, Education, Business and Economics, Communications, Fine Arts, Medicine, Pharmacy, Nursing, Dentistry, Home Economics, Architecture, Allied Health Professions, Library Science, Social Work, the Graduate School, the University Extension, and a state-wide Community College system. The cultural and intellectual life of the University community is large and varied. The University of Kentucky, with a total main-campus population of about 22,000, provides excellent opportunities for participation in and enjoyment of art, athletics, music, and theatre.

Location

Lexington, and the surrounding area of Fayette County, with a population of over 200,000 persons, is a fast-growing urban center in the famous Bluegrass region of central Kentucky. The Council of State Governments has its national headquarters in Fayette County. Lexington is headquarters for the Federal District Court for the Eastern District of Kentucky. All state and local courts convene in Lexington, except for the Supreme Court which, with the rest of the state government, is located in Frankfort, the state capital, some 28 miles from the University campus. Lexington is only 80 miles from both Louisville and Cincinnati, with connections by express highways and frequent air and bus transportation.

Size

The College of Law, with an enrollment of about 480 students, is medium-sized among American law schools. The College is large enough to offer a varied curriculum, but small enough to provide a human scale, conducive to a close relationship among students, faculty, and administration. A tradition of "open doors" permits a full faculty-student interchange.

First-year classes are sectioned so that each student has an opportunity to meet all first-year students, although most classes contain about 50 students. Legal Writing classes for first-year students are taught in sections of about 13 students each. Second- and third-year classes vary in size according to course selection, but many enroll between 25 and 50 students. Seminars and other courses involving research and writing ordinarily are restricted to 15 students each.
Faculty Advisors

Each student is assigned to a member of the faculty who serves as an informal advisor throughout the three years of law school. A student may call upon any member of the faculty at any time for discussion and assistance in connection with problems arising in his or her program of study.

Law Library

The Law Library, one of the finest in the Southeast, contains more than 175,000 volumes and is arranged to permit each student direct access to books in the stacks. The collection includes the reports of all state and federal courts and many administrative agencies, as well as an extensive range of British Commonwealth reports. The Library is a depository for United States Government publications. The Library maintains copies of the statutes of all states, the federal government, England, and Canada; over 500 foreign and domestic legal periodicals; encyclopedias; treatises; major looseleaf services; and related materials. It also receives the briefs of the Kentucky Supreme Court and microfilm copies of records and briefs filed in the United States Supreme Court. Special collections include the Kocourek Jurisprudence collection presented to the Library by Professor Albert Kocourek in 1941, and the Stanley F. Reed Collection supported by a fund established by Mr. Justice Reed’s former law clerks upon his retirement from the United States Supreme Court in 1957.

The Law Library is open during the academic year from 7:00 a.m. until 1:00 a.m., seven days per week.
PRELAW STUDY

While a broad, liberal arts education is generally considered to be an excellent preparation for law school, there is no fixed, comprehensive prelaw curriculum prescribed by this or any other American law school.

This fact is very important, and its implications should not be misunderstood. American legal education is not a graduate program of advanced work in a specialized course of study beginning in college; it is not a technical or scientific training that builds upon a specific preparation in basic techniques and knowledge acquired in undergraduate school. Legal education is a professional education which requires that each student develop three fundamental capacities in his or her prelegal experience. These accomplishments may be obtained in a variety of learning ways and academic disciplines.

First, because the basic working tools of lawyers are written and spoken words, the beginning law student must have thorough preparation in the use of the language. The importance of this requirement cannot be overstated. A fundamental knowledge of grammar and syntax, a good vocabulary, an ability to read rapidly with insight and understanding, and a facility for expressing ideas with clarity and order are all essential to success in the study and practice of law. Any prelaw student who is deficient in these abilities should immediately take additional courses in English literature and composition, seek specialized remedial assistance, and exert all efforts towards language mastery.

Second, because the primary working arenas of lawyers are social, economic, and political communities, the beginning law student must obtain a comprehensive, exploratory undergraduate experience. The law student should have a good knowledge of history (especially English and American traditions), of government and political processes, of social and cultural patterns and the interactions that create them, and of the ethical and spiritual credos by which men and women live.

Third, because the fundamental techniques of legally trained persons are careful ordering of facts and events, conceptual analysis and synthesis, and effective advocacy, the prelaw student should pursue a degree program in which he or she will learn to think clearly, will form sound study habits, and will have the opportunity to master the methodology and knowledge of a particular field under the guidance of experienced instructors. Generally, any undergraduate course program can satisfy this requirement and help meet the other two needs outlined above. Prelaw students with definite career objectives in mind may wish to prepare for those objectives by majoring in appropriate subjects, for example: business or economics, government or political science, English literature, engineering, or the natural sciences.

Experience indicates that the poorest preparation for legal study lies in inadequate development of language skills, lack of historical and social awareness and appreciation, and failure to achieve the mastery of any academic discipline that overcomes the shallowness of vague generalization. Therefore, the prescription from this law school to the prelaw student is that he or she should invest in the broadest, deepest undergraduate education open to him or her rather than in some predetermined curriculum.

For additional information, see the Prelaw Handbook, published and prepared by the Law School Admission Council and the Association of American Law Schools. This publication contains material on the law and lawyers, prelaw preparation, applying to law schools, and the study of law, together with information on most American law schools. It may be obtained at college bookstores or ordered from Law School Admission Services, P. O. Box 2000, Newtown, PA 18940.
ADMISSION CRITERIA AND PROCEDURES

Formal Admission Criteria

The following admissions criteria, as approved by the Law Faculty and the University Senate, acting through powers delegated by the Board of Trustees of the University of Kentucky, guide the decisions of the College of Law Admissions Committee:

An applicant for admission to the College of Law must meet the following requirements:

1. The applicant must have a bachelor’s degree from an accredited institution.
2. The applicant, unless blind, must have taken the Law School Admission Test.
3. The applicant must have registered with the Law School Data Assembly Service and furnished the necessary transcripts such registration requires.

