College of Law
Bulletin 1971-72

The study of law should be a very personal endeavor of individual experience and development. The student needs an academic environment suitable to his particular interests and purposes. He needs the instruction and guidance of an experienced and able faculty working together with a student body of diverse backgrounds and interests. For these reasons, selecting a law school requires factual information about the school’s traditions, goals, resources, facilities, curriculum, student activities, research programs and public service.

The College of Law

History
The College of Law, established in 1908 as the fourth College of the University, is fully accredited by all agencies which establish standards for law schools, including the Association of American Law Schools, the American Bar Association, and the courts and boards of bar examiners of all fifty states. Since 1912 the College has published the Kentucky Law Journal, which is recognized on all lists of leading legal periodicals. The law library of 115,000 volumes is acknowledged as one of the outstanding collections in the South and East.

General Program
The College of Law conducts a three-year program leading to the Juris Doctor (J.D.) degree. The curriculum and sponsored activities afford a thorough education both in legal skills and in related knowledge which prepares graduates for a wide range of careers in private practice, public service, business management and other creative and rewarding work. Like all state-supported law schools, the University of Kentucky College of Law exercises a special responsibility for legal service and leadership in its jurisdiction. Like nationally-oriented law schools, the College proceeds on the premise that excellence in legal education cannot be attained by concentrating on the laws and institutions of a single state jurisdiction. Instead it requires thorough training in the skills of legal advocacy, decision-making, systems of public and private ordering, and broader social institutions and goals pervading the nation, the Anglo-American common law world and beyond. State responsibility and national orientation converge in a legal education which in the laboratory of a not atypical state prepares a graduate for practice and other employment anywhere.

Curriculum
The College faculty continually examines and revises the curriculum to assure that it reflects developments in law, in legal practice, in relationships with other professions, and in social institutions and cultural patterns. While a series of required courses makes up the first year of study—in conformity with good practices in any specialized educational program, students in their second and third years choose from a wide variety of courses, seminars, and professional experience activities. By careful use of elective opportunities, each student can fashion a legal education which best conforms with his vocational goals.

Faculty
The faculty of the College of Law varies in age, experience, geographic origin and professional specialization. The 21 full-time professors and several adjunct teachers, assisted by 18 staff members, are experienced through prior teaching, active practice, and concentrated research. Their articles, books and other writings are published nationally. Limitation on teaching duties and a tradition of “open doors” permit a very full faculty-student interchange in classroom discussion, professional activity, research projects and informal associations.

Student Body and Alumni

In recent years the enrollment in the three classes of the College of Law has averaged about 450 men and women. Approximately 20 percent of them come from outside Kentucky; the Kentucky residents represent all parts of the Commonwealth. While they are strongly represented on the rolls of Kentucky lawyers, College of Law alumni practice in more than three-quarters of the states outside Kentucky. Placement opportunities for College of Law graduates are very strong, both inside and outside Kentucky, and the College actively assures a broad spectrum of opportunities to its students.

Facilities

The College of Law is housed in the Law Building, designed and constructed for the College in 1965 to provide all the facilities for a complete program of legal education. The Law Building contains a model courtroom for moot court and practice court sessions as well as for convocations and other large assemblies; three amphitheatre rooms for instruction in large classes; four smaller rooms designed for seminars and conferences; a three-level library complex, equipped with private student carrels, small study rooms and other conveniences; offices for all faculty and staff members, all student organizations and visitors using the library and other facilities; and reception areas, student lounges and other rooms.

University Community

Situated on South Limestone Street immediately south of Memorial Hall, the Law Building is well within the central campus of the University of Kentucky, located near downtown Lexington. The University supports Colleges of Arts and Sciences, Agriculture, Law, Engineering, Education, Business and Economics, Medicine, Dentistry, Nursing, Pharmacy, Home Economics, Architecture, Allied Health Professions, Library Science, Social Professions, and the Graduate School; the division of University Extension; a state-wide Community College System; and a number of bureaus, agencies and institutes for research and service.

Student Life

Campus life for the 17,668 students on the Lexington campus is regulated to a large extent through a student governing body. Each college, in addition, is represented in the University Senate. The University has its own post office, book store, radio station, newspapers, theatre, museums, hospital, printing plant and security force.

Location

Lexington, and the surrounding area of Fayette County, with a population of over 175,000 persons, is a fast-growing urban center for the famous Blue Grass Region of Central Kentucky. It offers many attractions for the law student. The Council of State Governments has its national headquarters in Fayette County. Lexington is headquarters for the Federal District Court for the Eastern District of Kentucky. All state and local courts convene in Lexington, except for the Court of Appeals which... with the rest of central state government, is located in Frankfort, the state capital, some twenty-eight miles from the University campus. Lexington is only eighty miles from both Louisville and Cincinnati with connections by express highways and frequent air and bus transportation.
Preparation for Law School

Prelegal Study

Students enter the College of Law from colleges and universities throughout the country. In academic year 1970-1971 they represented 95 American and foreign institutions and nearly half of the fifty states.

While a broad, liberal arts education is generally considered to be an excellent preparation for law school, there is no fixed, comprehensive prelaw curriculum prescribed by this or any other American law school.

This fact is very important, and its implications should not be misunderstood. American legal education is not a graduate program of advanced work in a specialized course of study beginning in college. It is not a technical or scientific training that builds upon a thorough preparation in basic techniques and knowledge acquired in undergraduate school. Legal education is a professional education requiring of its students three accomplishments in their prelegal experience—accomplishments which may be obtained in a variety of learning ways and academic subjects.

First, because the basic working tools of lawyers are written and spoken words, the beginning law student must have a thorough preparation in the use of language. The importance of this requirement cannot be stressed too greatly. A fundamental knowledge of grammar and syntax, a good vocabulary, an ability to read rapidly with insight and understanding, and a facility in expressing ideas with clarity and order are all essential to success in the study and practice of law. Any prelaw student who is deficient in these abilities should immediately take additional courses in English literature and composition, seek specialized remedial assistance and exert all efforts for language mastery. Otherwise he may enter legal study under a serious handicap and may even jeopardize his admission to law school.

Second, because the primary working areas of lawyers are social, economic and political communities, the beginning law student must obtain the comprehensive, explorative undergraduate experience for which the term “liberal education” stands. He should have a good knowledge of history (especially of English and American events), of government and political processes, of social and cultural patterns and the interactions that create them, and of the ethical and spiritual credos that men live by.

Third, because the fundamental techniques of legally-trained persons are careful ordering of facts and events, conceptual analysis and synthesis, and comprehensive advocacy, the prelaw student should pursue a degree program in which he will learn to think clearly, will form sound study habits, and will have the opportunity to master methodology and knowledge of a particular field under the guidance of experienced instructors. Generally, any major undergraduate course program can satisfy this requirement, as well as help to meet the other two needs outlined above. Prelaw students with definite legal career objectives in mind may wish to prepare for them by majoring... appropriate subjects, for example: business or economics, government or political science, or engineering and the natural sciences.

Experience indicates that the poorest preparation for legal study lies in inadequate development of language skills, lack of historical and social awareness and appreciation, and failure ever to achieve mastery of any academic discipline that overcomes the shallowness of vague generalization. Therefore the prescription from this law school for the prelaw student is that he must invest in the widest, deepest undergraduate education open to him and not in some predetermined curriculum. For additional information, see the official Pre-law Handbook, 1971-72 edition, to be published in October 1971 and prepared by the Law School Admission Council and the Association of American Law Schools. This book includes material on the law and lawyers, pre-law preparation, applying to law schools, and the study of law, together with individualized information on most American law schools. It may be obtained at college bookstores or ordered from Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey 08540.

The College of Law is aware that some students seeking to enter law school may have been hindered, through circumstances over which they have no control, from obtaining the benefits of prelegal education recommended here as important conditions to successful legal study. Such circumstances may be brought to the attention of the admissions Committee during the course of the regular admissions process.

Admission to the College of Law

Beginning law students are accepted for admission only for the first semester (fall term) of the academic year. Initial admission for the second semester (spring term) is not granted except in rare instances where an applicant has a very special need and has the level of academic record necessary to assure satisfactory work under the handicaps of beginning at midyear. Any applicant seeking second semester admission should consult the Dean of the College of Law in advance for consideration of the program-making difficulties involved. A beginning student cannot under any circumstances begin the study of law during the summer term, because no first year courses are offered then.

