As I write this column, we approach the middle of an academic year and the end of 2007. This is a traditional time of year to ponder how much things have changed, since whatever reference point we may choose, and to imagine how things might be in the future. For those of you who are Andrew Lloyd Webber fans, you may be reminded of the song “This Time Next Year” from “Sunset Boulevard.” Each of us has milestones to note, whether personal or professional, and as librarians we are keenly aware of the seemingly ever-escalating rate of change.

As an organization, SEAALL undergoes change. Some of it is planned, and even cyclical. In this issue you will find the biographies of the candidates running in our election in February. I again wish to give my thanks to Pedro Padilla and the other members of the nominating committee for the excellent slate we are offered. I look forward to our organization having any of the candidates in leadership positions.

David Lehmann has agreed to chair the strategic planning committee, whose work is now underway. The committee’s charge reads as follows:

The roles of law librarians and other legal information professionals are challenging ones: in addition to serving complex and diverse needs of members of the legal community, they face a society undergoing profound technological changes at a rate never before seen. As the premier professional organization serving law librarians and legal information professionals in the southeastern United States, it is our responsibility to maximize this organization’s value to its own members.

To be successful, an organization such as this one must think, plan, and act strategically. It must identify the challenges facing its membership, help identify ways of meeting those challenges, and enable and encourage its membership to use the corporate organization to conquer those challenges.

The president of SEAALL charges the special committee as follows:

ALABAMA

Faulkner University Thomas Goode Jones School of Law

Timothy P. Chinaris, Associate Dean for Information Resources and Professor of Law was elected President of the Florida Bar Out of State Practitioners Division for 2007-08.

GEORGIA

Dougherty County Law Library

Laureen Adams wrote: I wanted to let you know that my one-person law library won the William B. Spann, Jr. Award for 2007 from the State Bar of Georgia for pro bono services. Here is the link to the press release:

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Georgetown University

Georgetown Law Library has a number of changes to report. Barbara Monroe, former Reference Librarian here, is the new Collection Development Librarian. Rachael Smith came in October from Ohio State University Law Library to be our International and Foreign Law Reference Librarian. Yasmin Morais began in July as our new Library Resident.

Howard University

The Howard University Law Library is pleased to announce that Ms. Kimberly (Kim) Waidelich has joined the staff as the new Cataloging Librarian. Kim earned her Masters in Library Science from the University of Southern Mississippi and her B.A. from Columbia College.

She has worked in libraries for over 25 years. Kim will be responsible for original and copy cataloging. Prior to her arrival at Howard, Kim was the Law Librarian at the Brevard County (Florida) Board of Commissioners.

Georgia State University College

Nancy P. Johnson, Law Librarian and Professor of Law at Georgia State University College of Law, and Ron Wheeler, Associate Director for Public Services at Georgia State University College of Law Library, have published Georgia Practice Materials: A Selective Annotated Bibliography, in State Practice Materials: Annotated Bibliographies (Frank G Houdek ed., William S. Hein & Co., 2007).

Nancy P. Johnson (GSU), Elizabeth Adelman (University of Buffalo), and Nancy Adams (U.S. District Court, Northern District of Georgia), have published the book, Georgia Legal Research (Carolina Academic Press, 2007).

Guide the membership of SEAALL in thinking strategically. Review the information gleaned from surveys, meetings, and your own communications with your fellow members to identify needs which this organization can address. Having done so, lay out a three-year plan of action that will set out the strategies, goals, and objectives of this organization. Deliver a report, including a recommended strategic plan, by the chapter meeting to be held at the annual meeting of the American Association of Law Libraries in Portland, Oregon in July, 2008.

I hope you will agree with me that the charge is both challenging and promising. Please encourage the committee and offer your assistance if requested.

Finally, another sign of change is growth. More than a year ago, law librarians in the Maryland Law Library Association expressed the wish to become eligible for membership in SEAALL. It will be mutually beneficial for those librarians and for our organization to expand in this way. I encourage you to support the change this will require in our articles of incorporation. I expect we will have the opportunity to vote on that change in the February election.

