Re: Update

To bring you up to date on our activities since my last memo, most of you have made your initial and second contacts with the library school deans. I hope you have had some positive responses and will let me know about it.

The list of state library associations has been compiled. A copy of the list is included. I am drafting a publicity letter to them now.

I submitted the attached article about our activities to the SEALL newsletter and have forwarded copies of the articles about the two Oxford programs to AALL.

Connie Matzen of Smith Anderson Dorsett in Raleigh, NC has offered to assist with our library school efforts in that state should opportunities arise.

During my preliminary discussions with law library directors in the region, Nancy Johnson of Georgia State University indicated she would be teaching a course in Law Librarianship for library school students at Atlanta Clark University this quarter. During the class on law library administration, I spoke to the class and found them very enthusiastic about law librarianship. It was very interesting for me and I hope each of you will pursue more opportunities like this as a part of our program. If you would like to have a copy of my notes when preparing for your presentation, please let me know.

There have been some minor changes in the addresses of committee members, so I have enclosed an updated committee list.

I look forward to receiving your drafts of the "library association resume." Happy Thanksgiving.