If space is available in the advanced classes, an applicant who has been previously enrolled in another law school will be considered for admission only if he is in good standing in a law school which is a member of the Association of American Law Schools, if he meets the requirements for beginning students at the College of Law of the University of Kentucky, and if he has made an academic average in law which, had it been made in the College of Law of the University of Kentucky, would entitle him to continue his studies here.

Requirements for Admission

In addition to the general requirements for admission to the University, an applicant for admission to the College of Law must meet the following requirements:

1) The applicant must have a bachelor's degree from an accredited institution.
2) The applicant must have taken the Law School Admission Test.
3) The applicant must have registered with the Law School Data Assembly Service and furnished the necessary transcripts which such registration requires.

It is anticipated that an applicant who has achieved a prelaw grade-point average (on all college work attempted) of at least 3.0 on a 4.0 scale and a Law School Admission Test score of at least 600 will receive favorable consideration. The Admissions Committee considers the prelaw grade record, the LSAT score, the academic improvement shown in the prelaw grade record furnished by the LSDAS and the applicant’s aptitude for law study. The Committee examines with particular care the grade average for the most recent semesters of prelaw study, recommendations of faculty and the nature and difficulty of the course work attempted in prelaw study.

While the Law School has no established quota for non-resident applicants, the Law School’s obligation to the residents of the Commonwealth of Kentucky requires that preference be given to in-state applicants. All applicants will be considered by the Admissions Committee and admission will be on the basis of evaluative decision of the Committee. The Committee also considers the post-baccalaureate experiences where such experiences, in the Committee’s determination, indicate a development of aptitude for the study of law. The Committee will ordinarily deny admission if both the cumulative grade-point average is less than 2.6 and the LSAT score is less than 525; however, any applicant who believes his application presents a special case for consideration may request a Committee decision on it.

Procedure for Application

The Dean of Admissions and Registrar of the University of Kentucky is the designated admitting officer for the College of Law. Application for admission is made by submitting to his office a completed application form. At the same time the applicant should register for the Law School Data Assembly Service and arrange for transcripts of all previous academic work to be sent to the Educational Testing Service, the agency managing the LSDAS. If an applicant is accepted to the College of Law, two copies of his final transcripts showing the awarding of a degree will have to be sent to the Dean of Admissions and Registrar prior to the applicant’s enrollment.

An application form different from that used for the rest of the University is used for the College of Law and the College has established deadline dates for receipt of applications and transcripts which are different from the deadline dates for generally University admission. These Law School dates are stated in this Bulletin. The law application form can be obtained by writing to the Dean of Admissions and Registrar or to the Dean of the College of Law.

March 1 of the year in which one expects to enter law school for the fall term is the deadline for the receipt of the admissions application and notice of LSDAS registration by the University Admissions Office. March 31 is the deadline for receipt of all materials, including LSAT scores and the LSDAS report by the University Admissions Office. Accordingly, the February administration of the LSAT in the year for which an applicant seeks admission is the last LSAT examination which will be accepted by the Admissions Committee. A notice of acceptance will be given by the College of Law prior to January 15 of the year in which the applicant seeks admission. Recommendation: To insure full and timely consideration, it is suggested that your transcripts be on file with LSDAS by February 1 since there is a time lag of some 3 weeks before the report of the LSDAS is received by the University Admissions Office. Only under extraordinary circumstances will the Committee consider applicants whose applications and credentials are not submitted within the above deadline.
Law School Admission Test

The LSAT is prepared, administered and scored by the Educational Testing Service. It is normally given in October, December, February, April and July of each year at testing centers throughout the country according to a schedule of dates and places published well in advance by the Educational Testing Service. The LSAT is also given in some foreign country locations. The University of Kentucky in Lexington is a testing center for all scheduled dates of the test.

Applications for taking the LSAT may be secured directly from Law School Admission Test, Educational Testing Service, Box 944, Princeton, New Jersey 08540, or from the Dean’s Office of the College of Law or the Admissions Office of the University of Kentucky. The completed application should be returned directly to the Educational Testing Service and received there at least three weeks prior to the next testing date.

Law School Data Assembly Service

Developed by the Law School Admission Test Council and administered by Educational Testing Service, the Law School Data Assembly Service (LSDAS) simplifies admissions procedures for applicants to participating law schools. It is a centralized service which receives and evaluates, according to a standard scale, the undergraduate transcripts of applicants and furnishes a report to the member institutions requested by the applicant. Registration for the LSDAS and application to take the LSAT should be made at the same time and as early as possible. Instructions and forms for registration for the LSDAS are available from the Educational Testing Service at the address indicated above, from the University of Kentucky Admissions Office or from the Dean’s Office of the College of Law.

If you have previously sent LSDAS a Registration Form and transcript, you need only request (on the appropriate LSDAS form) that they add the name of the University of Kentucky College of Law to the list of schools to which you are applying. You must, however, comply with the additional requirements of this and other schools.

Since the transcript analysis is done mainly on students applying during their senior year of college and includes only the first three years of undergraduate work, applicants who are still in college and desire to have their academic records for their senior year considered should send an official transcript of these grades, as soon as available, to the University of Kentucky Admissions Office, for the attention of the Law School Admissions Committee.

With regard to letters of recommendation, the Committee does not require such letters but welcomes and will consider particularly recommendations by professors. For the purpose of uniformity the Committee requests that students intending to submit such recommendations use the standard recommendation form prepared by the Law School Admissions Test Council. This form is available at the Dean’s Office of the Law School or the University Admissions Office. In submitting such recommendations the Committee requests that no more than two such recommendations be forwarded to the Committee. Recommendations from employers or persons in an immediate supervisory capacity are also considered favorably by the Committee. Recommendations from persons other than professors and persons in a supervisory capacity are of little value to the Committee and are not encouraged.
Financial Considerations

The costs of attending the College of Law, exclusive of tuition fees, may be considered average or below average. Tuition fees, which are relatively low, vary according to residence. The following sections describe the principal expenses and indicate sources of financial assistance in the College of Law and through the University of Kentucky.

Tuition and Special Fees

Full-time students: Ten semester hours or more
- Fall and spring semesters—
  $165 per semester for Kentucky residents
  $515 per semester for nonresidents
- Summer session—Five semester hours or more
  $96 for Kentucky residents
  $275 for nonresidents

Part-time students: Nine semester hours or less
- $16.50 per semester hour for Kentucky residents
- $52 per semester hour for nonresidents
- Summer session—Four semester hours or less
- $20 per semester hour for Kentucky residents
- $55 per semester hour for nonresidents

The above fees are the only charges made to law students by the University. They include class instruction; health and infirmary service; admission to athletic contests, convocations and other events; use of libraries; use of Student Center facilities; discount on admissions to the Guignol Theatre; admission to the Central Kentucky Concert-Lecture Series; and subscription to the University student newspapers and the Kentucky Law Journal. All fees are payable upon registration, and the fee schedule is subject to change without notice.

Books

The cost of required books and other materials used in legal study varies according to whether a student buys new books or used books and whether he retains or resells them after course use. For new books the average cost each semester, exclusive of trade-in values, is about $75; for used books, $35. Other professional expenses may include small outlays for typing briefs and papers and fees for temporary classwork materials prepared by the law school.

Law books may be purchased at the University Book Store, or in off-campus book stores. The books and materials assigned in each course are announced by the instructor on the College of Law bulletin boards shortly before the opening of each term.

Housing

Law students arrange their own housing in either accommodations maintained by the University in private residences in the area.

University housing for all students is under the administration of the University of Kentucky Housing Office. Requests for information should be directed to that office. In addition, a limited number of residences owned by the University are rented through the Real Property Division of the University. A list of off-campus rooms and apartments approved for availability to anyone regardless of race, creed or national origin, may be obtained from the Dean of Students' office.

Located on the campus are the Cooperstown apartments for occupancy by unmarried graduate students at the following rates per student: $524 for an efficiency apartment, $614 for a one-bedroom apartment, each multiple occupancy. The contract for these facilities is for one year. There is one residence hall, Blanding II, which houses both men and women who are unmarried graduate students. Single occupancy is $1,028 per year; double occupancy $524 per student per year. Rates are subject to change at any time.

