General Information

The University

The University of Kentucky was founded February 22, 1865. Its organizational structure includes: colleges of Arts and Sciences, Agriculture, Law, Engineering, Education, Business and Economics, Medicine, Dentistry, Nursing, Pharmacy; Allied Health Professions; the Graduate School; schools of Journalism, Home Economics, Diplomacy, and Architecture; the division of University Extension; a state-wide Community College system; and a number of bureaus, agencies, and institutes with research and service responsibilities.

The main campus of the University has been located at Lexington, Fayette County, Kentucky, since the founding of the institution, and contains more than 120 permanent buildings. Lexington is a community of some 150,000 inhabitants, situated in the heart of the beautiful Blue Grass region of central Kentucky.

A small city in itself, the University has its own post office, book store, radio station, newspaper, theater, police force, museums, and hospital. Campus life is regulated largely by the students themselves, through the Student Congress. More than 100 other student organizations include honorary, professional, leadership, religious, forensic, literary, social, athletic, music, art, and many other societies.

Plays, concerts, lectures, motion pictures, athletic contests, art exhibits, book exhibits, social events and traditional observances are presented throughout the year.

The enrollment of students at the Lexington campus in September, 1967 was 14,800.
The College of Law

The College of Law was established in 1908 as a college of the University, under the chairmanship of Judge W. T. Lafferty. In 1912 it was extended to membership in the Association of American Law Schools and began publication of its law journal, the Kentucky Law Journal. In 1925 the College was placed on the approved list of the American Bar Association. In 1937 the College moved into the newly constructed Lafferty Hall, which was occupied until August 1965. The College now occupies a handsome new building of library design constructed in 1965. Located on the central campus on South Limestone Street, north of Memorial Hall, this new Law Building is planned and designed to provide all of the physical facilities required for a modern program of legal education. These facilities include Court Room-Auditorium; the Law Library; 11 rooms; five seminar-conference rooms; faculty offices; and offices for the Kentucky Law Review, the Moot Court Board, the Legal Aid Society, the Student Bar Association, the Journal of Education, and visiting attorneys and others related to the Law School for research and study. The College of Law is accredited by all agencies establishing standards for law schools, including the Court of Appeals of Kentucky, the Association of American Law Schools, the American Bar Association, and the Courts and Bar Examiners of all states. It has a chapter of the Order of the Coif, the national honor society for the recognition of excellence in law study, and its law review, the Kentucky Law Journal, is listed on all recognized lists of law periodicals. Its library of 90,000 volumes is among the largest in the South and East, recognized for the completeness of its collection.

The program of the College is conducted by a faculty of twenty-three members. They are assisted by various part-time teaching associates, research associates employed periodically, and library and secretarial staff of seventeen. Members of the teaching faculty are well qualified by formal training and experience to teach law, to guide students in the solution of legal problems, and to add to legal knowledge through research. Almost all have done graduate work in law and have practiced law successfully; a majority have taught in a number of different law schools.

Presently, in addition to the full-time faculty of 23, the adjunct instructors number 4, the college staff 11, and the Law Library staff 6.

Studying Law

One who chooses law as a career can expect to find that the study of law is an interesting and challenging phase in his educational life. This is especially true if he devotes himself to mastering thoroughly the basic knowledge and skills of a lawyer and seeks to understand the majesty and value of the law as a contemporary social institution for good in modern society. While studying law one should also explore related fields of knowledge which provide the full context and setting for legal problems and the proper functioning of legal institutions.

This kind of legal education can be achieved best under the instruction and guidance of an experienced and scholarly faculty and in concert with other students of diverse background and intellectual interests. The study of law also should be a very personal endeavor involving individual experience and development. The individual student should pursue the study of law as a personal educational opportunity in an academic environment and place suitable to his particular interests and purposes.

For this reason, selecting a law school requires factual information about the school's traditions, aims, resources, facilities, instructional program, research, public service, and many other factors which contribute to the educational opportunities available there. This Bulletin is published to portray his sort of information about the University of Kentucky College of Law, and should be read and fully with that purpose in mind.