Best wishes to you and your families for a great holiday season. Ken

FROM THE EDITOR

As always, I'm looking for articles, photos, suggestions, and feedback. Many thanks to all of you who have contributed. Let us know what you'd like for the upcoming year. Join! Submit articles and photos. Share interesting projects and ideas from your library and your librarians. This is our newsletter so help make it count.

Send your submission or comments to smith-butlerl@nsu.law.nova.edu.
University of Georgia

Acquisitions Librarian Wendy Moore presented a program during the annual meeting of the Georgia Council of Media Organizations in October. The program was aimed at helping information professionals in non-legal settings answer law-related reference questions with skill and confidence. In addition to providing search tips and recommended internet resources, Ms. Moore cautioned the attendees against giving legal advice and practicing law without a license.

Suzanne Graham is the new Cataloging Services Librarian at the Alexander Campbell King Law Library. Suzanne most recently was the Monographs Original Cataloger at UGA's Main Library; after conducting a national search to fill this position, we ended up finding the perfect candidate in our own backyard! Prior to coming to UGA, Suzanne also held positions at the University of Southern Mississippi Library and the University of Alabama special collections library. In addition to her Masters in Library Science, Suzanne also has a M.A. in History and a B.A. in History and Russian Language & Literature from the University of Alabama.

Carol Watson, Associate Director for Information Technology, is serving a two-year term as vice-chair of UGA’s Information Technology Management Forum, which provides the university with expertise on IT management and leadership issues.

Nova Southeastern University

Robert Hudson is serving as President and Meg Kribble is serving as Secretary for the South Florida Association of Law Libraries (SFALL) this year.

Meg Kribble recently published an article about Second Life in Spectrum.

Lisa Smith-Butler, presented a paper, Workplace Privacy: We'll Be Watching You, at the Junior Faculty Forum at Stetson University School of Law.

KENTUCKY

University of Kentucky

The University of Kentucky is pleased to announce that Michelle Cosbyn has joined the College of Law Library staff as a Reference Librarian.

Michelle is a graduate of Butler University and Indiana University Bloomington and most recently worked at the University of Miami.

LOUISIANA

In September, Georgia Chadwick was appointed director of the Law Library of Louisiana replacing Carol Billings who served as director for almost 30 years. Georgia had served in several positions at the library, most recently as associate director. Previously she has worked for law firms in Washington, D.C., New Orleans, Houston and Dallas. She also worked at Southern Methodist University law school library, at the Tarlton Law Library at the University of Texas, Austin. Georgia is a graduate of Newcomb College of Tulane University and of the library school at the University of Denver.

FLORIDA

Florida Coastal School of Law

Florida Coastal School of Law's roving Reference Librarian is soon to return. Joey Hernandez has been serving our country in Afghanistan for the last year. We are ecstatic that she will soon be coming home sometime in January 2008. Thank you to Joey and her fellow soldiers who do their best for us.
NORTH CAROLINA

University of North Carolina

UNC Law Library is pleased to announce the appointment of Donna Nixon to the position of Assistant Director for Public Services where she will supervise services to patrons, including access services, interlibrary loan services and the activities and services of the reference librarians. Additionally, she will participate in library management through the library’s management team. Donna earned her J.D. from Stanford University and her M.L.S. from UNC’s School of Information and Library Studies. Donna comes home to UNC from the Duke Law Library where she has served as Head of Reference since 2004. Prior to her appointment at Duke, Donna worked at UNC Law first as a graduate assistant from 2001-02 and then as a Reference Librarian for several years.

Wake Forest

As of November 1, we have a new Reference Librarian here at Wake Forest. His name is Jason Sowards, and he comes from Coastal School of Law’s library in Jacksonville, Florida where he was also a reference librarian.

