Dear Kathy:

Enclosed is a check for $9.75 for your firm.

I suppose that the Newsletter expenses did give you a surprise. Remember that the financial statement is cumulative from 1 April, and that some of the disbursements were incurred by the previous editor. The largest single item of expense for our Newsletter is postage, which is close to $100 for each issue. Law Book Exchange sends the invoice for that directly to me. Because of the Chapter’s books being with the auditors for several months, I suspect that I may have paid both an invoice and a statement, and I am waiting to look again at the books to confirm this. I am sure that it will come out correctly by the end of the financial year. You will notice that the revenue from Newsletter advertising appears in the Receipts section of the statement.

I trust that this will serve to set your mind at rest.
Sincerely,

Diana Osbaldiston