Many married law students reside in the Cooperstown apartments maintained by the University near the Law Building. Married law students also live in the Shawneetown apartments. In either facility, efficiency, one-bedroom and two-bedroom units rent respectively for $85, $100, and $110 per month, including basic furnishings, utilities and maintenance. (Comparable rates for private housing in the city are slightly higher.)

Married law students, together with graduate students, medical students and other professional school students, have first and equal priority for assignment to University housing, as available space allows.

Because the demand for graduate student housing is great, application should be made as early as possible to:

University Housing Office
218-L Service Building
Lexington, Kentucky 40506
Telephone 606 257-1866

Scholarships

A limited amount of scholarship assistance for students in the College of Law is awarded on the basis of academic ability, character and financial need. The aid is made possible through annual contributions of alumni and members of the bar. The number and amounts of awards depend on the funds available in relation to the applications received. Grants usually do not exceed the costs of registration fees, and may be less. Application for scholarship aid should be made before June 1 (but after a student has applied for College of Law Admission) on forms obtained from the Chairman of the Committee on Scholarships, Development and Alumni Relations of the College of Law, to which all inquiries concerning scholarship aid should be directed.

Loans

Loan programs for students in the College of Law are administered by the University of Kentucky Student Financial Aid Office. Three kinds of loans are generally available: National Defense Education Act loans, federally-guaranteed bank loans and American Bar Association Loans. Although the amount of any loan is determined primarily by the needs and resources of the applicant and his dependents, the application procedures, financial standards, and repayment terms vary according to program.

Application for National Defense Education Act loans must be submitted to the Student Financial Aid Office during the month of March. Although acceptance as a student in the College of Law is not a pre-condition to loan application, the loan processing will not become final until acceptance does occur.
Requests for loan information and application should be made to:

Director
Student Financial Aid Office
Room 575, Patterson Office Tower
University of Kentucky
Lexington, Kentucky 40506

Law students and applicants for admission to the College of Law who need special assistance in obtaining a loan may consult the Dean or Assistant Dean of the College.

Part-Time Work

Part-time work exists on a limited basis for students in the College of Law, both as law library employees and, for students with advanced standing, as faculty research assistants. Selection criteria vary according to the job and usually include the student's relevant experience and available time as well as his financial need. Inquiry should be made directly to the law library, the Assistant Dean of the College of Law or individual faculty members shortly before a term begins.

Law students and prospective law students with major financial needs are encouraged to apply for participation in the Work-Study Program of the University. Eligibility on the basis of the student's economic resources is determined by the Student Financial Aid Office, Office Tower, to which application should be made at or before the beginning of a term. Work assignments in the College of Law are coordinated by the Assistant Dean of the College. Pay rate and hours of work are consistent with law school policies for part-time employment.

Student work is also available elsewhere on campus and in Lexington and vicinity. The University operates the Student Part-Time Employment Service (Office of Student Financial Aid), located in the Office Tower, as an aid to all University students.

Because the study of law is a full-time pursuit, law students who expect to carry a full academic program are advised to keep their outside work to a minimum. Part-time employment not exceeding twenty hours per week and not conflicting with academic responsibilities is permissible. At the beginning of each term all law students are required to certify the amount of their outside work; anyone indicating more than twenty hours per week is required to reduce his academic program proportionately.
Studying in the College of Law

The Course of Study

In order to qualify for the J.D. degree, a student in the College of Law must have accumulated at least 87 hours of course work in residence, in which he has maintained a grade-point average of 2.0 or better, as explained under Scholastic Regulations. The course of study is designed to be completed in six successive semesters of academic residence or, under an accelerated program, in five semesters and two eight-week summer sessions, allowing graduation in December of the student’s third year.

Normally a student takes 14 or 15 credits each semester. The recommended load is 15 hours (exclusive of military or air science class work); the minimum for residence credit as a full-time student is 10 hours per regular semester. During the summer session the recommended load is seven hours; the minimum for residence credit as a full-time student is five hours; and the minimum credit as a part-time student is three hours. No evening courses are offered in the College of Law.

The required and elective courses, seminars and experience options included in the College of Law curriculum are listed below. Subject to on-going curriculum revision, they are offered each year, usually in the same semester arrangement, with certain exceptions to meet special needs. The second and third-year courses taught in the summer session, however, vary from year to year. For precise information about the curriculum and schedule for a particular school year, a student should refer to the Schedule Sheets distributed from the Dean’s Office at the beginning of each semester.

Course Descriptions

FALL—FIRST YEAR

802 Legal Bibliography

804 Law and Legal Institutions
A perspective course for first-year law students treating the function of law and the legal system in society rather than particular areas of substantive or adjective law. The court system and the legislative and administrative systems are studied and evaluated as to function and role with the purpose of understanding how the institutional parts relate and how the lawyer perceives their operation with particular emphasis on law as an instrument of social change. Multilith Materials. Mr. Guido, Mr. Seney.

805 Torts
Intentional torts and defenses, negligence, causation, duties of occupants of land and manufacturers and vendors of chattels, contributory negligence, strict liability, deceit, defamation, malicious prosecution, interference with advantageous relations. Keeton & Keeton, Cases On Torts, (West, 1971); Mr. Oberst, Mr. Williamson.

810 Criminal Law
The course is concerned with that behavior which is so anti-social as to be considered criminal. Major areas of the law subjected to analysis are the law of homicide, the codes regulating sexual conduct, and the law governing drug possession and use. Problems of proof, the matters of defining the acts to be deemed criminal and matters of law reform are all subjects for study. Mr. Bitt, Mr. Seney.

815 Practice and Procedure I
The course in Practice and Procedure I introduces first-year law students to the judicial process in civil cases. It has three objectives: (a) To give the student a brief introduction to the initiation and trial of a civil case from beginning to end; (b) to provide a thorough treatment of the problems concerning jurisdiction of courts, both federal and state, and the problems of due process of law with respect to the power acquired by a court over individuals in civil litigation; and (c) to provide an understanding of the process of pleading and an ability to use and understand modern rules of practice, both state and federal. Mr. Fortune's choices to be announced. Mr. Lawson uses Cound, Friedenthal & Miller, Civil Procedure, 1st Ed., (West, 1968). Mr. Fortune, Mr. Lawson.

824 Legal Research Tutorial
Instruction in the analysis and solution of legal problems by the preparation of documents used in legal scholarship and law practice. Emphasis is placed on the functions and techniques of writing and organization of legal materials. Students are required to write several memoranda and a brief. All work is criticized by the instructors. Weihofen, Legal Writing Style, (West, 1961). Staff.

SPRING—FIRST YEAR

807 Property
Basic course in property; possession, gifts, bona fide purchases of personality. Estates, uses, easements, and rights incident to ownership. Mr. Flickinger uses Cribbet, Fritz & Johnson, Cases and Materials on Property, (Foundation Press, 1968). Mr. Matthews uses Casner & Leach, Cases and Text on Property, (Little, Brown, 1969). Mr. Flickinger, Mr. Matthews.

811 Criminal Procedure
The course in Criminal Procedure explains the processes of applying criminal laws, from arrest through appeal. Attention focuses on the respective powers and rights of the prosecution and the accused person and the continuing problems in achieving public order and protection and guaranteeing individual rights. A substantial part of the course consists of consideration of federal constitutionally guaranteed rights. Most of the material used in the course is developed from cases decided by the Supreme Court of the United States. Materials and instructors to be announced.

812 Contracts
Contracts deals with the creation, interpretation and enforcement of consensual agreements, that is, relationships entered without compulsion or accident. The course provides a rich opportunity for a study of the processes by which Anglo-American law has evolved over the years through the accretion of court decisions. The impact of the Uniform Commercial Code on traditional contract law is also considered. The major subject areas covered include: formation of contracts (offer, acceptance, and consideration); Statute of Frauds; third party beneficiary contracts; assignments; performance of contract (the law of conditions and impossibility of performance). Jones, Fawworth & Young, Cases and Materials on Contracts, (Foundation Press, 1965). Mr. Germain, Mr. Ham.

The materials indicated are those most recently used by the instructor named. The availability of new materials after publication of this bulletin may result in the use of different materials at the time of registration.
The course explores the development of the power of judicial review in enforcing the Constitution of the United States as the primary law of the land. The distribution of power among the three departments of the federal government and between the central and state governments is analyzed with special emphasis on constitutional controls of the power to tax and regulate commerce, the power to provide for the general welfare, and the guarantees of civil liberties and individual rights. Emphasis within the individual rights and civil liberties areas varies in accordance with changes in the urgency of particular issues. Materials to be announced. Mr. Goldman, Mr. Oberst.