*ENDING VALUE AS OF OCTOBER 31, 2007
Incorporated in 1749, Alexandria has a history intriguingly linked with the founding of America. It was Captain John Alexander, a Scotsman, who for 6000 pounds of tobacco purchased and named the land now known as Alexandria. As a major colonial trading center, it was five Royal Governors of the colonies who set the Revolutionary sentiment in motion. In 1755, they recommended to the British Parliament that the British could benefit from the new wealth in Alexandria. Subsequently, the first colonial tax was levied over the objection of several soon-to-be-well-known Americans. In 1774, local leaders, including George Washington and George Mason, approved Mason's Fairfax Resolves which recommended ending trade with England and culminated with America’s War of Independence with the British.

As with trade, military strife is also an integral part of Alexandria's history. During the period leading up to the Civil War, Alexandria had the now regretful distinction of being home to one of the largest slave trading companies. In 1861, the day after Virginia seceded from the Union, Federal troops occupied Alexandria. Located only 6 miles from the District of Columbia, Alexandria became a significant base for Union army operations. Until the end of the Civil War, Alexandria had the distinction of being the longest occupied territory of the Union army.

Today, Alexandria is populated by approximately 130,000 people who primarily work for the federal government or (serve in) the U.S. military. Although home to the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) and the national headquarters of the Salvation Army, Alexandria is now probably most well known to some for the depiction of T.C. Williams High School in the 2000 movie, Remember the Titans, starring Denzel Washington as legendary football coach Herman Boone.

In keeping with the proximity of our meeting to the United States Patent and Trademark Office this year's theme will be IP for the IP: Intellectual Property for the Information Professional. Our Thursday Institute will be an all day program focusing on legal issues related to intellectual property law and IP research. Judge Leonie M. Brinkema of the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, who holds both a law degree and M.L.S. will address Institute attendees during the lunch hour. The Annual Meeting program will feature a wide range of presentations on topics such as social networking sites and the law library, the FBI's efforts to crack down on the sale of illegal and fake consumer goods and other programs with a focus on both IP and non IP topics. On Friday we will welcome our keynote speaker, journalist Helen Thomas. Ms. Thomas is often referred to as the "First Lady of the Press" and has covered every president since John F. Kennedy. On Saturday Dr. Michael Kurtz, Assistant Archivist for Records Services at the National Archives will join us as our plenary speaker. Dr. Kurtz is the author of America and the Return of Nazi Contraband and will discuss the political, legal, and moral dilemmas faced by the United States and its allies after World War II in restituting millions of items of cultural property looted by the Nazis.
So, from March 26 – 29, 2008, be sure to attend the 2008 Joint Meeting of LLSDC and SEAALL. Join your law library colleagues where you can relive history in Old Town Alexandria, as well as learn the latest intellectual property advances at the USPTO.

We look forward to hosting you.

The hardest part of developing a program for AALL annual meeting is the waiting. You contact speakers, and you wait. You ask for committee or SIS sponsorship and you wait. You send in your proposal and then you wait. You get a response and then you wait. Finally it comes time for AALL...well; I'm still waiting for that too. There is a piece of advice that I got once that says, “Luck happens when opportunity meets preparation.” This phrase is a reminder to me to always be prepared because you never know when a great opportunity will come about that will allow you to make a difference in someone’s life, or that could make a difference in your life.

I enjoy teaching and sharing knowledge. I especially enjoy educating people on the most up to date topics that they are probably not aware of. I realized an opportunity to be able to share knowledge that I had during AALL conference in New Orleans. No, not everything that happens in New Orleans has to stay in New Orleans. Friendships, experiences, and knowledge are things that you are allowed to take with you and tell your mother about it. Besides if you did anything else while in New Orleans it was probably caught by a webcam positioned around the city. Here is how I realized an opportunity and how it led to my first program proposal, and yes, I told my mother.