The Instructional Program

The instructional program of the College is designed to provide the individual student with a sound education in law of lasting quality. It involves a great deal more than the mere study of legal principles; and the program is planned to assist the student in acquiring the skills that solution of modern legal problems requires, to acquaint him with related and interdisciplinary fields of knowledge, to make certain that he has an appreciation for and understanding of the social, and political institutions on which the administration of justice rests, to prepare him for the rapid and ethical decisions he must make on the community in practicing his profession, and short, to give him broad, practical, basic training of unmatched excellence that will permitted development of his legal capacities out his career.

methods of formal and informal instruction emphasized:

Procedure in Class. In the classroom the student and instructor discuss fundamentally important legal cases or lawsuits as they have been decided by the courts of last resort in the various locations of this country and England. This discussion gives the student a systematic background of knowledge about principles of law and a method to learn to solve a legal problem by working through it as well as by comparing and analyzing cases. Just as the unique structure of Anglo-American common law rests on court decisions, so the law student builds his knowledge of the law on a study of actual cases. This case and problem method is used also in school examinations.

Skills and Techniques. Practical techniques of a lawsuit started, writing legal documents, arguing a case, finding the law, advising clients and clients, are skills through which the lawyer uses his knowledge to solve human problems and earn a living. The opportunity for this type of training occurs both in class and out. The Practicum, the Law Clubs, the Procedure courses, seminars, the Summer Apprenticeship Program, the course in Legal Bibliography, Aid, Legal Method, Legal Research and Writing, and Law Journal Note Editing are designed to give the student some idea of how he will practice his profession. Some of the substantive or theory courses also include projects designed to promote this type of training, such as preparing an abstract of title to property or drafting a contract or a will.

(3) Legal Writing. A lawyer spends a great part of his time communicating ideas and solutions to the courts, to his clients, and to the public which he serves. Without good skill in clear, concise, and accurate written and oral expression he cannot hope to put his legal knowledge to full use. Thus strong emphasis is placed on this phase of the student's legal instruction and training. Every student in the College who is not a member of the law review staff must complete at least two legal writing courses, and all students are required to take one seminar in which written research papers are prepared. This training, together with the experience gained in preparing appellate briefs in the law club competition and in writing for the law review, gives all students a real opportunity to improve their writing and research ability.

(4) Individual Study and Research. On the theory that a substantial part of the law student's training and nearly all of the lawyer's post-school development are the result of his own individual study and effort, this type of work is emphasized and encouraged at all times. A large and well-selected Law Library is an integral part of the College and is in constant use. A varied and interesting seminar program is offered. The Kentucky Law Journal, one of the country's oldest and important legal periodicals, is published by the students and faculty to afford an opportunity for individual training in the solution of legal problems through research and writing. Since 1966 the Journal of Legal Education (official organ of the Association of American Law Schools) has been edited at the University of Kentucky, with law professors as editor and associate editors. Members of the faculty engage in fundamental legal research and often students help them on it. Best of all, perhaps, the size of the student body, the number of faculty members, and even the physical arrangement of the Law Building help to create a situation where the counseling of individual students by the faculty is frequent and a distinctive feature of the College's tradition.

The Course of Study

The three academic years of law study cover a general law curriculum designed to be completed six semesters, or five semesters and two summer sessions of 8 weeks each. The 83 semester hours the J.D. degree include certain required courses, certain required courses in legal research and writing, one seminar (from a group of nineteen in the third year), certain elective courses, and three hours from a group of six professional experience options offered in the third year. The total number of hours taken in six semesters by the degree candidate can vary from 83 to 88.

All courses (including seminars and electives) are offered each year with an occasional exception to meet special needs. The fall semester offerings and the spring semester offerings are the same each year (with rare exceptions), but the courses taught in the summer sessions will vary. Except when special exception is made, all of the courses in the first two semesters are required courses. Third and fourth semester courses are elective except for 0. Fifth and sixth semester courses are elective except for 0. In general the course of study should be taken in the sequence created by the classification of courses as first year, second year, and third year.