The College of Law Admissions Committee considers an applicant’s undergraduate grade record, the Law School Admission Test Score, the writing ability score, and other factors indicative of the applicant’s aptitude for law study. The Committee examines with particular care the grade average for the most recent semesters of undergraduate study, recommendations of faculty, the nature and difficulty of course work attempted in pre-law study, undergraduate extracurricular activities, and work experience. The Committee also considers post-baccalaureate experiences where such experiences, in the Committee’s determination, indicate a development of aptitude for the study of law. The Committee will review the file of an applicant to determine whether personal, academic, professional, or intellectual circumstances tend to discount low academic or LSAT scores and give evidence of both the capability and motivation to do successful law school work. The Committee may also consider factors which bear on the provision of adequate legal services to all segments of Kentucky.

Under regulations issued by the Kentucky Council on Higher Education, no more than 10% of the total number of students in the College of Law may be nonresidents of Kentucky.

These formal criteria are explained in detail in A Guide for Applicants, which begins on page 15.

Procedure for Application

The University Office of Admissions administers the admissions process for the College of Law. The admissions process is initiated by submitting a completed application form and LSDAS Application Matching Form to that office. The applicant must register for the LSAT and LSDAS and arrange for transcripts of all academic work to be sent to LSDAS.

Because the Admissions Committee considers applications as they are completed, all students are urged to apply as early as possible. Applications should be received by January 1 and files should be completed by January 15. February 15 of the year in which an applicant expects to enter law school for the fall semester is the deadline for receipt of the application form. March 31 is the deadline for receipt of all materials, including LSAT scores and the LSDAS report. Applicants are urged to take the LSAT in October or December. The February LSAT is the last examination which will be accepted by the Admissions Committee. Applicants are urged to send transcripts to LSDAS no later than December 20. If transcripts are not on file with LSDAS by February 1, there is a substantial possibility that an LSDAS report will not arrive at the Admissions Office before the March 31 deadline.

Application Form and Registration Deposit

An application for admission will be furnished upon request from the following offices: Admissions Office, Gillis Building, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Kentucky 40506; Office of the Dean, College of Law, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Kentucky 40506. All applicants for admission as degree candidates or special students must fill out this form. There is no application fee.

Every effort is made to notify applicants as soon as possible, but it is important to remember that the admission process often stretches into June. It is not unusual for an applicant who has filed all materials in the fall to be notified of a final decision the following summer.

Each candidate who is accepted is required to pay a nonrefundable $100.00 deposit to secure a place in the class. This deposit is applicable toward tuition.

Law School Admission Test

The College of Law, together with most other law schools, belongs to the Law School Admission Council, which oversees the development and administration of the Law School Admission Test and a number of auxiliary services such as the Law School Data Assembly Service and the Prelaw Handbook. The LSAT is given four times per year at test centers throughout the country and at some overseas centers. Applicants should write to LSAT/LSDAS, Law School Admission Services, Box 2000, Newtown, Pennsylvania 18940 requesting the Law School Admission Bulletin, which contains registration forms for both services. Forms also may be obtained from the College of Law and the Admissions Office.

Registration with LSDAS

The Law School Data Assembly Service (LSDAS) simplifies admissions procedures for applicants. It is a centralized service which receives and evaluates, according to a standard scale, the undergraduate transcripts of applicants and furnishes a report to the institutions requested by the applicant. Registration for LSAT/LSDAS should be made at the same time and as early as possible. Be sure to attach the LSDAS Application Matching Form to your U.K. Application Form before sending the U.K. application form to us.

Because transcript analysis for most applicants is done on records containing only three years of undergraduate work, applicants who are still in college and who want to have the academic record for the fall semester of their senior year considered should send an official transcript of these grades to the University of Kentucky Admissions Office to the attention of the Law School Admissions Committee.

Letters of Recommendation

Letters of recommendation are not required, but applicants are urged to solicit recommendations in their behalf from persons familiar with their qualifications to study law. The admissions committee will consider recommendation letters to the extent, but only to the extent, that writers actually know and can speak to the applicant’s academic potential and relevant personal qualities. Because each applicant’s file initially is considered as soon as an application and an LSDAS report are on file, applicants should have letters submitted early in the application process.

 Preferably, these letters should come from professors under whom the applicant has studied, or if the applicant has not been enrolled in an academic institution for a substantial period of time, from employers or other persons familiar with the applicant’s qualifications. Letters of recommendation should be mailed directly to the Admissions Office. Applicants must complete a copy of the Information About Recommendations Form enclosed with the law application and give it to the recommender, who must send it with the letter of recommendation.
Registration With Bar Authorities

Rules of certain states, other than Kentucky, require registration with bar admission authorities at the time law study is begun. As soon as the student decides to attend law school, instructions should be obtained from the State Board of Bar Examiners in the state in which the student intends to practice. Failure to comply with these rules may delay admission to the bar for a substantial period.

Transfer Students

A student who has completed one year of law study in an approved law school and who is in good standing at that school may be considered for admission with advanced standing. Transfer applicants should present at least a B- average on no less than 25 hours of law school work at a school accredited by the American Bar Association or the Association of American Law Schools. The Admissions Committee will consider the applicant’s law school record as well as the factors normally considered for a first-year student. Only a small number of transfer students with exceptional academic records are admitted each year. Admission with advanced standing beyond the first semester of the second year is rare. Acceptance by the Admissions Committee in no way implies that all credits from another law school will be accepted for transfer credit. Students considering transfer should contact the Associate Dean for a tentative evaluation of transfer credits.

