USE OF LASER DISK TECHNOLOGY

We are here to announce, perhaps prematurely, the death of the hard disk as a storage medium for microcomputers.

At George Mason, we have recently purchased a compact laser disk player that attaches to any IBM compatible microcomputer.

The storage capacity of just one disk is incredible. How many of you have seen the card datalog rooms at the Library of Congress? Would you believe that I could carry the complete English-language MARC records in my jacket pocket? A single 5 ¼ inch compact disk has the storage equivalent of 1500 normal floppy diskettes or 500 of the most advanced mini-floppies. Put another way, this disk represents 600 megabytes of ROM storage. Our five-megabyte hard disk looks a little out of date by comparison. 600 megabytes of hard disk storage would have cost $240,000, if purchased when we bought our hard disk two years ago. The laser disk player costs $3,000.

An additional aspect of a CD-ROM disk is that it is a non-erasable, archival medium. Mary Tonne Schaeffer, the editor of Information Retrieval and Library Automation writes:

The write once format is now regarded as a durable, relatively “permanent” storage medium. However, in actual application, laser discs are a very new technology and have simply not been around long enough or used in a wide enough range of situations to be documented over time in terms of durability. Nevertheless, the magnetic tapes and “hard” magnetic discs now used in large computers and some small computers are susceptible to damage by heat, dust particles, fingerprints, and other erosive impacts. Floppy discs used in personal computers are even more prone to damage from such sources and from the wear and tear of normal use. Microfilm and microfiche are similarly fragile. Optical discs do not now appear to be subject to damage from these factors.

If you have smokers or coffee drinkers in your office, you know the problems of floppy disks as a storage device. Do these same problems exist with laser disks? Let me read to you from the laser disk manual:

CD-ROM access times are usually shorter on a clean laser disc. If time-out or other read problem, wash the laser disc in warm, soapy water, then dry with a lint-free cloth.

Some skeptics believe that the access speed of optical disk systems is too slow. A large scale high-powered magnetic disk drive can transfer data at a rate of 3 million characters per second. The most advanced optical disk systems operate at a factor of 10 slower, that is, 300 thousand characters per second. The best response we have heard to that kind of complaint was made by Professor Kenneth York of Pepperdine University in a speech delivered at last year’s A.A.L.S. meeting in San Francisco. He put the question, “How fast can you drink water from a fire hose?”

Random access erasable optical disks are scheduled to be marketed late this year.

The Sony magneto-optical disk is 30 centimeters in diameter, rotates at 900 RPM, and has 43,750 tracks per side with 25 1-kilobyte sectors per track. The disk is made of the same acrylic material as that of Sony’s compact audio laser disks. Each side of the disk offers a whopping gigabyte of storage. A gigabyte is a billion bytes, which is a thousand megabytes or about one million double-spaced pages!

Previously, optical disks were read-only, which limited their use as computer storage devices. The new Sony erasable optical disk represents a major breakthrough, since it can be read from and written to in a fashion similar to that of a traditional floppy or Winchester disk. Sony claims that the disk has an average access time of 100 milliseconds and a transfer rate of about 320 kilobytes per second.

When this occurs, the hard disk is really dead. Other consequences to the library world are even more staggering. Sources at West Publishing Company tell us that the full-text of the entire second series of the National Reporter System will fit on two of the 12 inch versions of this disk. The entire LEXIS Database will fit on approximately ten 12 inch disks. The time is rapidly approaching when these companies will have to change their marketing strategy and sell laser-disk copies of their databases, controlling them through updating services. The savings to libraries in communication charges alone would be astronomical.

The other area of information handling media that is in serious trouble is the microfilm/microfiche industry. Any machine readable database that currently is used to produce COM fiche or film is easily put on laser disk.
From The President

These thoughts consists of a jambalaya that I would like to share with the chapter’s members.

First public thanks must be stated in writing to all who partook in any way in the New Orleans meeting. The joint efforts of the Southeastern and the New Orleans Chapters of AALL could be outdone in only one way, that is by having the annual meeting of AALL in New Orleans at the earliest possible opportunity. Dick Danner, Susan English and Peggy Martin (with assistance from Carol Billings) put together a program that will be hard to follow. The mixture of substance and procedure held the attention of those present from start to finish. I felt like I had really come home when I heard Max Nathan’s remarks about the “Code Napolean” and “jurisprudence constante.” Each speaker thereafter, from Claire Germain to Jim Derbes, came with something to say and left having created a spark of real interest on topics about which some of us may not have previously thought. Those present and the entire membership of the Chapter owe all a debt of gratitude for maintaining and expanding upon the standards set over the years in programs sponsored by the Southeastern Chapter.