The normal student load per semester is 14; the maximum is 15 (exclusive of military or air science); the minimum for full residence credit as a full-time student is 10, and the minimum allowed is 9. An 8-week summer session is held in which the student may earn a maximum of 7 hours and a minimum of 3. No beginning students are admitted the summer and no first year courses are offered the summer.

Below is a listing of law courses by year and semester with the required and elective courses indicated. If read in order it will show the complete course of study for the student carrying a normal load who expects to earn the J.D. degree in six semesters. All courses listed comprise the normal annual offerings of the College. Detailed course descriptions are given in the University of Kentucky General Catalogue. The program of courses is structured only for full-time, or substantial part-time, students who can attend a daytime schedule of classes. No evening classes are offered.

Prelegal Study, Admission, and Scholastic Regulations

Prelegal Study

Students enter the College of Law following prelegal study in many different colleges and universities throughout the country. In the academic year 1966-67, 122 institutions were represented and about 20% of the student body was from states other than Kentucky.

No fixed, comprehensive prelaw curriculum is prescribed by this or any other American law school. However, prospective law students should keep in mind that a broad, basic, and liberal education will equip one to study law and also prepare him for a vital role in the community once he has acquired his professional training. Thus he should pursue a degree program in prelaw in which he will learn to think clearly, will form sound study habits, and will have an opportunity to master the methodology and knowledge of a particular field under the guidance of good instructors. As a general rule courses in English, accounting, logic, philosophy, a foreign language, speech, political science, history, the physical sciences, sociology, psychology, business administration, and the social and behavioral sciences lend themselves to the breadth of background needed by a law student and a lawyer.

The importance of a sound background in use of the English language cannot be stressed too greatly. A fundamental knowledge of grammar, a good vocabulary, an ability to read rapidly with understanding, an ability to express one's thoughts in a clear and organized fashion, are all absolutely essential to success in the study of law. Any prelaw student who is deficient in English should take immediate steps to correct the situation by taking additional English courses, by seeking remedial help, and by self-study. Otherwise he may be seriously handicapped in the study of law and may even jeopardize his admission to law school.

Combined-Degree Programs

A. FOR PRELAW STUDENTS AT THE UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY

An Arts-Law combined-degree program, in which both the A.B. and J.D. degrees can be earned in six academic years, is available at the University of Kentucky in the College of Arts and Sciences. In this program the first year of law work (30 semester hours) is credited to both the A.B. degree earned in the University of Kentucky College of Arts and Sciences and the J.D. degree earned from the College of Law. Under this program, if the prelaw student during his first three years in the College of Arts and Sciences earns 100 semester hours (excluding physical education) and satisfies all course requirements for the A.B. degree, he is admitted to the College of Law at the beginning of his fourth year and receives the A.B. degree from the College of Arts and Sciences at the end of that year. He then continues in the College of Law for two more years and receives the J.D. degree.

Requirements for the A.B. degree in the College of Arts and Sciences are described in the University of Kentucky General Catalogue and detailed information about the first three years in this combined-degree program can be obtained from the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

B. FOR PRELAW STUDENTS AT OTHER INSTITUTIONS

A combined-degree program which gives the undergraduate degree (A.B. or B.S.) and the law degree (J.D.) in six years frequently can be worked out by the prelaw student who does not take his prelaw work at the University of Kentucky. If the undergraduate college concerned is willing, the College of Law will make available to it the 20 semester hours of work in law which the student earns in his first year of law study here. If b undergraduate degree requirements have satisfied before admission to law school, the year of law normally will furnish enough “elective hours to complete the degree. Since the graduate degree is awarded by the undergraduate college and not by the College of Law, students should consult their college dean of law advisers about arranging this program. Dean of the College of Law will, upon request, furnish additional information about this program to those interested.

Special Note: Rules for admission by examination for bar in Ohio and (after January 1, 1969) Tennessee provide that one must have earned his undergraduate degree through four years of prelaw study to entering a law school. Combined-degree programs do not satisfy this rule, and prelaw students who may desire to seek bar admission in the mentioned, or in any other state having a bar rule, should plan to earn an undergraduate degree before entering a law school.