In addition to the application form, transfer students must submit an LSAT report, undergraduate and law school transcripts, and a letter from the Dean of his or her law school certifying class rank, good academic standing and eligibility to continue in that school. Application deadlines are June 1 for fall, December 1 for spring, and May 15 for summer. Transfer application files for fall usually are considered on or about July 15.

Transient Students

Students from other law schools who wish to attend the College of Law for a semester or summer session must receive approval from their own Dean and from the College of Law. A student must be in good academic standing in his or her law school. Transient applicants should apply at least six weeks before the beginning of the term in which they seek to enroll.
A GUIDE FOR APPLICANTS

The volume of applications to law school by well-qualified applicants continues far in excess of capacity. For the past four or five years over 900 applications have been received for an entering class of 160. Thus, selection among applicants is an extremely difficult task. Applicants need to know, therefore, whether they have a reasonable possibility of acceptance, and how best to present their applications. In 1979, the Admissions Committee adopted the following explanation relating to admission criteria.

In deciding to accept an application for admission to Law School, the Admissions Committee works with written materials in the applicant’s file. While admissions personnel are anxious to answer any questions an applicant may have, the interview as a device for gaining information about an applicant or as a device for the applicant to “sell herself or himself” is not a part of the admissions process. We require that the applicant provide in writing for her or his file whatever he or she wants the Committee to consider. The file must contain, at a minimum, the completed application form, copies of college transcripts (as reproduced by LSDAS), the LSDAS summary of college grades, and the report of LSAT scores. We strongly urge applicants to submit letters of recommendation which speak to the applicant’s ability, intelligence, diligence, imagination, and similar qualities, rather than to her or his family background or personality. We urge each applicant to submit a personal statement (beyond the bare information in the application), and we welcome and carefully consider whatever an applicant thinks important enough to present to us, whether on the back page of the application form or separately.

The Admissions Committee has agreed on the following as a useful description of the process used in making admissions decisions based on the formal admissions criteria described above.

Academic Factors

In measuring academic potential for admission to the College of Law, the Committee relies primarily on the applicant’s undergraduate grade point average (GPA) and the applicant’s performance on the Law School Admission Test (LSAT). A prediction index also is produced by use of a formula involving the two best statistically proven predictors of first-year law school academic performance: GPA and LSAT score. Three other numerical factors are considered, though they are not part of the basic formula. These are the separate Writing Ability score accompanying the LSAT score, the mean LSAT score and mean GPA over the past three years achieved by all students from the applicant’s college who took the LSAT (a figure which provides a rough indication of college quality).

Re-taking the LSAT. Some applicants choose to take the LSAT more than once. We require this if the prior test was taken more than three years before expected law school enrollment and give primary weight to the more recent score if the earlier one is more than two years old. Otherwise, we recommend a retake only if an applicant is reasonably sure he or she had a “bad day” and expects major improvement on a second try. We know that, on the average, some gain can be expected on a repeat. Research suggests that usually the best prediction from multiple scores is obtained by averaging them, and we use the average as a starting place unless the age of the score or other special factors suggest the wisdom of doing otherwise.

Because of the volume of applications, the Committee needs a starting place for the examination of each file. The numerical factors mentioned above provide that starting point. However, we know that the numerical predictors, even if optimally combined, provide no better than substantial statistical correlation with law school performance, and that in some individual cases there may be no correlation at all. We also believe that academic potential to succeed in law school is not the only basis on which applicants should be selected for admission.

Therefore, we consider a number of non-numerical or non-quantifiable factors, some of which are relevant to probable academic performance and some of which are more closely related to ultimate professional performance. Among those factors which seem to us predictive of potential academic performance in law school are:

Trend of College Grades. An applicant who started poorly in college but performed very strongly in later years is judged more favorably than another with the same GPA but a level or declining record.

Letters of Recommendation. Occasionally a careful, thoughtful letter from a teacher or employer tells us enough about the intellect, imagination, or diligence of an applicant so that we judge the applicant’s prospects for academic success more favorably than we would solely on the numerical factors.

Graduate Study. The mere experience of graduate study does not, in our judgment, significantly increase the quality of law school performance. But an academically strong showing on recent graduate work plus a strong LSAT may suggest that a weaker college record of several years ago can be largely disregarded.
Time Interval between College Graduation and Application to Law School. We have some evidence that applicants at least a year out of college, especially if they have strong recent LSAT scores, will have a better academic record in law school than their numerical credentials suggest.

Performance of Students from Applicant’s Undergraduate School. We give some weight to our estimate of the quality of the applicant’s college, if we have any basis for judgment. Our records of the actual performance of our students from our major feeder colleges suggest some patterns so pronounced that they cannot be ignored.

College Grading and Course Selection Patterns. We examine transcripts individually. If an applicant has followed any unusually easy or difficult pattern of courses, we take it into account.

For example, if an otherwise top record combines with 10 credits of “D” or “F” in an exceptionally difficult subject area to produce a middling GPA, we take that into account. Also, information is available about grading patterns and distribution at some colleges. A 3.0 record at one college may be clearly harder to obtain than at another college of otherwise similar quality. We take such differences into account. An occasional exercise of a college pass-fail option does not affect our evaluation of the GPA. However, a heavy load of ungraded, pass-fail, or credit-no credit work tends to weaken the significance of whatever GPA remains, forces a regrettably high reliance on the LSAT score, and creates a need for careful and candid letters of evaluation from college teachers of the applicant.

Outside Work or Activities While in College. A full-time or extra-heavy part-time work load or a heavy load of extra-curricular activity may suggest that the applicant would have had a better GPA with a lesser load. We consider this factor.

Minimum and Maximum LSAT and GPA. The Admissions Committee considers all the academic criteria listed above in making a decision; however, many applicants have questions about minimum GPA and LSAT requirements. No minimums have been fixed. Below is a profile of the 1981 resident applicant group showing ranges of GPA and LSAT combinations. Applicants should remember that LSAT and GPA are only two of many factors considered by the Committee.