A system of Moot Court Law Clubs managed by a Board composed entirely of students, with advice and assistance from faculty advisers, provides all students with training and experience in competitive oral argument and brief writing. Every student participates in Moot Court arguments during his second and third semesters. Thereafter elimination rounds culminate in the selection of a three-man student team to represent the College of Law in the National Moot Court Competition sponsored by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York. Also offered in second year. Materials to be announced. Mr. Germain.

FALL—SECOND YEAR

Practice and Procedure II

The main topical subdivisions in this course are Venue; Jurisdiction; Pleading; Depositions and Discovery; Pre-Trial Conferences; Adjudication Without Trial; The Parties and the Dimensions of Their Dispute; Trial; Judgment; and Appellate Review. This course is geared substantially to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure which have been adopted in Kentucky and at least 35 other states. The objective of this course is to develop students into skilled technicians in pre-trial and trial procedure through study and discussion of the civil rules and relevant case analysis. The course material is developing rather than stabilized. The rules of civil procedure we now have require frequent revision in order to adjust to new and unanticipated problems. Chadbourne & Levin, Civil Procedure Cases and Materials, (Foundation Press, 1961). Mr. Fortune, Mr. Richardson.

Business Associations

The aim of this course is to provide a basic introduction to the different forms of business organization recognized by American law, with primary emphasis on the nature and structure of the modern American business corporation. Major subject areas covered include: partnership planning (formation of partnerships, rights in partnership property, rights of partners on dissolution and liquidation of partnerships); steps required for organizing a corporation (including the legal consequences of defective incorporation); nature of the corporate entity concept; control and management of the corporation (with emphasis on the special problems of the close corporation); fiduciary duties of directors and controlling shareholders under state law; the nature and special characteristics of the shareholders' derivative suit. Cary, Cases and Materials on Corporations, 4th ed. Unabridged, (Foundation Press, 1969). Mr. Ham, Mr. Hermann.

Taxation I

Trusts and Estates

Course content includes the examination of rules governing intestate distribution of property; formal requirements governing execution, alteration and revocation of wills; requisite elements of express trusts and requirements for their creation, special rules relating to charitable trusts and spendthrift trusts; rules concerning construction of wills and trusts, and general rules governing administration of decedents’ estates and trusts. Palmer, Cases on Trusts and Succession, (Foundation Press, 1968). Mr. Flickinger, Mr. Matheaus.

SPRING—SECOND YEAR

Remedies

The main topical subdivisions are the Nature of Damages; Nature of Specific Relief; Personal Interests; Contractual Interests; Property Interests; Specific Relief and the Government; and the Economic Evaluation of Unproductive Persons. Multilith materials. Mr. Sedler.

The Legal Profession

Land Development Law

A basic study of the body of land development law, including: land transfers, land sales contracts; deed covenants; recording acts; title insurance; contemporary landlord and tenant law; and public utility, subdivision and zoning regulations. The indicated problem areas are treated together to illuminate the lawyer’s role in the land development. Materials to be announced. Mr. Guido.

Commercial Law

The study of commercial law with special emphasis on the law of sales, negotiable instruments, bank collections and secured transactions as governed by the Kentucky Commercial Code. Secondary emphasis is placed on the Uniform Commercial Code itself and techniques for interpreting and applying the statutory language. The objective of the course is to teach a working knowledge of the Kentucky Commercial Code. There is no single teaching method employed exclusively and classroom work involves case analysis, problem discussion, statutory interpretation and lecture. Mr. Mooney uses the Uniform Commercial Code, ALI-NCCUSL, 1962 Official Text, and multilith materials. Mr. Hermann’s choices to be announced. Mr. Hermann, Mr. Mooney.
The course consists of two major divisions: (1) the enforcement of judgments and prejudgment remedies, including garnishment, exemptions, fraudulent conveyances and foreign judgments, and (2) bankruptcy, arrangements, and other collection devices for the ordering of a debtor's assets ratable among his creditors. Highly procedural in character, the course stresses the statutory nature of creditors' rights law conflicts among lien interests, the Article 9 U.C.C.-Bankruptcy Act relationship, and the most recent major changes in creditor's rights law. The objective of the course is to provide the future practitioner with a thorough grounding in the interrelationships within creditors' rights law, the basic policies behind detailed legal prescriptions and how to collect judgments and represent a client in, or to avoid, Bankruptcy Act proceedings. Materials to be announced, Mr. Viles.

The course in evidence seeks to provide an understanding of the decision-making process at the trial level of litigation, both civil and criminal. Attention focuses on the rules which govern the admissibility of evidence. The course also deals with such other problems as the division of responsibility between the trial judge and the jury, the responsibilities of the litigants to inform and assist the court, and the allocation of the burden of proof. Mr. Lawson uses MaGuire, Weinstein, Chadbourne & Mansfield, Cases and Materials on Evidence, 5th Ed., (Foundation Press, 1966), Mr. Richardson uses McCormick, Cases on Evidence, 3rd Ed., (West, 1956). Mr. Lawson, Mr. Richardson.

FALL—SECOND/THIRD YEAR

857 Legal Accounting

An elective course for second or third year law students to provide treatment of accounting principles in the legal problems context; including introduction to the basics of the double entry bookkeeping system, the elaboration of accounting principles, the business vocabulary, and understanding of how financial affairs are conducted. Emphasis is given to utilization of accounting data, investment analysis, taxation and managerial decisions. Generally accepted accounting practices are compared with tax accounting practice, SEC requirements, and economic theory. Income measurement, allocation of long-term costs of tangible assets, expenditures for tangibles, and financial accounting for stockholders equity are among the topics covered. Materials to be announced. Mr. Davis.

892 State and Local Government Law

An advanced course in the legal problems caused by the great variety of functions performed by state and local governments; including historical development of traditional functions, configuration of contemporary governmental relations, examination of areas of conflict, and in-depth consideration of lawyer roles in dealing with special problems of financing, borrowing money, and furnishing services as to health, education, natural resources, transportation, and welfare. Materials to be announced. Mr. Mooney.

910 Labor Law

This course analyzes the nature of conflicts arising under the terms and conditions of employment with special emphasis on collective tactics for resolving such conflicts. Examined are the basic statutory schemes for regulating labor management relations including the determination of collective bargaining status, the controls imposed upon the collective bargaining process, grievance settlement and arbitration techniques. The purpose of the course is to provide the student with some background understanding of labor relations law as currently practiced in the United States and to use the labor relations field as a laboratory for observing the tools of conflict resolution. Labor Law Group Labor Relations and Social Problems—Selected Units (Bureau of National Affairs). Mr. Goldman.

935 Unfair Trade

Analysis of the various common law unfair competition areas; examination of statutory relief in areas of trade marks, copyright, and misleading advertising; survey and analysis of various portions of Federal Trade Commission Act and Robinson-Patman Act. Materials to be announced. Mr. Germain.

950-46 Civil Liberties

This course involves a detailed look at a specialized area of Constitutional Law. Special emphasis is given to the First Amendment area. However, emphasis will vary considerably in accordance with current developments in law and political and social events. The purpose of this course is to explore how constitutional doctrine has evolved with respect to major civil liberties issues, problems encountered in litigating such matters, and the impact of constitutional doctrine upon individual experience in the United States. Emerson, Haber & Davis, Political and Civil Rights in the United States, Vol. I, Student's Edition (Little, Brown, 1967). Dorsen, Frontiers of Civil Liberty (Pantheon-Random House, 1968). Mr. Sedler.

SPRING—SECOND/THIRD YEAR

825 Legislation

Nature and scope of legislative power; organization of legislative bodies; legislative process; legislation and the courts; interpretation of statutes. The course is offered only in the spring of even numbered years when the Kentucky General Assembly is in regular session. Nutting, Elliott, & Dickerson, Legislation Cases and Materials, (West 1969). Mr. Willis.

828 Workmen's Compensation

A study of statutes, administrative reports, regulations, legislative hearings and judicial decisions relating to modern social legislation including Social Security, Workmen's Compensation, medical care, insurance, unemployment insurance, wages and hours, and public assistance. Malone and Plant, Cases and Materials on Workmen's Compensation, (West, 1964). Mr. Trigg.