Betty Kern and an endless list of dedicated members of NOAALL/SEÀLL take second place to no one. They showed hospitality as only New Orleanians can and then threw in a little lagniappe to boot. I only repeat my previous question, “WHEN IS AALL GOING TO MEET IN NEW ORLEANS?”

Several committees have been active. The Scholarship Committee named four Lucile Elliot Scholarship recipients and one recipient of Smith & Hulsey. Many thanks to both. Perhaps others could be encouraged to emulate the example of Smith & Hulsey.

The Membership Committee has identified some 139 AALL members living in the southeast who do not currently belong to SEÀALL. They will receive recruitment literature from the Committee encouraging them to join our chapter. At the New York meeting the Committee expects to announce an even more ambitious recruiting effort. What about all you SEÀALL members, do all of you hold AALL membership? Do you SEÀALL members know persons who should be encouraged to join both SEÀALL and AALL?

The Placement Committee is concerned about the placement process. We seem rarely to utilize the services of the SEÀALL Placement Committee. All recognize the fact that vacancies don’t always occur just before the printing deadline of the next SEÀALL or AALL newsletter. The committee, however, is interested in exploiting the existent procedures and especially in developing new more efficient ones. Your input will be most appreciated by the committee.

On recommendation of Southeastern Law Librarian Co-Editors Mary Bourget and Hazel Johnson the Board approved the acceptance of business card advertisement to help defray some of the cost of the Newsletters. Editors Bourget and Johnson would welcome articles for inclusion in the Newsletter.

Lastly the Nomination Committee nominated Carol Billings and Hazel Johnson for the position of Vice-President/President elect. It’s a shame that we will have to chose between two such dedicated talented persons. We appreciate greatly their willingness to serve.

Elsewhere in this newsletter you will find notices concerning the New York meeting. Remember that you must respond to the breakfast inquiry by June 1 if you wish to benefit from the partial subsidence provided by the Chapter. In any event we need to know how many plan to attend the breakfast meeting to assure that proper facilities are provided.

Finally both Dick Danner and I hope that you will take the time to fill out the 1985-86 Committee Membership form. It will assist Dick greatly when he makes next year’s appointments later this summer.

MINUTES:
March 9, 1985

The meeting of the Southeastern Chapter of the American Association of Law Libraries was called to order by Edwin Schroeder, Florida State University College of Law, at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, March 9, 1985 at the Moutheleone Hotel in New Orleans, Louisiana.

Edwin Schroeder extended the thanks of the Southeastern Chapter to Betty Kern and the local arrangements committee for the work they had done for this meeting.

A motion was made and passed to accept the minutes of the meeting held on July 2, 1984, in San Diego, California as printed in the Chapter’s newsletter, the Southeastern Law Librarian, Vol. 10, No. 1. Secretary/Treasurer Margarete Dye, Paul, Hastings, Janofsky & Walker, gave the financial report. The balance at the time of the last report (June 27, 1984) was $5,627.16. The amount of additional dues is $3,140.00 and interest on the association's account is $142.10. The debits covering the check order and printing and postage for the newsletter totalled $1,667.85. This left a balance, as of January 31, 1985, of $7,241.41. It was noted that the association had the expenses for the scholarships and the next newsletter still outstanding.

Martha Rush, College of William and Mary, gave the report for the Membership Committee. The committee would like to develop a brochure for SEALL and also plans to send letters to all AALL members in the Southeastern region who are not members of SEALL.

Mary Bourget, Akerman, Senterfitt & Edison, announced that the newsletter will begin accepting advertising effective with Vol. 11, No. 1. She also announced that if you do not pay your dues you do not get the newsletter.

Edwin Schroeder gave the report for the Nominations Committee. The nominees for the Vice-President/President-Elect, 1985-1986, are Carol Billings, Law Library of Louisiana, and Hazel Johnson, Smith & Hulsey.

Cherry L. Thomas, University of Alabama Law Library, gave the report for the placement committee. Using the SEALL newsletter for placements is not effective as it is issued on a quarterly basis. Creating a network of placement officers is being investigated.