Admission

A. PROCEDURE FOR APPLICATION

Dean of Admissions and Registrar of the University of Kentucky is the admitting officer for College of Law. Application for admission is by submitting to his office a completed application form together with supporting transcripts. Application form can be obtained by writing Dean of Admissions and Registrar or to the College of Law.

An application, and supporting transcripts of completed prelaw college work, may be submitted or before March 1 in the year when admission is sought. If the applicant’s transcripts of completed work are received by this date and meet admission requirements, he will be granted provisional admission for the following fall term, subject to satisfactory completion of his remaining work. Applications received after March 1 evaluated as promptly as possible and usually applicant will be notified of his admission within 30 days after the final transcripts are received. Applications must be received 30 days before the opening of the term each year to be considered for admission.

Running law students are accepted only for the mester (fall term) of the academic year, and admission for the second semester (spring term) is granted except in rare instances where an applicant has a very special need and has the level of academic record necessary to assure satisfactory work under the handicaps of beginning at midyear. Any applicant seeking second semester admission should consult the Dean of the College of Law in advance for an interpretation of the program-making difficulties which are involved.

B. NATIONAL LAW SCHOOL ADMISSION TEST

All applicants must submit a national Law School Admission Test score. The LSAT is prepared, given, and scored by the Educational Testing Service, P.O. Box 944, Princeton, New Jersey 08540, and application to take it is made directly to the Service by mail. It is given in November, February, April, and July or August of each year at testing centers throughout the country according to a schedule of dates and places published well in advance by the Educational Testing Service. The University of Kentucky in Lexington is a testing center for all scheduled dates of the test. The test application to the Educational Testing Service should be received in Princeton at least three weeks prior to the next testing date.

C. REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

In addition to the general requirements for admission to the University, an applicant for admission to the College of Law must meet the following requirements:

1. The applicant must have received a bachelor’s degree from an accredited institution or be on a combined-degree program which will entitle him to the bachelor’s degree before he completes requirements for the J.D. degree.
2. The applicant must have taken the Law School Admission Test.
3. The applicant must have achieved a prelaw grade point average (on all college work attempted) and a Law School Admission Test score according to the following criteria:
   a. Those applicants having at least a 2.5 average and at least a 475 LSAT score will be admitted;
   b. Those applicants having at least a 2.4 average and at least a 500 LSAT score will be admitted;
   c. Those applicants having at least a 2.3 average and at least a 525 LSAT score will be admitted;
   d. Those applicants not having the combination of grade point average and LSAT score...
Admissions to the College of Law will be considered for admission by the Admissions Committee on the basis of their individual applications and may be admitted at the discretion of the Admissions Committee.

The Admissions Committee will give consideration to the prelaw grade record, the Law School Admission Test score, the academic improvement in the prelaw grade record, and the applicant's aptitude for law study. Applicants with a grade point average of less than 2.0 on all college attempted will not be considered. Applicants with a grade point average below 2.3 and an LSAT below 450 will not be admitted.

An applicant who has been previously enrolled in another law school will be admitted only if he has good standing in a law school which is a member of the Association of American Law Schools, if he has the requirements for beginning students at College of Law of the University of Kentucky, if he has made an academic average in law school, had it been made in the College of Law of the University of Kentucky, would entitle him to continue his studies here.

The Degree of Juris Doctor

Students admitted to the College of Law as regular students will be eligible for the degree of Doctor (J.D.) upon completion of a minimum of three academic years (six semesters) of residence, and 83 semester hours of courses, in the College of Law, with an academic standing of 60 or above.

Grading System

The College of Law uses a numerical grading system and the student's official academic grade is expressed as a weighted numerical average. The average is computed by multiplying the semester hours of credit for each course taken by the numerical grade received in the course. These products are added together and the sum is divided by the total semester hours attempted. The numerical average serves as the basis for each student's academic status according to published rules and policies of the law faculty.