853 Federal Corporation Law

An elective course for advanced law students treating the body of substantive federal corporation law newly generated by the federal securities acts, emphasizing particularly its impact on fiduciary responsibilities of directors or controlling shareholders in the management of corporate affairs. Specific attention is given to proxy contests...
898 Environmental Law

Corporate employment, and public interest and movement lawyering.

Matters relating the series of interrelated subsystems that make up the physical environment, including: water and air pollution, solid waste disposal, and strip mining. The legal problems and principles treated emphasize: the constitutional limitations on the public power to implement planning proposals; the relationship between federal, state and local governments; the structure of agencies designed to regulate the quality of the environment; the standards for the exercise of administrative discretion; the openness of administrative hearing procedures; and the scope of judicial review of administrative decisions. Prerequisite: None directly, although completion of first-year law courses is expected for second and third-year elective courses. Materials to be announced. Mr. Guido.

908 Comparative Law

914 Relational Torts

Relational Torts concentrates on three areas: 1) the family unit in tort law—torts to, by, and between members of the family; 2) injury to reputation and personality—defamation and invasion of privacy; and 3) injury to trade relations—interference with contract, trademark violations, the values protected by patent and copyright, trade libel, and trade secrets. Also covered in the course are malicious prosecution and related torts, and misrepresentation. The course is designed to be the second torts course and to fill in the substantive areas not covered in depth in the first year course. Leon Green et. al., Injuries to Relations, (West, 1968). Mr. Fortune.

950-40 Civil Rights

This course treats the equal protection and due process clauses of the Constitution. Discrimination in the following areas is subjected to legal analysis: security of the person; voting; housing in different regions; education in different regions; employment; public accommodations; health and welfare services, as well as civil rights topics of recent interest. Emerson, Haber & Dorsey, Political and Civil Rights, Vol. 2 (Little, Brown, 1967). 1969 Supplement. Report of National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders, (Bantam, 1968). Mr. Sedler.

FALL—THIRD YEAR

827 Social Legislation (Clinical) (Social Provisions for Individual Welfare)

Social Legislation concentrates on the major national social welfare programs in the United States, OASDHI (“social security”) and Public Assistance (“welfare”), with some comparative attention to other forms of welfare assistance, especially housing. The course includes a general introduction about poverty in the United States, an outline of the historical development of welfare policy and programs, a projection of social legislation in the future, and extensive sections of statutory, regulatory and case law. Particular emphasis is placed on the impact of welfare administration and bureaucracy, the role of social workers, and on disability income programs and claims determinations thereunder. Mr. Viles.

855 Corporation Finance Law

This course supplements the basic study of corporation law covered in Business Associations and is designed to provide an insight into the legal aspects of corporate financial matters. Major subject areas covered include: corporate promotion and capitalization (with special emphasis on senior securities and their characteristics); corporate distributions (including the declaration and payment of dividends and the purchase and redemption by a corporation of its own shares); corporate acquisitions (merger, consolidation, sale of assets or of stock); and recapitalizations (elimination of accrued dividends on preferred stock). Cary, Cases and Materials on Corporations, 4th Ed. Unabridged, (Foundation Press, 1969). Mr. Ham.
865 Tax Planning
Donative transfers of property, including inter vivos transfers and wills; income, estate, and gift tax consequences of the various methods of disposition; administration of estates. Warren, Federal Estate and Gift Taxation, (Foundation Press, 1961); 1965 Supplement; Internal Revenue Code, (Prentice-Hall); Federal Estate and Gift Tax Regulations, (Prentice-Hall). Mr. Whiteside in Fall; Mr. Vasek in Spring.

872 Land Use Planning
A comprehensive survey of the basic legal devices to control the use of land, theories of land use planning, nuisance, private agreements, zoning and zoning procedure, the role of the federal government in land planning, exercise of eminent domain, and selected Kentucky problems, such as rural zoning and proposed New Towns for Appalachia. Multilith materials. Mr. Guido.

877 Future Interests
An advanced elective course for third-year law students treating in depth future interests of ownership in property, including: the kind of future interests, rules as to class gifts, the rule against perpetuities, and powers of appointment; with emphasis on the lawyer’s use of future interests in estate planning and the pitfalls relating thereto. Leach & Logan, Cases on Future Interests and Estate Planning, (Foundation Press, 1961). Mr. Flickinger.

887 Insurance
Nature of contract, insurable interest, making the contract, concealment, representations, warranties, implied conditions of forfeiture, waiver and estoppel, rights under the contract, and construction of the policy. Materials to be announced. Mr. Germain.

905 Conflict of Laws

915 Family Law
The course focuses on causation in respect to family disorganization and the response of the legal system as it attempts to deal with this disorganization. Materials are selected to maximize consideration of the lawyer role as human relations counselor as well as his position as advocate. Mr. Batt.

960 Practice Court
This course, conducted mainly under the Kentucky Code (but treated to give a fair understanding of like work in other states) is designed to fit students for actual court practice following training in substantive law. Multilith materials. Mr. Richardson, Mr. Savage.

961-2 Legal Aid
The College of Law operates a well-established legal aid program in cooperation with the Fayette County Bar Association and the bar associations of surrounding counties. Advanced students have the opportunity to interview indigent clients, to be in court, to assist practicing attorneys, and to gain valuable clinical experience in the solution of legal problems, both civil and criminal. Materials to be announced. Mr. Fortune

961-3 Legal Aid Intern
The course in Legal Aid Intern provides the students with a clinical experience that involves the actual trial of a civil or criminal case. The student is assigned the case by the Legal Aid Director and is also assigned a licensed attorney to provide the necessary supervision and assistance in the preparation, trial and appeal of the case. The student works on the case from beginning to end, provides the necessary investigation of the facts, does the legal research required by the circumstances, and then presents the case in the courtroom. The course attempts to bridge the gap between law study and law practice. Emphasis is on criminal litigation. No prepared materials are used. Staff.

961-4 Legal Document Drafting
This course examines problems likely to be confronted by the attorney within the first few months after entering practice. Students are required to draft pleadings and other legal documents responsive to the situations presented by the instructors. Multilith materials. Mr. Williamson and selected members of the Kentucky Bar. (Announced in the Fall.)

961-6 and 7 Legal Research and Writing
Independent study of legal problems under faculty supervision, supervised training in legal aid, moot court, and legal drafting (May be repeated for a total of six credits.) Staff.

962 Law Journal
Candidates for the Kentucky Law Journal are selected in the second semester of their first year on the basis of grades received for the first semester’s work. Additional candidates are chosen after the completion of the first year. After successful completion of the cardinal program the student becomes a member of the Kentucky Law Journal. He writes a case comment during the second year and a comprehensive note during the third year. In addition the student edits other student work and performs other duties involved in the publication of the Journal. One to three hours credit are given in the third year and on the number of semesters a student is a member of the Journal. Mr. Fortune.

SUNP-RMTH YEAR

819 Federal Courts and the Federal System
The nature of the federal judicial function and its development, distribution of power among federal and state courts, Supreme Court review of state court decisions, the law applied in federal courts, federal questions and diversity jurisdiction, federal habeas corpus, removal jurisdiction and procedure. Forrester, Currier & Men, Federal Jurisdiction and Procedure, (West, 1970). Mr. Fortune.

865 Tax Planning
Donative transfers of property, including inter vivos transfers and wills; income, estate, and gift tax consequences of the various methods of disposition; administration of estates. Warren, Federal Tax...
950-23 Juvenile Problems
A consideration of why juvenile offenders violate and what can be done to deter and rehabilitate this offender. The seminar will have a distinctly interdisciplinary flavor. Mr. Batt.

950-25 Fiduciary Administration
Materials to be announced. Mr. Matthews.

950-26 Fact Finding
Civil Rights Decisions and the Supreme Court. Library materials used. Mr. Richardson.

950-32 Consumer Transactions Seminar
The Consumer Transactions seminar will concentrate on consumer fraud and consumer debtor-creditor relationships, with special emphasis on the financial motivations and implications of consumer transactions, credit rating, credit cards, debt collection (including remedies for abuse, garnishment, exemptions, repossession and the like), consumer bankruptcy and wage-earner plans, the future of consumer debtor-creditor relationships in the "cashless" or "checkless" society, and the role of government regulation and control in consumer debtor-creditor relationships. Materials to be announced. Mr. Viles.