In each box, the figure to the left of the slash represents applicants, while the figure to the right of the slash represents acceptees (e.g., 10/2 in a box means that 2 of 10 applicants with that combination of LSAT and GPA were accepted.

Figures reflect admissions decisions for Kentucky residents as of 6/3/80 and exclude applicants who are not residents of the Commonwealth of Kentucky. The profile reflects 100 percent of all resident application files that were completed, but applicants on the waiting list are not included in the accepted column. There are 16 nonresident seats in an entering class; applications from approximately 500 nonresidents were received; about 75 were accepted.

Non-academic Factors

In addition to the above non-numerical factors, which may persuade us to modify or even occasionally disregard the predictive index as we try to judge how an applicant will perform in law school, there are other factors which are unrelated to the prediction of law school academic performance, but which nonetheless influence selection for admission because they relate to professional performance. Examples of these non-quantifiable factors which we judge significant are:

Minority Status. The law school gives close admission consideration to applicants from minority groups historically disadvantaged and underrepresented in law schools and the legal profession. Individuals from these groups often show greater strength in their ultimate professional performance than would otherwise be predicted from their academic achievement. Also, they frequently seek to serve in those areas of the profession...
Diversity of Experience or Background. If an applicant will provide a background of work experience, life experience, college activity, political activity, etc., which will add an additional and unusual perspective to the law school student body, this will work in her or his favor.

Unusual Cultural Background. Because the Admissions Committee seeks diversity among the law student body, a fully qualified applicant from an unusual or disadvantaged background, even though not a member of a minority group, may be selected ahead of a less unusual applicant who has stronger numerical academic credentials.

Geographical Diversity. The Admissions Committee considers factors which bear on the provision of adequate legal services to all segments of Kentucky. In recent years, qualified applicants from Appalachia, from rural areas of Kentucky, from areas relatively unrepresented in our student body, and from areas which need more lawyers received preferential consideration in the admissions process.

Kentucky Residency. By instruction of the Kentucky Council on Higher Education, we are limited to 10 per cent nonresidents of Kentucky in the law school. The practical effect of this is to impose higher standards on nonresident applicants.

Acceptance in a Prior Year. Acceptance at the University of Kentucky College of Law is good only for the year for which extended even if the circumstances preventing attendance were beyond the applicant’s control. However, if enrollment was prevented by circumstances the accepted applicant could not control, this fact will be one factor in the applicant’s favor on the subsequent application.

Diversity of Experience or Background. If an applicant will provide a background of work experience, life experience, college activity, political activity, etc., which will add an additional and unusual perspective to the law school student body, this will work in her or his favor.

Diversity of Stated Goals. Our application form gives applicants an optional opportunity to express their reasons for wanting to study law. We prefer an entering class made up of individuals with many different reasons for being there.

Criminal Convictions. The College of Law believes that because of the limited number of positions in the entering class it has an obligation to the bench, bar and society to graduate only those individuals who will be able to become members of the bar. Accordingly, in the event an applicant, who would otherwise be accepted into the College of Law, has been convicted of a serious crime, the Admissions Committee may ask the applicant to seek an opinion from the appropriate bar committee or ask the applicant to meet with the Admissions Committee.

Achievement. The Committee reviews each file for evidence of leadership, responsibility, and achievement. The Committee considers favorably evidence of perseverance and accomplishment under adverse circumstances.

Policy on Nondiscrimination

The University of Kentucky is an equal opportunity/affirmative action University. It is the policy of the University not to discriminate on the basis of sex, handicap, race, color, religion, age, or national or ethnic origin in its educational programs, employment policies, financial aid, or other school-administered programs. This policy is enforced under federal law under Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973. Inquiries regarding compliance with these statutes may be directed to Ms. Nancy Ray, Equal Opportunities Office, Room 206, Administration Building (606-257-2730) or to the Director of the Office of Civil Rights, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Washington, D.C..
FINANCIAL CONSIDERATIONS

Tuition

The University reserves the right to change tuition at its discretion. Such changes are considered by the Board of Trustees late in the spring of each year. Since the catalog for the following year is published prior to this meeting, it is often impossible to have a final tuition figure for inclusion in the catalog. The tuition for full-time students registered in the College of Law in academic year 1981-82 is:

- Fall and Spring Semesters:
  - $579.00 per semester for Kentucky Residents
  - $1431.00 per semester for nonresidents

- Summer Session:
  - $290.00 for Kentucky Residents
  - $720.00 for nonresidents

- Hourly rate (9 semester hours or less in a semester or 4 semester hours or less in a summer term):
  - $58.00 per semester hour for Kentucky residents
  - $144.00 per semester hour for nonresidents

Tuition fees include class instruction; admission to athletic contests, convocations and other events; use of libraries; use of Student Center facilities; discount on admission to the Guignol Theatre; admission to the Central Kentucky Concert-Lecture series; and subscription to the University student newspapers and the Kentucky Law Journal.

Finances

Estimated expenses for a single student including tuition, fees, books, room, board, and incidentals, but not including travel are $4,003 for one academic year. A total of $6,758 should be projected for married students without children. Similarly, married students with one child should anticipate expenses of $7,708 for nine months.

Housing

Law students arrange their own housing in either accommodations maintained by the University or in private residences or apartments in the area.
University housing for all students is under the administration of the University of Kentucky Housing Office. Requests for information should be directed to that office. In addition, a number of residences owned by the University are rented through the Real Property Division of the University. A list of off-campus rooms and apartments approved for availability regardless of race, creed, or national origin may be obtained from the Dean of Students’ Office. Because the demand for University graduate student housing is great, application should be made as early as possible to University Housing Office, 218-L Service Building, Lexington, Kentucky 40506, Telephone: 606-257-1866.