Larry Wenger, University of Virginia Law Library, announced that the 1986 meeting will be held in Charlottesville, Virginia, April 18th through April 20th. He solicited comments on holding sessions through Saturday afternoon instead of adjourning at noon.

Kathy Stokes, University of Miami Law Library, announced the recipients of the Lucille Elliott Scholarships: Mary Cooper, University of Virginia Law Library; Mark Evans, Florida State University; Kathy Heberer, Akerman, Senterfitt & Eidson; Jane Needham, Julius C. Markham Library and the University of North Carolina, and Randy Owen, Law Library of Louisiana.

She also extended thanks to the law firm of Smith & Hulsey for their donation of $300.00 for the fifth scholarship. Edwin Schroeder added that if the recipients were not able to use their scholarships for this meeting they would be able to hold it for later use. The Smith & Hulsey donation was used this year to encourage similar donations in the future.

Edwin Schroeder made the following announcements: (1) The cost of the SEALL breakfast at the AALL meeting in July in New York will be $11.00 if paid by June 1st. After that date the full cost of $16.00 will be charged; (2) Helen Burwell, Hutcheson & Grundy, Houston, Texas, is chairing a meeting on LEXIS pricing and would like your comments; (3) Rick Ducey, New England School of Law Library, Boston, Massachusetts, is soliciting comments on recommended books for prison libraries; (4) Mary Anthony, Supreme Court Library at Syracuse, Syracuse, New York, wants contributions on state and local documents developments for the newsletter JURISDOCS; (5) the SEALL Executive Board is soliciting bids for the Chapter’s 1987 meeting. A formal proposal is needed by the June meeting in New York.

Ed Edmonds, College of William and Mary, is working on an article updating the history of the Southeastern Chapter and wants information and/or archival material.

Ed Schroder then introduced Jacquelyn Jurkins, the President of AALL, who talked about the relationship between the chapters and AALL and what the national association is currently doing.

A motion to adjourn was made and carried. The meeting was adjourned.

EDITORS CORNER

Echoing our President, the SEALL/NOALL meeting in New Orleans was a great success. In between our educational sessions, which are summarized in this issue, and our two-hour lunch, however, some issues of importance to the future of the SOUTHEASTERN LAW LIBRARIAN were decided. With Executive Board approval, we will begin accepting business-card size ads for the Summer issue which is scheduled for publication in June. Our printing costs are sky-rocketing and with the ads we hope to keep our costs down. But we need your help. We need a volunteer to serve as Advertising Manager. You would need only to solicit the ads, and coordinate their placement in each issue. Advertising rates have already been set and we are ready to go. Please let us hear from you.

The second decision affecting the Newsletter is that after this issue, individuals who have not paid their dues for the current year will be dropped from the mailing list. So be sure to get those dues in if you haven’t already. We’d really hate for you to miss a single issue.

Hazel L. Johnson
Mary S. Bourget
How about all of the CIS microfiche library on five or ten disks with microcomputer access and letter quality printouts that could be incorporated into your world processing system? And no more humidity controlled and specially zoned rooms. Laser disks are practically indestructible.

Anyway, what does all of this have to do with microcomputers at George Mason University? We will be using the CD-ROM laser disk player attached to an IBM-PC/AT to finish the retrospective conversion of our cataloging records into machine readable form. We did our original conversion using an Apple IIe loaned to us by The Computer Company of Richmond, Virginia. We searched their database using the Apple, adding our information and holding symbols, then saving the data on floppy diskettes. We subsequently transferred the information back to Richmond via a telephone hook-up. The Computer Company then converted the information to magnetic tape and merged that tape with our current record OCLC tape to produce a COM fiche catalog.

The laser system will work in a similar manner. But instead of searching a database on-line, we will have the database in-house, accessible without communication charges or problems. The access to the catalog production system, called Bibliofile and sold by a company called The Library Corporation, is through the ten special function keys located on the AT's keyboard. These include:

F1 — Search the MARC database on laser disk.
F2 — Display the system menu.
F3 — Edit the current MARC record.
F4 — Display the card image of the current MARC record.
F5 — Create an original MARC record.
F6 — Print a set of headed catalog cards.