950-33 Trial Tactics
Materials to be announced. Mr. Trigg.

950-15 Intergovernmental Relations
Materials to be announced. Mr. Seney.

950-45 Negotiation and Arbitration
This seminar examines the negotiation and arbitration processes as basic techniques of conflict resolution. The arbitration process is surveyed with respect to its format in a variety of settings including the commercial, international and labor fields. Comparisons are made between arbitration and litigation. Materials to be announced. Mr. Goldman.

* Not offered in Fall, 1971.

SPRING—THIRD YEAR SEMINARS

950 Seminar
Seminar in selected legal problems. Normally, each seminar is centered upon a particular field of legal learning. Spring subjects include:

950-03 Legal History
Materials to be announced. Mr. Seney.

950-11 International Law

950-15 Jurisprudence
Materials to be announced. Mr. Seney.
950-17 Securities Regulation 2

950-27 Tax Policy 2
Materials to be announced. Mr. Whiteside.

950-28 Estate Planning 2
Materials to be announced. Mr. Flickinger.

950-29 Corrections 2
Emphasizes what the criminal justice system does with the person once guilt is established. Parole, probation and correctional institution operations are examined in detail. Mr. Batt.

950-30 Law of Developing Countries 2
Materials to be announced. Mr. Sedler.

950-35 Law and Psychological Sciences 2
An application of psychological theory and data to legal problems. Among subjects pursued are witness perception, observer reliability, the psychology of intent, the use of expert psychological testimony and jury selection. Mr. Batt.

950-36 Pensions 2
Materials to be announced. Mr. Whiteside.

950-37 Appellate Practice 2
Library materials. Mr. Richardson.

950-41 Government Contracts 2
Materials to be announced. Mr. Kennedy.

950-48 Land Development 2

Techniques of Learning and Instruction

The education afforded by any good law school must accomplish four things. First, it must be sequential, that is, each semester or year of courses and other activities must build on previous learning and instruction, starting with the undergraduate preparation of a student and ending with his entrance into general practice, specialized employment or graduate study. Second, the course of study must encourage a maximum of individual development which assures that every student learns to think analytically and critically and to take the personal initiative and responsibility required of professional conduct. He must acquire sound, disciplined habits of factual investigation, legal research and oral and written presentation which he can follow throughout his professional career. Third, legal education must be practical. It must provide the opportunity for training in such techniques as drafting legal documents, advising clients, initiating lawsuits, arguing cases and other skills crucial to the lawyer's use of his knowledge and expertise in solving human problems and earning a living. Fourth, the professional education of a lawyer should prepare him to meet his public responsibility as an officer of the court (through admission to practice), as a community leader with special abilities, and as an elected or appointed official with varied duties and opportunities for public service.

The course of study and sponsored activities at the College of Law meet these four criteria. The following description, which emphasizes the first year of study, is presented to acquaint the prospective law student with the experiences he may anticipate during three years of legal study.

First Year

The contents of the required first year curriculum, substantially the same at all good law schools, form a solid foundation for successful years of legal education. In the first semester the student is introduced to the elements of procedure in civil cases in Practice and Procedure, including the jurisdiction of courts over disputes and parties before them and the chronology of events in initiation, development, trial and judgment of cases. Techniques of Learning and Instruction lawsuit. This course not only early acquaints the beginning law student with how legal questions are resolved through adjudication but also assists him in understanding cases examined in other courses.

Torts, or civil wrongs, focuses upon the legal duties governing the conduct and relationships among persons and property and the rights of redress for personal injuries and property losses. Contracts deals with the creation, interpretation and enforcement of consensual agreements, that is, relationships entered without compulsion or accident. Both Torts and Contracts provide a rich appreciation of the processes by which Anglo-American law has evolved over the years through the accretion of court decisions.

The courses in the second semester complete the beginning student's orientation. Criminal Law takes up the substantive elements of offenses against society, person and property penalized by criminal sanctions of fine and imprisonment. The student learns what makes up the crimes of robbery, arson, murder and the like and the relationships between the objectives and assumptions of criminal law and the patterns of conduct and behavior that are ruled illegal.

Instruction in the first-year courses described thus far is typical of most law school courses in all years of the curriculum. The essential resource materials are casebooks containing the actual leading decisions and opinions of courts (principally appellate courts of last resort), which set forth the law to be held applicable to the facts involved in any case and, through the doctrine of precedent, to future similar cases. The casebook is arranged to show the historical evolution, orderly process and conceptual development of legal doctrine, decision-making and reasoning peculiar to the Anglo-American common law tradition. In many instances this material is supplemented by descriptive literature explaining the context of the cases and other law considered.

The student is expected to “brief” each case assigned for class discussion, that is, to analyze on his own the decision and opinion of the court and to write up the analysis in an abstract of the facts, procedure, issues, decision and legal rules in the case. In class the instructor leads an open discussion of the cases on the basis of the students' prior briefing, bringing out underlying intricacies and significances, trends in legal concepts and social events and ideas, and the place of the case in the structure and evolution of law examined in the course.

Law and Legal Institutions offers a broad map of the social-legal system and its dynamic institutional developments, functions and inter-relationships. Drawing together much of the rest of the first-year curriculum, this course emphasizes student insight into the bases of the social-legal order—how, why and toward what goals the system operates.

At the conclusion of the semester and end of the course, the grade for each student is determined by a comprehensive (and usually lengthy) examination which, typically, poses several hypothetical legal situations or problems, based on the course work, and asks for analysis and conclusions in essay answers. With some exceptions in advanced course offerings, as well as in seminars and professional experience options, the same general methods of instruction and examination are followed throughout the law school curriculum.

In Legal Research Tutorial students in the first year are assigned to small class sections for individualized instruction and assistance, especially in legal research and writing. Legal tutorial, as well as Moot Court competition (which begins in the second semester), invokes the student's careful analysis of legal problems, requires extensive library research and calls for forceful presentation, both written and oral.

In the remaining first semester course, Legal Bibliography, the student through a series of lectures and research questions is thoroughly familiarized with the uses and organization of, and ways into, the resource materials of the Law Library. This course, like the rest of the first-year curriculum, is a basic introduction into the law. It provides the foundation for all legal research, both of the law student and of the practicing lawyer.

The course in Criminal Procedure explains the processes of applying criminal laws, from arrest through arraignment, indictment, trial, judgment and sentencing. Attention focuses on the respective powers and rights of the prosecution and the accused person and the continuing problems in achieving public order and protection and guaranteeing individual rights.

The first-year course in Constitutional Law ranges over the development of the United States Constitution as the primary law of the land from the time of its ratification to its construction and interpretation today. In addition to civil liberties and individual rights, the course concentrates on the division of authority between state and federal governments, among the three branches of government, and between the public and private sectors of business and society.

Property concerns the legally-protected rights and powers over real estate and personal property that comprise “ownership” and other interests. Like Torts and Contracts, this course has a strong historical orientation. In order fully to portray our present structure of property law, it traces the evolution of it from the times when possession was the primary indicium of ownership and when interests in land pervasively determined social status.

Second Year

All second-year courses in the College of Law curriculum are elective; many are open to both second-year and third-year students. In this way each individual is able to make up his own well-rounded course of study, with whatever degree and kind of concentration he chooses. Most of the courses enlarge upon or continue from first year offerings. Practice and Procedure II and Evidence carry forward topics from first-year Procedure; Commercial Law and Business Associations cover the law of commercial transactions (business and consumer contracts, banking transactions, debtor-creditor security agreements, and the like) and business entities and relationships (principal and agent, employer and employee, partnership and corporation); Trusts and Estates considers the transmission of property interests by both testate and intestate succession, the responsibilities of fiduciaries and the administration of trusts; and Remedies and Creditors’ Rights go in detail into the law specialized to the effect and enforcement of legal obligations. An important second-year course, Legal Profession, examines the American Bar Association’s Code of Professional Responsibility and other ethical and professional precepts which set the standards for lawyers’ work and proscribe unprofessional practices. To enrich the variety of courses offered, and enhance the opportunity for student scheduling during both the second and third year of study, a number of courses may be elected during either year.