Financial Aid Programs*

Scholarships

A limited amount of scholarship assistance for students in the College of Law is awarded on the basis of financial need, academic ability, and character. The aid is made possible through annual contributions of alumni and members of the bar and through other University sources. The number and amounts of awards depend on the funds available in relation to the applications received. Grants usually do not exceed the cost of tuition and may be less. Application for College of Law Scholarship aid should be made as early as possible and before April 15 regardless of admission status. Students should be aware that most scholarship determinations are not made until after a student has been accepted to the College of Law and has paid a tuition deposit. Forms for College of Law scholarships and other University financial aid can be obtained from the College of Law or the University Financial Aid Office. Law students and applicants for admission to the College of Law who need special assistance in obtaining scholarships or loans may consult the Associate Dean of the College.

In addition to general scholarships there are some endowed scholarships and other specially designated gifts which are restricted in nature. The following is a list of those scholarships available to law students:

John Todd Shelby Memorial Fund. Created by bequest from John Craig Shelby in honor of his father, scholarships from this fund are awarded to first-year students whose undergraduate records indicate a likelihood of outstanding success in law study.

Dorothy Salmon Fund. Established by alumni of the College of Law in memory of Dorothy Salmon, Professor of Law and Law Librarian from 1945 to 1968.

William Edward Mills Fund. Created by the members of the Class of 1969 in honor of Mills, a deceased classmate. Awards are conferred on students who exhibit good scholarship and show significant financial need.
Roy M. Moreland Fund. Established by a bequest from the will of Professor Roy M. Moreland, who taught in the law school from 1926 through 1966, this fund provides two scholarships annually for first-year students.

Frank Murray Fund. Established in memory of Frank Murray, Professor of Law from 1930 through 1951, for the purpose of assisting students with records of distinguished academic performance.

Paul Porter Scholarships. Established by the Washington D.C. law firm of Arnold and Porter to memorialize its deceased founding partner, Paul A. Porter, a former student at the College of Law. Awards are made to one member of each class based on scholastic promise and financial need.

Ashland Oil Foundation Fellowships. The Ashland Oil Foundation provides two scholarships for each entering class to students from eastern Kentucky who exhibit economic or cultural disadvantage.

The Peter D. Giachini Scholarship Fund. Established in 1969 by Peter D. Giachini, a 1932 graduate of the law school, this fund provides a $1,000 stipend to one student in the College of Law. Students are selected on the basis of high academic achievement.

J. Woodford Howard ’20 and Florence Stephens Howard Scholarship Fund. This endowed scholarship provides tuition scholarships to students from Floyd, Breathitt, Magoffin, or Morgan counties in Kentucky. Recipients must exhibit exemplary academic skills and potential for academic excellence, and must show financial need.

W. L. Matthews Scholarship. This scholarship is provided by the Fayette County Bar Association in honor of former Dean Matthews.

University Loans and Work-Study Programs

Loan programs and the College Work-Study program for students in the College of Law are administered by the University of Kentucky Student Financial Aid Office. Application for this assistance must be submitted to the Student Financial Aid Office as early as possible and no later than April 15, regardless of admission status. Acceptance as a student in the College of Law is not a precondition to aid application, but processing will not become final until acceptance does occur. Requests for information and application forms should be made to: Director, Student Financial Aid Office, Room 573 Patterson Office Tower, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Kentucky 40506.

National Direct Student Loans*

The National Direct Student Loan fund is the largest part of the University's loan program. This is a cooperative loan program made available on a fund-matching basis between the University and the federal government.
A student must demonstrate the need for a loan and the ability to do acceptable work at the University. The amount of the loan is determined primarily by the needs and resources of the student. However, by the terms of the Act, the aggregate loan cannot exceed $10,000 for students in professional schools.

Interest does not accrue and payments are not required while a borrower is a full-time student. The interest rate is four percent per year, but does not begin to accrue until the beginning of the tenth month after the borrower ceases to be a full-time student. The first payment is ordinarily scheduled to become due at the end of the first year a borrower is out of school.

Federally Insured Loans and Guaranteed Student Loans*

The University of Kentucky participates in the Kentucky State Guaranteed Loan Program. Through this program, a law student is eligible to borrow up to $5,000 a year. To be eligible for a Kentucky State Guaranteed Loan, a student must be a citizen or permanent resident of the United States and be enrolled or accepted at U.K. on at least a half-time basis.

Application materials are available through participating banks and lending agencies and the Office of Student Financial Aid. Interested students are encouraged to contact their local bank or lending agency. Students unable to secure a loan through a local bank may apply directly to the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority, 691 Teton Trail, Frankfort, KY 40601.

The College Work-Study Program

The Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, as amended by the Higher Education Act of 1972, provides funds to create part-time work opportunities for students from low-income families. The University has attempted to provide meaningful work experiences for law students in law-related areas. Eligibility on the basis of the student’s economic resources is determined by the Student Financial Aid Office, to which application should be made at or before the beginning of a term. Work assignments in the College of Law are coordinated by the Associate Dean of the College. Pay rate and hours of work are consistent with law school policies for part-time employment.

Part-Time Work

Part-time work exists on a limited basis for students in the College of Law, both as law library employees and, for students with advanced standing, as faculty research assistants. Selection criteria vary according to the job and usually include the student’s relevant experience and available time as well as his or her financial need. Inquiry should be made directly to the law library, the Associate Dean of the College, or individual faculty members shortly before a term begins.

Information Officers

The University has designated Mr. James Ingle, Student Financial Aid Office, Fifth Floor, Patterson Office Tower (606-258-8606) as the person who may be contacted by students who are seeking information required to be disseminated pursuant to Section 493 of the Higher Education Act of 1965. Prospective students at the Law School also may contact the Associate Dean of the College (606-258-8959).