COMPARABLE WORTH

By Anne D. Bardolph
Florida State University
Law Library

Laura N. Gasaway, Law Librarian at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and Kathleen M. Heim, Dean of the School of Library and Information Science, Louisiana State University, spoke on comparable worth, or equal pay for equal work, which is considered the biggest pay issue of the decade. There are two main reasons for low salaries in female dominated professions. Historically, the first jobs to open to women were closely related to their jobs in the home, including such fields as teaching, food services, librarianship and nursing. Women were not considered to be contributing to the economic well-being of society and family.

Secondly, low salaries can be attributed to job disruption or to employers' assumptions that women will not have sustained careers. Discrimination is both conscious and unconscious. Today a woman with a college degree can expect to make the same salary as a man with an eighth grade education.

Librarians need to band together with other female dominated professions facing the same problem. Even male librarians, though generally paid more than women, suffer reduced status and salary for choosing to work in a female dominated profession. (90 percent of librarians are female).

A.L.A. has been active on the issue of comparable worth and has an information packet available.

ADVERTISING COORDINATOR NEEDED

SOUTHEASTERN LAW LIBRARIAN will begin accepting advertisements for placement in the last issue of the year, Volume 10 Number 4, scheduled for publication in early summer. A person is needed to contact potential advertisers and coordinate placement of their ads in the newsletter. This will not take a great deal of time, especially for an acquisitions librarian or someone with established contacts. Please call Mary Bourget at (305) 843-7860 or Hazel Johnson at (904) 359-7700 to volunteer!
CAUTION: Dialog Version 2 will accept some search statements formulated in the original Dialog format, but not all (an "error" message will appear). Don’t learn Dialog Version 2 and then forget you happen to be logged into the current system. The new search statements won’t work and you’ll only waste money.

If you’re concerned about making the adjustment to Dialog Version 2 then you might consider signing up for one of the special training sessions scheduled throughout the Southeast in April.

LEXIS

Continuing the discussion of new LEXIS features from the previous issue, ECLIPSE provides automatic updates on specified search topics. An ECLIPSE update automatically produces a printed report in the format you request and at a time interval you specify. You can gain access to the ECLIPSE service by transmitting your search request and pressing the SELECT SERV key. Specific directions will appear on the screen. The cost of an ECLIPSE update service is based on a percentage of a regular search done during peak hours.

The newest database on LEXIS is “Exchange,” a full text, financial file. The information in this database includes company and industry reports and analyses from selected investment banking firms, brokerage firms and business research firms. 10-Q filings from the Securities and Exchange Commission are also included for the companies covered by these selected reports. 10-K and 8-K filings will be available soon.

Searching on the Exchange database is essentially the same as searching on any other LEXIS database; however, there are some differences such as using the ticker symbol when searching for a company. It is important to read the information on Exchange supplied by LEXIS. In addition, it is important to remember that the Exchange database is not comprehensive. As noted earlier, only those companies covered by one of the participating firms are included.

Each of these new services from LEXIS is discussed in the new LEXIS REFERENCE MANUAL and/or the LEXIS LIBRARIES GUIDE. The REFERENCE MANUAL, which has been in preparation for a number of years, was only recently published. The LIBRARIES GUIDE was issued several months ago. These two resources are necessities for LEXIS users and can be obtained from any local LEXIS representative.

WESTLAW

State topical databases are now available in each state for education, family law, insurance and securities. Consult the directory page for each state to determine if the scope of coverage will allow you to perform your search more efficiently.

When the message “No documents satisfy your search request” appears on the screen, WESTLAW has always allowed you to edit your query and try again. You were left feeling stuck if you wanted to keep your original search request and try a different database. Now WESTLAW instructs you how to run the same search screen (on WALT, hit Delete/EOF key), and type S DB___ , filling in the database identifier you select. Until you enter a new search request, WESTLAW retains the current search, even if it’s no longer displayed on the screen. For example, if you decide to edit your query and type in Q DB___ , revise your

CIVIL LAW RESEARCH METHODS

By Mary S. Bourget, Akerman, Senterfitt & Eidson

Claire M. Germain, Assistant Librarian for Information Services and Lecturer in Comparative Law at Duke University School of Law, began by explaining the fundamental difference between researching common law and civil law. In common law, the researcher begins with a case law, whereas in civil law research begins with statutes. After looking at the statute, the next logical step, depending on the country, is to research in treatises, encyclopedias, or legal reviews. Legal reviews contain not only doctrinal articles but also some annotated judicial decisions. Generally, in civil law countries, there are no digest or citators to refer to. The current status of case law must be checked by looking at legal reviews.