Third Year

In the third and culminating year of study in the College of Law, the kinds of learning situations open to the student are very broad. Through course electives, he can continue specializations begun in the first and second years, for example, in taxation (Tax Planning, Taxation III, Estate Planning), procedure and litigation (Fact Finding, Federal Courts) and property (Land Use Planning, Future Interests, Land Finance, Estate Planning). He can explore topical areas of government regulation and responsibility such as Labor Law, Family Law, Social Legislation, Insurance and Government Regulation of Business.

The selection of seminars in both semesters of the third year reflects not only a diverse range of subjects but also a variety of instructional methods and learning activities. In many seminars, a student is expected to submit a research paper or make a similar presentation for class criticism and discussion. In others and in the Independent Study Program, he is invited to engage in field and other original research that takes him outside the law school to tackle current problems and issues of social and legal importance. In addition, the Professional Experience Options open to third-year students provide valuable experience and training in the kinds of work in which practicing lawyers engage and help assure a smooth transition from academic study to professional employment.

Grading System

For all students entering the College of Law for the first time on or after the beginning of the fall semester, 1971, the special letter grading system described below applies. For students first enrolled prior to that time, the numerical marking system under which they began continues to apply until they graduate.

The College of Law uses a special letter grading system in which the following grades are given with the respective quality point values indicated:

- A+ 4.3
- A+ 4.0
- A 3.7
- A- 3.3
- B+ 3.0
- B 2.7
- B- 2.3
- C+ 2.0
- C 1.7
- C- 1.3
- D+ 1.0
- D 0.7
- D- 0.3
- E 0

A student's academic grade record is expressed as a grade-point average computed by multiplying the semester hours of credit for each course by the quality point value of the grade received in the course. These products are added together, and the sum is divided by the total semester hours attempted. The grade-point average thus derived is the basis for each student's academic status as indicated in the annual publication of the Law Faculty Rules and Policies.
Scholastic Regulations

Students enrolled prior to the fall semester of 1971 continue under the 1970 Law Faculty Rules and Policies until they graduate. All students entering the College of Law for the first time on or after the beginning of the fall semester of 1971 are subject to the following:

1. Source and Coverage of Rules

Non-academic relationships between students and the University are covered in the Code of Student Conduct found in the University publication Student Rights and Responsibilities. Academic relationships between students and the University appear in the separately published Rules of the University Senate. The foregoing descriptions of relationships apply to law students together with the Law Faculty Rules and Policies Concerning Scholastic Standards, Attendance, and Other Matters. The latter are issued annually and posted on the Dean's Bulletin Board. Unless otherwise indicated, all rules are effective with the beginning of the fall term for the ensuing academic year and summer session. The faculty reserves the right, however, to change any rule or establish new rules at any time upon due and proper notice.

2. Academic Requirements and Exclusion for Poor Scholarship

A student beginning the study of law for the first time on or after the fall semester of 1971 must achieve a cumulative grade-point average of at least 2.0 at the end of the first year of law study (his first and second semesters). Thereafter the student must achieve a grade-point average of at least 2.0 for his second year of law study (his third and fourth semesters) regardless of the cumulative grade-point average for the two years (four semesters). A student failing to meet this academic requirement will be dropped from the University for poor scholarship.

3. Readmission

A student who has been dropped from the College of Law will not be recommended by the Dean for readmission until he has received favorable consideration by the law faculty of a written petition stating good reasons why he can do satisfactory academic work. Mere excuses for poor performance will not be accepted as good cause. Ordinarily a student who has been excluded will not be eligible for readmission until the expiration of one semester plus one summer term following his being excluded. Approval for readmission will not be given except upon unusually good cause shown in the petition. Reinstatement applications must present evidence of substantial accomplishment, either in academic study or employment, during the period of exclusion. No student who has been twice excluded will be readmitted without approval of the University Senate Council.

4. Class Attendance, Absences, and Withdrawal

a. Every student must maintain attendance satisfactory to the instructor in each of his classes. A student may be excluded from any course for excessive absences upon the recommendation of the instructor, with the concurrence of the Dean. No instructor is authorized to excuse absences.

b. Whenever any student has been absent from 25 percent of the total of class meetings in any course, in any term, for whatever reason, he shall be disqualified to take the final examination in such course or to receive credit therefor. For the purposes of this excessive absence rule, the following shall be treated as absences: any absence for the purpose of an examination, vacation, or illness. Any absence beyond the extent of 25 percent shall be deemed to constitute 50 percent: four absences in any one-hour course; twelve absences in any two-hour course; twelve absences in any two-hour course;
In any three-hour course; sixteen absences in any four-hour course. Instructors may require special makeup assignments for excessive absences amounting to 25 percent in lieu of excluding the student, and may take such absences into account in the final grade of the student along with the quality of daily work done.

c. It is the policy of the College of Law to schedule afternoon as well as morning classes. Accordingly, if any student finds it impossible to take afternoon classes because of outside work, he will be expected to take a reduced load, and thereby to tend his time for completing graduation requirements.

d. Any student who withdraws from Law School any time after registration during any semester term should be certain to withdraw formally and officially by reporting in person to the office of the dean and the office of the University Registrar. Compliance with the procedures of those offices is necessary to avoid failing grades and to keep one's record straight in the Law School and in the University. Withdrawal from the College of Law requires approval of the Dean. Withdrawal from an individual course requires consultation with the instructor, followed by his approval, and approval of the Dean, on a card obtained from the Dean's office. It is not the policy of the faculty to permit a student to withdraw from Law School or from individual courses late in a semester or term with grades of W, except in extraordinary circumstances. If his load is too heavy, the student should discover this early in the semester. Consequently, any student who withdraws from Law School or from an individual course during the last six weeks of a semester, or the last three weeks of a summer term, will automatically receive a failing grade in any course affected, subject to the right of the student to petition the faculty to have such grade or grades changed to W for cause. No instructor is authorized to give a W in such circumstances without faculty approval, but the instructor is authorized to give a failing grade if in his judgment the work of the student has been unsatisfactory up to that time even if the faculty has granted permission for him to give a W. As to earlier withdrawals, the instructor has full discretion, based on the student's work up to the time of withdrawal and subject to the Rules of the University Senate.

5. Requirements for Degree

Students admitted to the College of Law as Regular students (at least ten hours per semester and five hours per summer term) will be eligible for the degree of Juris Doctor (J.D.) upon completion of a minimum of three academic years (six semesters) of residence, and 87 hours of courses, in the College of Law, with a grade-point average of 2.0 or better. Students admitted for the first time prior to the fall semester of 1971 continue under the 1970 Law Faculty Rules and Policies until they graduate.

6. Outside Work

The regular curricula leading to the degree of J.D. are considered to require substantially the full time of all students. Students who must engage in outside employment for more than a few hours per week are advised to take reduced loads. Outside work cannot be accepted as a substitute for law study nor as an excuse for poor work in law study. At the time of registration, all students are required to furnish a written statement as to the number of hours per week they will work. Any student who works more than 20 hours per week on the outside will be required to reduce his academic load.
7. Schedules and Elective Courses

Law courses are either required or elective, and are planned to provide a well-rounded curriculum of such content as to give the student a balanced legal education. To this end, term programs are based on groups of courses for each "category" of students. Normally a category is composed of all students who first entered upon law during a given semester. Any student desiring to substitute in a particular term, any course not offered to his category must obtain the permission of the Dean or his designate for approving schedules.

8. Plagiarism as an Academic Offense

The Rules of the University Senate provide: "All academic work, written or otherwise, submitted by a student to his instructor or other academic supervisor, is expected to be the result of his own thought, research, or self-expression. In any case in which a student feels unsure about a question of plagiarism involving his work, he is obliged to consult his instructor on the matter before submitting it.

"When a student submits work purporting to be his own, but which in any way borrows ideas, organization, wording, or anything else from another source without appropriate acknowledgment of the fact, the student is guilty of plagiarism.

"Plagiarism includes reproducing someone else's work, whether it be published articles, a chapter of a book, or a paper from a friend or some file. Plagiarism also includes the practice of employing or allowing another person to alter or revise the work which a student submits as his own, whoever that other person may be. Students may discuss assignments among themselves or with an instructor or tutor, but when the actual work is done it must be done by the student, and the student alone.