For the purpose of interpreting numerical grades in relation to letter grades (which are used in other parts of the University), the following scale may be used:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>85 or above</th>
<th>75-84</th>
<th>Below 50</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>A</td>
<td>B</td>
<td>C</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Scholastic Regulations

All students in the College of Law must maintain satisfactory attendance and grades as provided in the Rules of the University Senate and in the Academic Regulations and Policies of the Law Faculty which are issued annually and posted on the bulletin board in the Law Building. Students having a cumulative standing in law of less than 60 at the end of the second semester, or who fail to maintain a cumulative average of 60 in the semester thereafter, will be dropped for poor scholarship. After the first semester, and regardless of the cumulative average, a student will be dropped if he fails to achieve an average of 56 in any particular semester, or receives a grade of less than 50 in two or more courses in one semester. The law faculty may drop any student at any time whose academic performance does not merit his continuation in the study of law, and readmission is granted only by the faculty upon written petition showing cause.

Expenses, Housing, and Financial Aid

Registration and Special Fees

Full-time students:
- Fall and spring semesters: $140 per semester for Kentucky residents, $410 per semester for nonresidents
- Summer session: $80 for Kentucky residents, $220 for nonresidents

Part-time students, regular term:
- $14 per semester hour for Kentucky residents, $41 per semester hour for nonresidents

Part-time students, summer term:
- $16 per semester hour for Kentucky residents, $44 per semester hour for nonresidents

This fee is the only charge made to the law student by the University and includes class instruction, health and infirmary service, admission to athletic contests, convocations, use of libraries, use of the Student Center, a discount on admissions to the Guignol Theatre, admission to the Central Kentucky Concert-Lecture Series, and subscription to the Kentucky Kernel (the University newspaper) and the Kentucky Law Journal. The fee is subject to change without notice.

Books

The average cost per semester for books and materials used in the study of law is about $100 if books are purchased without trading in old books. If second-hand books are purchased and old books are traded in, the average cost per semester is about $60. Law books may be purchased at the University Book Store or at book stores off-campus.

Books and materials to be used in each course are announced by the instructor on the College of bulletin board a few days before the opening of each term.

Housing

Law students arrange their own housing in residence halls or quarters maintained by the University or in private residences in the city.

University housing for all students is under the administration of the University of Kentucky Housing Office and all requests for information as well as applications should be directed to that office. An approved list of private residences may be obtained also.

University residence halls the cost for both men and women is $425 per semester for room and board and meals per day.

The University has modern apartment residence halls for married students which are near the College of Law and many married law students live there. Efficiency, one-bedroom, and two-bedroom apartments in these units rent for $80, $95, $105, including basic furnishings, utilities, and maintenance. Comparable available housing in the city is slightly higher. Married law students, together with graduate students, medical students, other professional students, have first and equal priority for assignment to married student apartment units operated by the University, as available space will allow. The demand for University apartments is great, however, and application should be made as early as possible directly to the University Housing Office.

Other Expenses

Student expenses for items other than registration fee, books, housing, and meals are not great and depend on the habits of the individual student. General such costs in Lexington are comparable to those in cities of similar size.

Scholarships and Student Loans

Scholarships for students in the College of Law called "Kentucky Law Scholarships" and are awarded on the basis of academic ability, character, and financial need. This scholarship aid is made possible through the annual contributions of alumni and members of the bar, and the selection of recipients is made by a committee of the faculty and the bar. The number of awards made as well as the amounts granted is dependent on the funds available in relation to the applications received. Because the fee costs of the student are comparatively modest, scholarship grants usually do not exceed $200 to $300 and may be less. The selection committee usually acts in the summer before the fall term and applications for scholarship aid should be made before June 1, but after the student has applied for College of Law admission. Application is made on forms obtained from the office of the Dean of the College of Law and all inquiries for information concerning these scholarships should be directed to that office.