One afternoon at the conference I ended up attending a Government Relations Committee meeting. During the meeting I listened to the discussions so that I could gain a good understanding of the work the committee does. Towards the end of the meeting the chair began talking about program ideas that the committee was going to sponsor for next year’s annual meeting and asked if anyone had any other program ideas that they thought would be interesting. At this moment of opportunity I was prepared, however, since I was a guest at the meeting I was not sure if I was allowed to speak up so I whispered to my colleague (who was also responsible for encouraging me to attend this meeting) that the committee should sponsor a program on understanding network neutrality. This is a topic that I have been following with great interest yet it is so trivial that most people are resigned to just not understand it and let the government figure it out. My colleague immediately whispered back “that’s a great idea” and then allowed me to present the idea to the committee who all thought that it would be a good program. My encouraging colleague and I were then charged with developing a program on understanding network neutrality to present to the committee for sponsorship.

This proved to be an engaging task as there were only a couple of weeks from the end of the conference to the deadline for submitting program proposals. Though I had been following the debate there was still a good amount of research that needed to be done in order to outline a program proposal that could be understood by anyone and not just those who understand policy issues. The other research that needed to be done was to narrow down the field of potential speakers. Believe it or not network neutrality is a hot topic on Capitol Hill as well as amongst those who have vested interests in policy issues that affect the infrastructure of the Internet that we use every day. Once I was able to narrow down the possibilities of speakers I created three categories; the first being of those who were the top authorities on the topic and who have published their views extensively. The second category was of those who were authorities on the topic but had not published quite as extensively as the first group. The third category was made up of anyone else who good deliver a presentation regarding network neutrality because if by chance people in this category were to be contacted there would be a very tight deadline for the proposal to be due and a commitment to hold the dates of the conference would be needed right away.

I proceeded to contact the people in the first category and it turns out that both of them were on vacation and not due back for at least week. This is where the waiting happens. Fortunately there was enough time to wait for now. From this I was able to establish a timetable of cutoff times when an answer was needed or move on to contacting the next person. Both of the people in the first category were able to respond within the time set forward, but unfortunately both responses were in the negative. So I moved on to contacting the next group of people, and of course I had to wait. As it turns out both people in the second group were on vacation as well. It also turns out that both of them tend to check e-mail while on vacation. One of them responded in the negative as did the other, however the second person was able to recommend someone who had been keeping up with the issues better than he. So I contacted the recommended individual and one person from category three. Again, it was time to play the waiting game. The recommended individual responded within three days and was more than happy to speak on the topic. He was even happier because it would give him a chance to experience his first AALL conference. Now that one person had confirmed that they could hold the dates of the 2008 conference I was still waiting on one more person to confirm. I finally heard back from him at the beginning of the next week. He was interested in speaking at our conference, but he asked for a rather large honorarium. I responded back to his request to attempt to get him to lower his request and have yet to hear back from him. It was time for my colleague and me to submit our proposal to the GRC for sponsorship approval. Since it had taken so long to finalize speakers we did not have to wait real long for the committee’s sponsorship decision as they were meeting at the end of the week.

The committee liked the proposal and gave us the go ahead on submitting it to the Annual Meeting Program Committee (AMPC). The program has been submitted and the waiting game continues.

As this is a topic that I have a great interest in and the fact that it is my first annual meeting program proposal I would love for it to be accepted. If for some reason it is not accepted I will just have to make sure that I am better prepared for when the next opportunity comes about for me to get lucky. Now that I have gained experience in communicating with committees, colleagues, and putting together a program proposal, doing it again, even the necessary waiting, are worth it and I am definitely going to keep submitting programs that I feel are timely, relevant, and allow me to share knowledge. I encourage anyone else who has a passion to teach and share knowledge about their interests to submit their ideas to the AMPC as well. It is a great way to foster individual growth and growth within the profession of law librarianship as a whole. I have learned all this, and it was only my first AALL conference. I cannot wait until the next one.
One Part Supreme Court, One Part Online Video, One Part Archive Makes a Fun and Useful Library Resource

