Acknowledgements

Robby Hardesty
University of Kentucky

Alina Hechler
University of Kentucky

Follow this and additional works at: https://uknowledge.uky.edu/disclosure

Part of the Arts and Humanities Commons, and the Social and Behavioral Sciences Commons

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial 4.0 License.

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://uknowledge.uky.edu/disclosure/vol28/iss1/3

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Social Theory at UKnowledge. It has been accepted for inclusion in disClosure: A Journal of Social Theory by an authorized editor of UKnowledge. For more information, please contact UKnowledge@lsv.uky.edu.
We'd first like to thank University of Kentucky professors Arnold Farr (Philosophy), Dierdra Reber (Hispanic Studies), Anna Secor (Geography, now at Durham University), Sharon Yam (Writing, Rhetoric, and Digital Studies), and Charlie Zhang (Gender and Women's Studies), who designed and led the Social Theory Seminar on Affect in the Spring of 2018. The present volume sprang from that course, and we would not be here without their expertise and vision. In sharing their knowledge and prodding us to think about affect in a critical, intersectional, and interdisciplinary manner, they laid the groundwork that made this journal possible.

We were blessed to be able to spend time with three distinguished scholars who were invited to the University of Kentucky for the Committee on Social Theory’s Spring Lecture Series, Drs. Deborah Gould, Brian Massumi, and Shannon Sullivan. In addition, we also had the distinct pleasure of conversing with the Fall of 2018 Social Theory Distinguished Speaker, Dr. Ann Stoler. We are thankful to all four of these scholars for so generously sharing their time and expertise as they sat with us for lengthy interviews, and for their enlightening and enlivening inputs to the present issue. Their interviews show why affect studies is indispensable for understanding our contemporary world.

We also want to extend a special thank you to Dr. Michael Samers, who provided invaluable guidance as the editorial collective’s faculty advisor. He offered crucial advice throughout the entire process, especially as we fielded submissions and navigated the peer review process for the first time.
We are grateful for the backing of the University of Kentucky’s Committee on Social Theory and the work of Interim Director Dr. Michael Samers and Program Director Dr. Tad Mutersbaugh. Without the enormous efforts of administrators Lori Tyndall and Eva Hicks and Social Theory Research Assistant Emily Kaufman, organizing and advertising events, managing travel plans, reserving space, and ensuring the smooth functioning of the Committee’s operations, none of this would be possible. We are the privileged beneficiaries of their unsung labor. The thoughtful guidance of Adrian Ho, Director of Digital Scholarship at UK Libraries, has kept disClosure running though its frequently bumpy transition periods, and we are grateful for his presence and his aid from start to finish.

Sophonie Bazile, who served as the editor-in-chief for the 27th volume of disClosure, graciously shared her experiences and materials with us, and answered our many questions. We would have been lost without her. We reserve a special, heartfelt thanks to Meredith Wadlington, for her unflagging encouragement and unflinching spirit through the many moments when the going got tough. Her support was a great source of strength. Last but not least, we want to thank the authors whose work on affect you find in these pages, not only for their brilliant contributions, but also for their patience and good cheer as we stumbled through this long and ever-lengthening process. They are why this volume exists, and we are excited to share their work with you.