Financial assistance in the form of loans is available to students in the College of Law through the University of Kentucky Student Financial Aid Office. The University participates in the National Defense Education Act Loan Program, for which law students are eligible, and special loans for second and third year law students are available under an American Bar Association loan program. The amount of the loan is determined primarily by the needs and resources of the student. Requests for loan information and the application for a loan should be made to: Director, Student Financial Aid, Frazee Hall, University of Kentucky, Lexington 40506. Law students and applicants for admission to the College of Law who need special assistance in obtaining a loan may consult the Dean of the College of Law.

Part-Time Work

Some part-time work on an hourly pay basis is available to selected law students in the College of Law, both in the Law Library and in the research program. Part-time work is available also elsewhere on the campus and in the city. The University operates the Student Part-Time Employment Service (Office of School Relations) for the assistance of all students in finding part-time employment. It is in Frazee Hall and should be consulted directly.

Because the study of law is a full-time pursuit, law students who expect to carry a full academic program are advised to keep their outside, part-time work to a minimum. Part-time work of less than 20 hours per week, if well planned as to time, is permissible. All law students are required to certify the amount of outside work being undertaken at the beginning of each term, and those with more than 20 hours per week are required to reduce their academic loads proportionately.

Special Facilities and Programs

THE LAW LIBRARY

More than 90,000 carefully selected volumes, including several thousand currently being accessioned, are contained in the Law Library, making it one of the finest in the South. It has the statutes and reports of all states and of the federal jurisdictions and England, and the important legal digests, citators, encyclopedias, annotated cases, and treatises; it also receives some 338 legal periodicals and a number of loose-leaf services regularly. Substantial additions are made annually. Many of the most frequently used volumes are available to students in the reading room without formality, and most other books can be obtained by a student in a matter of seconds.

The King Library, the general library of the University, is readily available to law students. It already contains more than 1,000,000 volumes and is one of the fastest-growing libraries in the South. An official U.S. Government depository, it contains numerous volumes of invaluable legal research materials.

KENTUCKY LAW JOURNAL

Of the seventy law reviews published by the nation's law schools, the Kentucky Law Journal is the tenth oldest. Publication has been continuous since 1912. Four issues are published annually by the College of Law.

The Journal is edited by a student editorial board under the supervision of a faculty editor. Each issue contains, in addition to important leading articles written by legal scholars, notes on important selected topics and recent cases, written by students. Their preparation affords valuable training to the students in the analysis of legal problems and in the use of a law library.

Student representatives attend meetings of the Southern Law Review Conference and of the National Law Review Conference each year.

THE LAW CLUBS

Moot Court Law Clubs are operated by the students, with the advice and assistance of the faculty and other members of the bar, for the purpose of affording training and experience in competitive oral argument and brief-writing. The majority of the Clubs are named for Kentuckians who have been members of the Supreme Court of the United States. The students engage in an annual series of legal arguments before practicing lawyers and judges, with the four winning student lawyers going to Frankfort to conduct an argument before the Court of Appeals of Kentucky each year. The three most successful students in the Law Club Competitions represent the College in the National Moot Court Competition sponsored by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York.

SUMMER APPRENTICESHIP PROGRAM

Through this program, arrangements are made for law students who so desire to spend several weeks during the summer as apprentices in the offices of outstanding lawyers and law firms or be employed for legal work by selected agencies of state government. The student may serve such apprenticeship following his first year or second year in law school, or both. The Kentucky State Bar Association assists in placing the students in the program.

LAW DAY

A day set aside in the spring is known as "Law Day" at the University. A feature of the day may be an address by an outstanding member of the profession, or a panel discussion by practicing lawyers who are qualified to speak on the chosen topic. Other Law Day events may include interclub competitive arguments by the members of the Law Clubs, a "Recognition Program" in honor of graduating seniors and other law students who have won honors during the year, a demonstration trial staged by seniors, and the annual Student Bar Association dinner dance.

CONVOCATIONS

Each year a series of talks by successful judges and practitioners is presented to the law students. These talks cover a variety of subjects supplemental to the normal curriculum. The Student Bar Association sponsors a weekly forum of prominent speakers. Two or three law school convocations are also held annually, usually to hear addresses of exceptional interest to law students particularly outstanding speakers in fields other than law.