Brian Barnes, Research, Instructional Services & Circulation Librarian,
Mississippi College School of Law Library

In today’s technological society where a librarian can spend his lunch break catching up on missed episodes of The Office free from NBC.com, I come from the mindset that our legal resources should also be freely available to our patrons and the legal community as a whole, provided, of course, that we can implement it without expending too much of that important green stuff. If you really think about it, what is a library good for? It provides knowledge and instruction while trying not to be too boring, it preserves materials for future use, and it uses technology to spread knowledge (even books are advances from the previous medium of spoken histories and stories, not to mention computers and databases). A project I have been fortunate enough to guide fits into all of these parameters and has turned into the Mississippi Appellate Court Video Archive.

This idea rolled around in my head for about a month after I missed my best friend’s first argument before the Mississippi Supreme Court because I was teaching IL Legal Research. In six short weeks the idea turned from a mere concept into a resource that has had over 1000 hits and 300 unique visitors in its first 3 weeks. This archive currently has over 325 oral arguments with some of the more notable ones being Nevada Barr Jones’ divorce appeal, the Partnership for a Healthy Mississippi case which pitted the Mississippi Governor against the Mississippi Attorney General over tobacco litigation settlement money, and a case where a tree house owner took his city to the state supreme court over a local zoning ordinance and won his right to keep the tree house (for now). This is the fun, sexy side of the database that makes my Dean smile when he thinks of potential donations that might come in because some attorney or student’s parent might see we are doing something new and innovative, and it makes it worth while to me when my friends (and my wife) who normally could care less about anything involving a law library say “That’s pretty cool.” Libraries do not always present the opportunity to be innovative and have fun while providing valuable educational and archival resources, but this project seems to achieve that goal.

On the more serious side of the project is all the work behind the scenes that many never realize has occurred. This brief description may serve as a guide for those who might want to pursue similar projects in their jurisdictions. The project started by taking this “crazy” idea of mine to the Dean of our law school who liked it, especially the reasonable cost as compared to the possibility of promotion for Mississippi College Law. Our Dean then took the project proposal to the Mississippi Supreme Court and sold the idea to them in order to get the ball rolling. After a couple of months of red tape and revised agreements, the Court issued an order granting us this project and all the pressure shifted to the library to make it happen. I spent almost three weeks, minus reference desk and teaching time, with our IT department designing the web pages and databases and uploading three years worth of arguments. Once all of the setup is done the normal input process then involves going to the Supreme Court every Thursday to pick up the CD’s, pulling the files off the disc, renaming the file to the docket number (which is our database identifier), then uploading them to our website (which we purchased separately from the school site for bandwidth concerns). Additionally, I then input into an Access database the docket number, party names, and attorney names to give an entry for the database to return from our search boxes. Over time, I also have to update these entries with links to the opinions, which obviously come out well after the argument itself, the briefs by each party for the current and future arguments, and synopses which are produced by our library director as part of a service she has long provided for subscribers. It is this database work that many librarians are used to that make the project really stand out in comparison to the archived videos produced in Texas or New Jersey and why I am so proud of what we at Mississippi College Law have produced.

In the end, this project took a lot of front-end work but only takes about four hours of maintenance a week on my part now that is running. However, and maybe more importantly, this project has allowed me to live up the nickname some of the “longer serving” librarians at the Mississippi College School of Law Library have given me: Project Boy.

P.S. Note from one of the “longer serving” librarians: We should have seen it coming, Brian started as a student assistant when he began law school. He was happiest when we had problems that just begged to be fixed. Be forewarned though, his enthusiasm is contagious.

Submitted SEAALL Committee Reports

Membership Committee Report
Edward T. Hart, Chair
Chiles Legal Information Center, University of Florida, Levin College of Law

The Committee has continued its primary mission welcoming new members. Fifteen new members have joined our ranks since the meeting in Baton Rouge. The Committee is also pondering two new projects of surveying lapsed members and reaching out to the library science schools in our region. We welcome your comments and suggestions on either of this projects.