"When a student's assignment involves research in outside sources or information, he must carefully acknowledge exactly when, where, and how he has employed them. If he uses the words of someone else, he must put quotation marks around the passage in question, and add an appropriate indication of its origin. Making simple changes while leaving the organization, content, and phraseology intact is plagiaristic. However, nothing in these rules shall apply to those ideas which are so generally and freely circulated as to be a part of the public domain."

Penalties for the academic offense of plagiarism are prescribed by the Rules of the University Senate; the punishments include expulsion, actual suspension for a specified time, forced withdrawal from the department or course, and any punitive grade for the paper, examination or course in which the offense occurred.

9. Daily Preparation

Effective instruction in the College of Law requires preparation of daily assignments by students. The case and problem method cannot be effectively used when students are not prepared. Therefore, the instructor may exercise wide discretion in taking action he deems necessary to insure that classroom performance will be maintained at a high level.

Admission to the Bar

Upon receiving his J.D. degree, the graduate of the College of Law is qualified to take the bar examination in any state or jurisdiction. In many states the initial application to take the bar examination leading to admission to practice must be filed at the time of, or soon after, entrance into law school. Students who intend to practice in Kentucky will be informed by the office of the Dean.
shortly after enrollment about this and other regulations concerning admission to the Kentucky Bar. (The Kentucky State Bar Examiners have fixed the application fee at $15 for residents and $100 for nonresidents.) Other students should investigate the requirements for admission in the states where they expect to practice. The Dean’s office will assist upon request.
The Law Library

The Law Library contains about 115,000 volumes and is one of the larger law libraries in the Southeast. The collection includes the reports of all state and federal courts and many federal administrative agencies, as well as an extensive range of British Commonwealth reports. It is a partial depository for United States Government publications. The Library maintains copies of the statutes of all states, the federal government, England and Canada; over 500 foreign and domestic legal periodicals; encyclopedias; treaties; major loose-leaf services; and related materials. It also receives the briefs of the Kentucky Court of Appeals and microfilm copies of records and briefs filed in the United States Supreme Court. Special collections include the Kocourek Jurisprudence Collection, presented to the Library by Professor Albert Kocourek in 1941, and the Stanley F. Reed Collection, supported by a fund established by Mr. Justice Reed’s former law clerks upon his retirement from the United States Supreme Court in 1957.

The annual accession rate for the Law Library exceeds 5,000 volumes. Except for a small reserve collection, all books are arranged on open shelves to permit students to use the materials freely. Individual study carrels are assigned to advanced students.

The resources of the Margaret I. King Library, the general library of the University, are readily available to law students. Containing more than 1,000,000 volumes, the King Library is one of the fastest-growing libraries in the South. It is an official United States Government depository, a United Nations depository, and holds numerous volumes of invaluable legal research materials.

Kentucky Law Journal

Of the seventy law reviews published by the nation’s law schools, the Kentucky Law Journal is the tenth oldest. Publication has been continuous since 1912. Four issues are published annually by the College of Law.

The Journal is edited entirely by a student Editorial Board, with guidance from a faculty adviser. Each issue contains leading articles and book reviews written by prominent scholars in legal and related fields and Notes and Comments written by Journal members.

In addition to the value of the information supplied its readers, the Journal provides an excellent educational experience for its student members, who are selected through a competitive candidacy program. They acquire expertise in legal research, analysis and writing that supplements the training of the law school curriculum. More importantly, as authors of Notes and Comments they have an opportunity to communicate to a large and influential audience their criticisms of law and society, their solutions for modern problems and their concepts of justice.
Moot Court Program

A system of Moot Court Law Clubs managed by a Board composed entirely of students, with advice and assistance from faculty advisers, provides all students with training and experience in competitive oral argument and brief writing. Every student participates in Moot Court arguments during his second and third semesters. Thereafter elimination rounds culminate in the selection of a three-man student team to represent the College of Law in the National Moot Court Competition sponsored by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York. In addition, the four finalists meet in a triangular competition held each spring with the University of Cincinnati and Ohio State University to conduct an argument before the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

Practice Court

More than 50 years ago the College became one of the first law schools in the country to make a practice court program an integral part of the curriculum. Law students act as counsel, witnesses and jurors in realistic trials conducted weekly in the courtroom of the Law Building. The trials are open to the student body.

Legal Aid and Intern Program

The College of Law operates a well-established legal aid program in cooperation with the Fayette County Bar Association and the bar associations of surrounding counties. Under the rules of the Court of Appeals of Kentucky, third-year students, under stated conditions, may be certified as legal interns, and as such are entitled to appear in court on behalf of persons unable to employ counsel or on behalf of the Commonwealth, under the supervision of a member of the bar. Advanced students have the opportunity under both programs to interview indigent clients, to be in court, to assist practicing attorneys, and to gain valuable clinical experience in the solution of legal problems, both civil and criminal.

Independent Study Program

Third-year students are authorized to earn up to three hours of academic credit each semester (or up to six hours during the summer session prior to graduation) in programs of independent study. To qualify for participation in the program, a student obtains the sponsorship of a faculty member who agrees to recommend the student's project and to oversee his work. The program is designed to permit and encourage students to undertake individual work of legal and social significance that goes beyond the opportunities for research otherwise available.

Law Alumni Day

A day is set aside at the University each spring as Law Alumni Day. The program features addresses and panel discussions by nationally prominent attorneys. Other events include demonstration arguments and trials by outstanding Moot Court competitors and Practice Court participants, a Recognition Program honoring graduating seniors and other law students, and the annual Student Bar Association dinner dance.

Student Bar Association

The Student Bar Association, affiliated with the Law Student Division of the American Bar As sociation, plays an important role in student life in the College of Law. Including all students in its membership, the Association provides substantial services to student orientation, housing, recreation and placement. Its weekly forum brings to the College of Law prominent attorneys and other persons to speak on current topics relating to law students' professional education. The Association recommends persons from the student body for appointment to faculty committees to assume student participation in most areas of the decision-making process. It publishes the Kentucky Commentator (a student edited socio-legal magazine), sponsors dances and other social events, and organizes to a large extent the annual Law Alumni Day program.

Law Students' Civil Rights Research Council

The Council consists of local chapters at law schools throughout the nation. The College of Law chapter was formed in 1966. The purpose of the organization is to provide research and investigative assistance to lawyers and groups who are engaged in civil liberties litigation, to encourage law students to develop a permanent interest in these areas of legal practice, and to establish programs for the recruitment of minority groups members into the legal profession.

Legal Fraternities

Three of the leading national legal fraternities, Phi Alpha Delta, Phi Delta Phi and Delta Theta Phi, have chapters at the University of Kentucky College of Law. A chapter of Kappa Beta Pi, international legal sorority, was installed in 1966. A local chapter of the Black American Law Student Association was organized in 1970. All promote their purposes to maintain and elevate the professional and ethical standards of the legal profession and to provide worthwhile social organizations that foster enduring friendships and helpful associations within the profession.

Order of the Coif

The College of Law and about one-third of the other accredited law schools in the nation have been granted charters by the Order of the Coif, an honor society for the recognition of excellence in legal scholarship. Selection of membership is limited to students who complete the three years of legal study in the top ten percent of their class academically and otherwise demonstrate outstanding ability.

Prizes and Awards

A number of cash prizes and valuable book awards are made each year to students in the College of Law who have excelled in their academic work or have done exceptionally well in such extracurricular activities as the Law Journal, Moot Court competition and the Practice Court program.

The following donors are among those who have contributed prizes and awards for College of Law students. The College is grateful to them for their contribution to its academic program.

American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers

Annotated Reports (The Bancroft-Whitney Company and the Lawyers Co-operative Publishing Company)
Placement Services

In their senior year all graduates of the College receive assistance for placement in the legal profession from the office of the Assistant Dean, the University of Kentucky Placement Service and the Young Lawyers Section of the Kentucky Bar Association. Representatives from law firms, corporate legal departments, government agencies (federal and state), the military services, and other employers come to the College each year to interview third-year students.

The range of employment opportunities generally open to law graduates is wide; the College is ready to assist individually any student with special placement needs and interests.

Continuing Legal Education

In cooperation with the Kentucky State Bar Association and the Fayette County Bar Association, the College conducts a program of continuing legal education for the bar, including non-credit short courses and annual institutes on elected topics of general interest to the legal profession and other groups.
