What we're doing!

We are creating a fully searchable digital page image archive of rare historic Kentuckiana books using a microfilm to digital methodology.
Who cares about it?

- Students, teachers and scholars will use this material to support their research and teaching.

- Programs are in development for K-12 students

In short, we’re making good stuff for the right reason, the right way.
How does this preserve anything?

- Microfilm ensures preservation
- Digital images ensure easy access and wide distribution

This hybrid, standards based non-proprietary approach can serve as a model for cost effective access and preservation for published materials!
What are these “historic Kentuckiana” books anyway?
J. Winston Coleman, Jr.’s:
A Bibliography of Kentucky History
Published 1949

- Includes printed books and pamphlets relating to Kentucky history or the lives of Kentuckians at home
- No magazine or newspaper articles
- No manuscripts
- 18th century to mid-20th century coverage
First question: Do we create files from -

- Source documents (which are likely brittle, bound and guarded by that ogre librarian with the nasty cattle prod) or ....

- Microfilm (leaving the master neg in the vault where it's safe while using the service neg, or print master, that's used to make boring paper copies)?
Right, so, how do we make these things?

- First we scan!
  - Mekel M525 scanner
    - Using the service master negative
    - Manual scans instead of automatic
    - Scanner splits images into their respective pages
Quality Control (QC) is key

- Scan Fix
- Photoshop
- ACDSee
- Image Converter
- Rename

Post QC

- Encoding
- OCR

This calculation accounts for $3,350,008, which do not fall within the ordinary current expenses of the government. Deduct then from this $3,506,380 00 the sum of $646,774 42 and we have the sum of $1,204,033 56 in favor of Mr. Adams's Administration during the three years, instead of seven or eight millions against it.
The present Administration has been charged with great extravagance, as to the expenses of our foreign intercourse. We cannot present a more full and satisfactory view of this subject, than that given by Mr. Bartlet, a distinguished member from New Hampshire, in a speech delivered in Congress, during last winter, which upon a careful examination, we believe to be correct. In answer to Mr. Rives of Virginia, he said,

"The fallacy or error of the statement of Mr. R. is in supposing to Mr. Adams one year of the expenses incurred and provided for, before he came to the office. The appropriations for 1823, was made in February, and with which Mr. Adams had no more to do, than his successor, whereas he may be, now has with the appropriation of this year. The amount of appropriations for foreign intercourse then stands thus:

"Leaving the expense of the three last years, $37,000 less than the three last appropriations of the preceding administration. But let us look still further back: and trace to Washington's administration. The foreign intercourse appropriations were then as follows:

Beyond the Shelf

We are creating a fully searchable digital page image archive of rare historic Kentuckiana books using a microfilm to digital methodology. Students, teachers and scholars will use this material to support their research and teaching. Microfilm ensures preservation and the digital images ensure easy access and wide distribution. This hybrid, standards based non-proprietary approach can serve as a model for cost effective access and preservation for published materials.

This two-year project has been funded in part by an Institute of Museum and Library Services National Leadership Grant for Preservation and Digitization.
