Dear Peyton:

I received your memorandum of December 15 after my return to the Law Library following two weeks away from the office during which time I relaxed and also attended the AALS meeting in New York City. Had I known of the memorandum I would have contacted you during the convention. As it was, however, I spent only two days in New York City and during all but a very small portion of that time spent all of my available time interviewing prospective faculty appointments for Florida State University.

It seems to me that all of the points that you made in your letter can be resolved fairly succinctly. (1) An institute on Class K can properly include subject matter for both catalogers and administrators. (2) It seems to me that the subject matter of the Class K institute either geared directly for catalogers or directly for administrators is proper for both regional, i.e., chapter, or national levels. I really don't see the need to provide a "testing ground" for this type of program. It seems to me that the only problem is generating sufficient participants as discussion leaders.

I hope everything is going well with you in Lexington; I saw a copy of the Washington and Lee Alumni Bulletin which described the proposed building for the College of Law there. I was greatly impressed to say the least. Best wishes to Beth and yourself for a healthy and happy new year.

Sincerely,

Edwin M. Schroeder
Law Librarian and
Associate Professor
