Dear Mr. Younger:

Willamette University College of Law is seeking a Head Librarian for its law school.

The College of Law, the oldest law school in the Northwest, has a law student enrollment of 383 students. Willamette University is comprised of an undergraduate school with approximately 1300 students, a College of Music and Theatre, a newly formed Graduate School of Administration, and the College of Law.

The Law Library occupies three floors of the legal center. There are approximately 65,000 volumes in the open stack library. In addition, the Oregon Supreme Court Library, the Marion County Law Library, and the State Library are located within two blocks of the law school.

The person selected as Law Librarian of the College of Law will, as a member of the faculty, work with an innovative faculty that is committed to training lawyers to meet the legal needs of our society. The Law Librarian will not only administer the library but also will have an opportunity to work with students, faculty, and members of the legal profession who use the law library for legal research.

Any suggestions you might offer regarding persons who should be considered for this position will receive our serious consideration. Willamette University, of course, is an Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action Employer.

Very truly yours,

Carlton J. Snow