This bulletin went to press before final action had been taken by Congress in Summer 1981 on President Reagan’s proposed budget cuts. Updated information will be supplied with financial aid application packets.
SCHOLASTIC REGULATIONS

Following is a synopsis of College of Law scholastic regulations. Copies of the complete regulations may be obtained from the Dean’s Office.

1. Students are governed by the Law Faculty Rules and Policies and the Code of Student Conduct of the University.

2. Grading System. The College of Law uses a letter grading system in which the following grades are given with the respective quality-point values indicated:

4. Class attendance. The College Faculty expects all law students to attend class. A student may be excluded from a course for excessive absences. If a student has been absent for 25 percent of the class meetings in any course, he or she may not take the final examination.

5. Degree requirements. Students admitted to the College of Law as regular students will be eligible for the degree of Juris Doctor (J.D.) upon completion of a minimum of three academic years of full-time law study in residence and 87 hours of course work in the College of Law with a grade-point average of 2.0 or better. All first-year courses, Professional Responsibility, and completion of an upperclass writing course are required for graduation.

6. Outside Work. Employment during the school semester often impairs a student’s ability to devote the time needed for full-time law school study. Accordingly, the law faculty strongly urges full-time students not to undertake any employment during their first or second semesters, except in extraordinary circumstances and only after consultation with the Dean’s Office. It is similarly urged that students during their third through final semesters not undertake employment for more than 15 hours per week.
7. Residency Requirements. College of Law students must complete six semesters in residence, subject to appropriate credits which may be allowed for work at other law schools. A student must have been enrolled in a minimum of 10 class hours a week in each semester, and must have passed a minimum of 9 such hours. Students authorized to take schedules for less than 10 hours in any academic semester receive residence credit on a proportional basis; residence credit for work done in summer sessions is given on a fractional basis. No College of Law student may graduate in less than three academic years or five semesters plus two summer sessions.

Confidentiality of Student Records

In accordance with the Family Education Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (Buckley Amendment), University of Kentucky students have the right to review, inspect, and challenge the accuracy of information kept in a cumulative file by the institution unless the student waives this right in writing. The Act provides that records cannot be released in other than emergency situations without the written consent of the student except in the following situations: (a) to other school officials, including faculty within the educational institution or local education agents who have a legitimate educational interest; (b) to officials of other schools or school systems in which the student intends to enroll, upon condition that the student be notified of the transfer, receive a copy of the record if desired, and have the opportunity for a hearing to challenge the content of the record; (c) to authorized representatives of (1) the Comptroller General of the United States, (2) the Secretary of HEW, (3) an Administrative Head of an Education Agency or (4) State Educational Authorities; (d) in connection with a student’s application for, and receipt of, financial aid; (e) where the information is classified as “directory information.” The following categories of information have been designated by the University as directory information: name, address, telephone listing, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, and the most recent previous educational institution attended by the student. If you do not wish such information to be released without your consent, notify the Registrar’s Office and the Dean’s Office at the College of Law prior to the first day of classes.

Questions concerning this law and the University policy concerning release of academic information may be directed to the Registrar’s Office or to the Associate Dean at the College of Law.
The education afforded by any good law school must accomplish four things. First, it must be sequential, that is, each semester or year of courses and other activities must build on previous learning and instruction, starting with the undergraduate preparation of a student and ending with his entrance into general practice, specialized employment, or graduate study. Second, the course of study must encourage a maximum of individual development which assures that every student learns to think analytically and critically and to take the personal initiative and responsibility required of professional conduct. The student must acquire sound, disciplined habits of factual investigation, legal research, and oral and written presentation which can follow throughout his professional career. Third, legal education must be practical. It must provide the opportunity for training in such techniques as drafting legal documents, advising clients, initiating lawsuits, arguing cases, and other skills crucial to the lawyer’s use of his knowledge and expertise in solving human problems and earning a living. Fourth, professional education should prepare the lawyer to meet his or her public responsibility as an officer of the court, as a community leader with special abilities, and as an elected or appointed official with varied duties and opportunities for public service.

The course of study and sponsored activities of the College of Law meet these four criteria. The following description of the first year of study is presented to acquaint the prospective law student with the experiences he or she may anticipate during three years of legal study.

The contents of the required first-year curriculum, substantially the same at all good law schools, form a solid foundation for successive years of legal education. In the first semester the student is introduced to the elements of procedure in civil cases in Practice and Procedure I, including the jurisdiction of courts over disputes and parties, and the chronology of events in the initiation, development, trial, and judgment of a lawsuit. This course not only acquaints the beginning law student with the ways legal questions are resolved through adjudication, but also assists him or her in understanding cases examined in other courses.
Torts, or civil wrongs, focuses upon the legal duties governing the conduct and relationships among persons and property and the rights of redress for personal and property losses. Contracts deals with the creation, interpretation, and enforcement of consensual agreements, that is, relationships deliberately formed without compulsion. Both Torts and Contracts provide a rich appreciation of the process by which Anglo-American law has evolved over the years through the accretion of court decisions.

Criminal Law takes up the substantive elements of offenses against society, persons, and property, penalized by criminal sanctions of fine and imprisonment.

In the remaining first-semester courses, Legal Bibliography, and Legal Research Tutorial, the student through a series of lectures and research questions is thoroughly familiarized with the uses and organization of the resource materials of the Law Library. In Legal Research Tutorial students are assigned to small class sections for individualized instruction and assistance, especially in legal research and writing. Legal Research Tutorial, as well as Moot Court competition (which begins in the second semester), invokes the student’s careful analysis of legal problems, requires extensive library research, and calls for forceful presentation, both written and oral. These courses, like the rest of the first-year curriculum, are a basic introduction to the law. They provide the foundation for all legal research for the law student and for the practicing lawyer.