Ms. Germain recommended using English language materials when researching the civil law. Her bibliography, which was handed out at the session, provided a thorough list of materials to consider using when researching civil law.

INTRODUCTION TO THE CIVIL LAW

By Mary S. Bourget, Akerman, Senterfitt & Eidson

Max Nathan, Jr., of the New Orleans law firm of Sessions, Fisherman, Rosenson, Boisfontaine & Nathan, began the session with an in-depth historical look at the development of civil law. The origins of civil law have been traced to the Code of Hammurabi and the civil law tradition is currently being maintained by two-thirds of the world. In the United States, common law prevails on the federal level and in all states, except Louisiana. Mr. Nathan traced the development of the civil law in Louisiana from the French Civil Code of 1804 (Code Napoleon) to the Digest of Laws of the Territory of Orleans (1808) to the Code of 1825, which is still in use today, although there was also a revision after the Civil War (Code of 1870). He pointed out that the codes were written in English and French and that even today, when tracing an ambiguity of current civil law, the French code prevails if there has been an error in translation.

In conclusion, Mr. Nathan pointed out that civil law uses the deductive approach (general to particular) while common law uses the inductive approach (particular to general). And yet, while many differences in vocabulary and nomenclature exist, civil and common law generally reach the same conclusions.

LEGAL RESPONSE TO THE DILEMMA OF HISTORIC PRESERVATION

By Carol Billings, Law Library of Louisiana

The dilemma that confronts federal, state and municipal governments in matters involving historic preservation was brought into sharp focus by two of the panelists at the New Orleans convention’s first Saturday morning session. Former Secretary of Housing and Urban Development and Mayor of New Orleans, Moon Landrieu, while acknowledging the importance of preserving historic sites and structures, argued that the rights of private property owners must be considered as well. He entered the caveat that it can be detrimental to a community to attempt to save too much. Not only is new development sometimes more beneficial than what it replaces, but also, the tax base of a city may be seriously eroded if owners of marginally significant historic buildings are granted large tax credits to restore them. The adverse effect on tax-supported services may drive property owners and businesses to the suburbs, robbing the city of its vitality.

Offering an eloquent rebuttal, James Derbes, a New Orleans attorney who has frequently represented preservation interests, emphasized the right of the individual and the community to enjoy the stability of their traditional environment. Development for economic gain, unhampered by preservation-inspired legislation and regulation can result in destruction of the ambiance and character of neighborhoods, he asserted. Our collective cultural heritage is threatened by an undue emphasis on private property rights.

This thought-provoking exchange was set in the context of a comprehensive program on historic background of the movement, and explanation of the role of federal and...

local regulatory councils and commissions, and a slide show featuring “before and after” views of the New Orleans business district. Mary Louise Christovich, New Orleans historian, author, and preservation activist, traced the history of both private and government actions to foster preservation of historic sites and buildings, highlighting significant legislation and judicial rulings. Director of the city’s Historic District Landmarks Commission, Saundra Katz Levy not only outlined the function of the various regulatory bodies, but showed slides illustrating improvements that their decisions had generated in New Orleans. Emphasizing the interdisciplinary nature of preservation efforts, University of New Orleans professor of Urban Studies Jane Brooks used slides to dramatize the revitalization of deteriorating New Orleans neighborhoods and the riverfront through restoration and redevelopment.

Note: This session was audio-taped. If anyone is particularly interested in having a copy, please contact Carol Billings. The only charge would be for the blank cassette and postage.

F7 — Order machine readable record.
F8 — Print label.
F9 — Save record to diskette.
F10 — Retrieve record from diskette.¹⁶

We load a work diskette into our internal disk drive on the AT and attach whatever information we want to the MARC record by downloading the records to the diskette. We then batch the diskettes and send them to The Library Corporation who, for $10, puts the diskettes into magnetic tape form which we can merge with our OCLC records to create our COM fiche catalog. By mid-1985, the quarterly replacement disks will be available weekly. Currently cataloging can be done for considerably less than the OCLC price and without any looming copyright problems.