PRACTICE COURT

The College, more than fifty years ago, became one of the first law schools in the country to me
Practice Court an integral part of the curriculum. Students act as judges, counsel, witnesses, and jurors, and realistic trials are conducted weekly in courtroom in the Law Building. The trials open to the student body.

Federal and State Courts
Both the Federal District Court for Eastern Kentucky and the Fayette County Circuit Court are in session in Lexington. In addition, the capital, Frankfort, where the Court of Appeals Kentucky and other branches of the state government are located, is only some twenty-five miles away.

Continuing Legal Education
In cooperation with the Kentucky State Bar Association and the Fayette County Bar Association, College conducts a continuous program of continuing legal education for the bar, including non-law short courses and annual institutes on selected topics of general interest to the legal profession and other groups.

Research Program
The law faculty, frequently assisted by students, devotes a substantial part of its professional work to legal research and publication. These research projects in all phases of the law (and related fields) greatly contribute to the quality of instruction as well as to improvement of legal knowledge and the administration of justice.

In addition, sponsored research projects in various public law fields are undertaken by the College. In part by contracts and grants, they provide additional research opportunities for students and faculty.

Legal Aid Program
The College of Law operates a well-established legal aid program in cooperation with the Fayette County Bar Association, and the bar associations surrounding counties. In this program, advanced students have the opportunity to interview indigent clients, to be in court, to assist practicing attorneys, to gain valuable clinical experience in the solution of legal problems, both civil and criminal.

Student Organizations, Awards, and Services
Order of the Coif
The College of Law and about one-third of thefrared law schools of the nation have been granted charters by the Order of the Coif, an honor society for the recognition of excellence in legal scholarship. Charters are granted only to law schools of recognized all-around excellence, and membership by selection is limited to those students who complete the three years in the top 10% of their class academically and demonstrate outstanding academic ability.

Student Bar Association
The Student Bar Association is the law students' social and intellectual forum. It is affiliated with the Law Student Division of the American Bar Association, and student delegates attend national conventions of the American Bar Association. The Student Bar Association brings prominent judges and attorneys to speak to the law students, holds regular meetings at which action is taken on a wide variety of matters of interest to the students, and sponsors occasional luncheons and dinner dances. All law students are members of the Association.

Legal Fraternities
Three of the leading national legal fraternities, Phi Alpha Delta, Phi Delta Phi and Delta Theta Phi, have chapters at the University of Kentucky College of Law. A chapter of Kappa Beta Pi, international legal sorority, was installed in 1966. All are active in the promotion of their purposes to maintain and elevate the professional and ethical standards of the legal profession, and to provide worthwhile social organizations as sources of enduring friendships and helpful associations within the profession.

Placement
In their senior year all graduates of the College receive assistance in their placement in the legal profession, from the office of the Dean and from the University of Kentucky Placement Service. Representatives from law firms, corporate legal departments, government agencies (federal and state), and the military services come to the College each year to interview third year students interested in various branches of legal work. The general demand for law graduates with good academic records is excellent and is certain to remain strong in a period of rising population and good economic conditions.

Admission to the Bar
Upon receiving his J.D. degree, the graduate of the College of Law is qualified to take the bar examination in any state or jurisdiction.

In Kentucky, and many other states, the initial application to take the bar examination leading to admission to practice must be filed at the time of, or soon after, entrance into law school. Students who intend to practice in Kentucky will be informed by the office of the Dean shortly after enrollment regarding information on this and other regulations concerning admission to the Kentucky bar. (The Kentucky State Bar Examiners have fixed the application fee at $15 for residents, and $100 for nonresidents.) Others should investigate the requirements of the states where they expect to practice; the Dean’s office will assist upon request.

Prizes and Awards

A number of cash prizes and valuable book awards are made each year to students in the College of Law who have excelled in their academic work or performed exceptionally well in various extracurricular activities, such as the law review, the law club competition, the title-abstracting project, and the practice court. Presently, the following donors contribute prizes and awards for this purpose, and the College is most grateful to them for their contribution to its academic program.