The essential teaching and resource materials are casebooks containing actual decisions and opinions of courts (principally appellate courts of last resort). The casebook is arranged to show the historical evolution and conceptual development of legal doctrine, decision-making and reasoning peculiar to the Anglo-American common law tradition. In many instances this material is supplemented by descriptive literature explaining the context of the case and other law considered.

The student is expected to “brief” each case assigned for class discussion, that is, to analyze the decision and opinion of the court and to summarize the analysis in an abstract of the facts, procedure, issues, decision, and legal rules in the case. In class the instructor leads a discussion of the cases on the basis of the student’s prior briefing.

At the conclusion of the semester, the grade for each student is determined by a comprehensive (and usually lengthy) examination which, typically, poses several hypothetical legal situations or problems based on the course work and asks for analysis and conclusions in essay answers. With some exceptions in advanced course offerings and in seminars and professional experience options the same general methods of instruction and examination are followed throughout the law school curriculum.

In the second semester, Constitutional Law I explores the development of the United States Constitution as the primary law of the land from the time of its adoption to the present. The course concentrates on the division of authority between state and federal governments, among the three branches of federal government, and between the public and private sectors of business and society.

Property concerns the legally-protected rights and powers over real estate and personal property that comprise "ownership" and other interests. Like Torts and Contracts, this course has a strong historical orientation. In order fully to portray our present structure of property law, it traces the evolution of concepts from the period when possession was the primary indicium of ownership and when interests in land pervasively determined social status.

Commercial Law I (Sales) is an introductory course in statutory methodology which covers Article II of the Uniform Commercial Code. Practice and Procedure II is a continuation of Procedure I and focuses on the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.
THE CURRICULUM

Candidates for the degree of Juris Doctor must satisfactorily complete six semesters of full-time law study and 87 semester hours of credit in professional law subjects. Other courses related to legal training taught by members of the University faculty may be substituted for professional law courses to the extent of six of the required 87 semester hours, subject to the approval in each case by the Dean, obtained through the Associate Dean's Office. All first-year courses are required. The only required courses after the first year are Professional Responsibility and completion of an upperclass writing project under faculty supervision. The course of study is designed to be completed in six successive semesters of academic residence or, under an accelerated program, in five semesters and two eight-week summer sessions, allowing graduation in December of the student's third year.

During the second and third years, students may not register for fewer than 10 hours or for more than 15 hours in any one term. The recommended load is 15 hours. The minimum for residence credit as a full-time student is 10 hours per regular semester. During the summer session the recommended load is seven hours; the minimum for residence credit as a full-time student is five hours. The required and elective courses, seminars, and experience options included in the College of Law curriculum are subject to on-going curriculum revision and are offered each year, with certain exceptions to meet special needs, including student demands and staffing. The second- and third-year courses taught in the summer session, however, vary from year to year. For precise information about the schedule of courses for the particular school year, the student should refer to the schedule sheets distributed by the Dean's Office at the beginning of each semester.

LAW 897 POVERTY LAW (3)
An elective course for consideration of the kinds of legal problems shared by poor people, including legal services and disadvantages in administrative and other legal processes; treating also the practice of poverty law as to ethical, professional and economic issues, with appraisal of the policy implications and challenges of the 'rule of law in the welfare state' and emphasis on interrelationships among lawyers and professionals working with poor people.

LAW 898 ENVIRONMENTAL LAW (3)
An elective course for study of the role of the legal system in regulating the series of interrelated subsystems that make up the physical environment, including: water and air pollution, solid waste disposal, and strip mining. The legal problems and principles treated emphasize: the constitutional limitations on the public's power to implement planning proposals; the relationship between federal, state and local governments; the structure of agencies designed to regulate the quality of the environment; the standards for the exercise of administrative discretion; the openness of administrative hearing procedures; and the scope of judicial review of administrative decisions.

LAW 905 CONFLICT OF LAWS (3)
Nature of the subject, penal laws, procedure, judgments, domicile, capacity, form, particular subjects, litigation, family law, inheritance, foreign administrators.
LAW 908 COMPARATIVE LAW
Foreign legal materials are analyzed to determine how the normative ordering concepts and procedures of other cultures might aid in the solving of certain American legal dilemmas. Materials from the Scandinavian, Soviet, and Japanese systems of jurisprudence are those most closely scrutinized.

LAW 910 LABOR LAW
History, organization, and structure of American labor unions; obligations and prerogatives of employers; questions of representation; privileges and obligations of unions; collective bargaining and dispute settlement.

LAW 912 EMPLOYMENT LAW
This course surveys and examines that multitude of important legal doctrines, statutes and rules that regulate those rights and responsibilities of employers and workers which are not controlled by collectively bargained agreements. The structures for administering the more important areas of such regulation are also studied. The subject matter of this course affects most dimensions of the manner in which over three quarters of our Gross National Income is distributed. Course coverage includes: the law of individual employment contracts, special employment relations such as civil service, the employer's right to various forms of work products, the employer's responsibility for job health and safety, protection of the worker's property, worker responsibility for wrong-doing, wage-hour laws, vacation benefits, bonuses, retirement benefits, health insurance benefits, and unemployment compensation.

LAW 914 TORTS II
Torts II provides an in-depth study of important areas of tort law merely surveyed in the basic course. The course provides a contemporary view of the torts process, particularly the areas of defamation, privacy, products liability and no-fault insurance. In addition, the course covers tort immunities, unjustifiable litigation, misrepresentation, and recent developments in tort theory and practice.

LAW 915 FAMILY LAW
Contracts to marry; the marriage status; annulment, divorce and separation; parent and child; infants and incompetent persons.