A source at The Library Corporation has told us, perhaps a bit optimistically, that an erasable RAM disk will be available through his company by June, 1985. This disk player will hold 100 megabytes of RAM memory and will cost in the vicinity of $1,000. The imminent development of this technology was the primary reason we choose to go with IBM-PC/AT instead of just a PC. In addition to the erasable disk capability, The Library Corporation will produce software for a laser disk supported on-line public catalog. We will use the AT as the central unit for an in-house network of public terminals that will be available in the library and in faculty offices. Our entire card catalog will be on laser disk and will be accessible not only in-house, but also remotely through telephone lines and modems. With a 4.3 megabyte RAM board in the AT, we can support about twenty terminals that can access our catalog at the speed that a normal PC accesses information. The software system we are considering for this purpose is called Multi-Link.

ISSUES IN MEDIA AND ENTERTAINMENT LAW
By Hazel L. Johnson
Smith & Hulsey

Joseph M. Beck of the law firm Kilpatrick & Cody, Atlanta provided an overview of the major issues involved in the litigation of entertainment law. Entertainment law encompasses topics ranging from contracts to constitutional law, from agents to artists, from instant replays to late-night reruns. Three major areas of litigation in this field are 1) the invasion of the right of publicity of a person; 2) defamation by fiction or fiction; and 3) copyright infringement, including the fair use doctrine and the parody exception.

The right of publicity of a person includes more than the use of person’s name or their face. The question is one of commercial exploitation. Is an individual exploiting the persona of another for his own commercial gain? The courts have decided this is an invasion of the individual’s right of publicity. Defamation by fiction or fiction draws a fine line for an author’s use of actual people and situations as the basis for a work of “fiction.” Cases involving infringement are developing standards beyond which a parody or satire cannot extend. Mr. Beck, having represented Metro Goldwyn Mayer and other such clients, provided an outline of leading cases in this area.

Wes Daniels, University of Miami School of Law Library, provided an excellent bibliography of resources for entertainment law research. Noting that “any bibliography in the field risks quickly becoming frozen in time, . . . this guide provides . . . points of entry into the literature” including relevant LC subject headings and West headnote topics and key numbers.

In terms of our serials and acquisitions systems, we will convert our records from the Apple III to the IBM PC AT and hopefully make portions of those records available to the public as well.

Once all the parts of this system, including hardware and software, are put together, we expect the final cost to be somewhere between $15,000 to $20,000. We think this is the most affordable, largest data storage capacity system in the safest, most reliable format available for libraries.

In the immortal words of that great American philosopher, Yogi Berra, “It’s limitations are limitless.”
FIRST AALL WINTER INSTITUTE

The First AALL Winter Institute was held in Washington, D.C. on January 6-9, 1985, at the Capitol Hill Quality Inn. Ninety-eight law librarians from law schools, law firm libraries, and government agencies participated in the Institute; the theme for the Institute was “Managing for Improved Results: a Seminar in Personal Effectiveness.” Robert Oakley from Georgetown University Law Center and Michael Gehringer of the Joint Bank Fund Library were program directors.

Speakers and session leaders at the Institute were Warren Adams of K/A Associates, Denise Cavanaugh of Capital Gains, Inc., Jeffrey Gardner of ARL, Grace R. Reed of the U.S. Copyright Office, and Gerald Thomas of Cornell University. The introductory session of the Institute was held at the U.S. Supreme Court building; a tour of the Supreme Court Library was conducted by Penny Hazleton.

Participants in the Institute were divided into three groups; each group met the various session leaders on a rotating schedule. Gerald Thomas’ session was devoted to “Supervising the Career Cycle of an Employee.” Denise Cavanaugh spoke to the entire group at the first dinner meeting. Her topic, “Women as Managers,” was particularly interesting since she emphasized that every employee, men and women alike, must re-educate themselves regarding the qualities which good managers should have.

Traditional views concerning male and female characteristics must be changed in order to make a work unit productive. Gardner and Reed conducted the session on “Interpersonal Relations and Communications Skills.” Adams devoted his session of the Institute to “Decision Making.” All sessions of the Institute involved extensive participation from participants and considerable work in small groups. In addition, each participant took individual personality and other tests to determine the areas where he/she has strengths and weaknesses.

The closing reception of the Institute was held at the Folger Shakespeare Theatre and Library. A tour of the Folger Library was conducted before the reception.