Speaking with DeDe Bradsher (Jones School of Law) of the AALL Membership Retention Committee, we share a concern noting the number of our colleagues entering retirement. When this situation is combined with other conversations about hiring pools for open positions in the region, it makes one wonder about the future of law librarianship. We must reach out to new potential law librarians whether they are still in graduate school or pondering a change of careers. The Committee is here to assist anyone.
SEAALL Government Relations Update
Christine Sellers,
Haynsworth Sinkler Boyd

The following updates are provided by Mary Alice Baish, AALL Washington Affairs Office.

Robert C. Tapella Sworn in As the New Public Printer

Immediate Past President Sarah (Sally) G. Holterhoff was invited to testify before the Senate Rules and Administration Committee at the September 12 hearing on the nomination of Robert C. Tapella to become the new Public Printer. Her statement was endorsed by ALA, MLA and SLA. Unfortunately, the hearing was postponed at the eleventh hour although Sally and Mary Alice Baish were able to meet with Mr. Tapella and Acting Superintendent of Documents Richard G. Davis for a substantive discussion. Mr. Tapella’s nomination was confirmed by the full Senate on October 4 and the swearing in ceremony was held on November 6.

New PACER Pilot Project

On April 1, 2006, the AALL Executive Board endorsed a “Resolution on No-Fee FDLP Access to PACER” that was submitted to them by the Government Relations Committee. [hotlink: http://www.aallnet.org/aallwash/re04012006.html]. The resolution was endorsed by the American Library Association in June 2006. It requested that GPO work with the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts to allow users of federal depository libraries to access PACER at no-fee. The Judicial Conference met in September and approved the establishment of a joint pilot project with GPO that will involve approximately 15 federal depository libraries. GRC member Lawrence (Larry) R. Meyer, director of the Law Library for San Bernardino County, CA, deserves special recognition for his tireless advocacy for many years to bring PACER into the Federal Depository Library Program.

Jonathan Franklin Selected as an International Copyright Advocate

Jonathan Franklin, Associate Law Librarian at the University of Washington’s M.G. Gallagher Law Library, has been selected as an International Copyright Advocate for a new pilot project funded by the ALA Washington Office for Information Technology Policy. This new opportunity was created to build expertise and broaden the ability of the Library Copyright Alliance [hotlink: (http://www.librarycopyrightalliance.org/)], of which AALL is a member, to be represented at the international level.

OITP will train the new International Copyright Advocates to represent us on issues related to copyright advocacy at forums such as the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO), the World Summit on the Information Society (WSIS) and the International Federation of Library Associations (IFLA). We thank the OITP for creating and funding this important new program that will benefit libraries all over the world. Congratulations, Jonathan!

AALL Access to Electronic Legal Information Committee

At its March 24, 2007 Executive Board meeting, the American Association of Law Libraries adopted the Principles and Core Values concerning public information on government Web sites developed by AELIC (Access to Electronic Legal Information Committee). AELIC and AALL believe these Principles and Core Values are essential guidelines that all government agencies should follow when developing websites that provide information to their citizens, the legal community and other users. The Principles as adopted by the AALL Executive Board are available at http://www.aallnet.org/committee/aelic/AELIC_Core_Values.pdf

You can help too - read and share information included in AELIC’s Authentication Survey; help AALL monitor government Web sites that provide legal information; communicate your discoveries of exemplary Web sites to AELIC; and attend program C-4 “Official But Not Authentic: The Future of Electronic Legal Information” to be held on Sunday, July 13, 2008 during our annual meeting in Portland. Please comment on the draft guidelines for evaluating a legal Web site at http://www.surveymonkey.com/s.aspx?sm=dyUaYLY8sHnDz5mCOW_2fyiO_3d_3d. You can also request from AALL headquarters brochures containing the guidelines which can be distributed at meetings, events, and exhibits.