LAW 920 ADMINISTRATIVE LAW

Clinical Experiences
The College of Law offers several clinical programs in which students can exercise and practice lawyer skills, such as investigation, interviewing, counseling, negotiation, and trial advocacy. Through the Clinic, third-year students are placed in a practical setting with Central Kentucky Legal Services, Inc.

Through the Legal Intern Program, third-year students can practice under a Rule of the Supreme Court of Kentucky. These students are certified as legal interns and are entitled to appear in court on behalf of persons unable to employ counsel or on behalf of the Commonwealth, under the supervision of members of the bar and through the auspices of one of the College of Law programs.

Practice Court

More than 50 years ago, the College of Law became one of the first law schools in the country to make a practice court program a part of the curriculum. Third-year students act as counsel, witnesses, and jurors at realistic trials conducted weekly in the courtroom of the law building.

The College of Law also offers other “clinical” courses such as Litigation Skills, Negotiation and Arbitration seminar, and Pre-trial Procedure Seminar.

Research Projects

Third-year students are authorized to earn up to three hours of academic credit each semester in programs of independent research and study. To qualify for participation in the program, a student must obtain the sponsorship of a faculty member who agrees to recommend the student's project and to oversee his work. The Dean must approve each project; approval should be sought well in advance of registration for the course. The program is designed to permit and encourage students to undertake individual work of legal and social significance that goes beyond the opportunities for research otherwise available.
In addition to preparing students academically for a career, the College of Law recognizes the responsibility of helping them develop knowledge about, and access to, the career paths that exist in today's socioeconomic structure.

At the College of Law, services related to career planning and placement are offered through the Career Development Center, an office supervised by an Associate Dean. Center sponsored seminars and summer placement activities give students an opportunity to learn first hand about the career options open to law trained people. Through workshops and personal counseling, assistance is provided in developing necessary job search skills and making key career decisions.

Overall, University of Kentucky law alumni practice throughout the nation and in several foreign countries. In any given year, new graduates will locate in approximately 15 states, selecting a wide range of practice opportunities. Our experience in 1979, 1980, and 1981 indicates that by the time bar examination results are released in October, 100% of the class will have confirmed employment.
CO-CURRICULAR PROGRAM

Kentucky Law Journal

The Kentucky Law Journal is the tenth oldest of the law reviews published by the nation's law schools. Publication has been continuous since 1912. Four issues are published annually by the College of Law. The Journal is edited entirely by a student editorial board, with guidance from a faculty advisor. Each issue contains articles and book reviews written by prominent scholars in legal and related fields and Notes and Comments written by Journal members. In addition to the value of the information supplied its readers, the Journal provides an excellent educational experience for its student members, who are selected through a competitive candidacy program. They acquire skills in legal research, analysis, and writing that supplement the training of the law school curriculum. More importantly, as authors of Notes and Comments they have an opportunity to communicate to a large and influential audience their criticisms of law and society, their solutions for modern problems, and their concept of justice.

Moot Court

The Moot Court Program, designed to afford training in the use of the law library, the analysis and solution of legal problems, the drafting of memoranda and briefs, and the presentation of oral arguments is required of all first-year students. The Moot Court Board conducts an extensive upper-class program, which is elective for second-year students. Several rounds of brief writing and oral arguments in the third and fourth semesters are organized in the form of an elimination competition. The Moot Court Board, the National Moot Court Team, and teams to represent the school in inter-school competition are drawn from these competitors. Judges are selected from the bench and bar, faculty, and members of the Moot Court Board.

International Law Society

Society members meet with interested faculty members to discuss current topics of international concern. Panel discussions, films, and distinguished speakers are sponsored in conjunction with the Patterson School of Diplomacy to promote awareness of international legal developments. The Society also participates in the selection of members of the team representing the University of Kentucky at the annual Phillip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition.
STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Student Bar Association

Through its committees and activities, the Student Bar Association is the voice of the law student in the formation of law school policy and the student governing organization for law students. SBA members sit on most faculty committees and are involved significantly in the operation of the College of Law. The SBA is affiliated with the Law Student Division of the American Bar Association.

All students are members of the Student Bar Association. The SBA each year assists with student orientation, housing, recreation, and placement. Its weekly forum brings to the College of Law attorneys and other persons to speak on current topics relating to law students' professional education.

Legal Fraternities

Three of the leading national legal fraternities, Phi Alpha Delta, Phi Delta Phi, and Delta Theta Phi, have chapters at the College of Law. Their purpose is to maintain and elevate the professional and ethical standards of the legal profession and to provide worthwhile social organizations that foster enduring friendships and helpful associations within the profession. Any student is free to join the fraternity of his or her choice after the first-semester of law study.

Order of the Coif

The Order of the Coif is a national honor society to which approximately 10 percent of the highest ranking students in each graduating class are elected on the basis of their academic records.

Women's Law Caucus

The Women's Law Caucus was formed in response to the needs of the increasing number of women entering the legal profession. It is an informal association which strives to foster an understanding of the legal rights of women and improve the position of women in the legal profession.
Balsa—Black American Law Student Association

The University of Kentucky Chapter of BALSA was established to articulate and promote the professional needs and goals of black law students; to foster and encourage professional confidence; to focus upon the relationship of the black attorney to the American legal structure; to instill in the black attorney and the black law student a greater awareness of and commitment to the needs of the black community; and to influence law schools, legal fraternities, and associations to use their expertise and prestige to bring about change within the legal system in order to make it responsive to the needs of the black community.

Christian Legal Fellowship

The Christian Legal Fellowship is an independent, non-denominational association of Christian law students. The CLF was organized to provide a forum for discussion of the difficulties facing Christians who are entering the legal community, as well as to promote fellowship and interaction among the Christians enrolled at Law School. The meetings of the CLF are usually informal, with discussion focused upon the practical and moral problems encountered by the Christian attorney or judge.
