At the opening of the present school year there were only thirty-five students enrolled in the College of Law, and a majority of this number were members of the Students' Army Training Corps. The Law Faculty was likewise reduced in number due to the absence of Professor Hutchcraft. Those remaining taught most of the courses of the regular curriculum and also aided in the work of military instruction by offering courses in Military and International Law. These conditions made Law Journal work impossible for them. The number of non-military students was so small that a selection of a student editorial board sufficient for the needs of the Journal could not be made. The members of the bar throughout the state who were called upon for contributions were also engaged in war activities. In view of this situation it was decided by the Law Faculty to postpone the publication of the Journal indefinitely. Since the first of January there has been a decided increase in the enrollment; more than thirty former students have returned to the law school after receiving their discharges from military service. Shortly after the opening of the second semester the Law Faculty adopted a plan for the temporary reorganization of the editorial staff for the purpose of securing the publication of the Journal for the remainder of the year. By this plan the faculty will take a more active part in the publication. A student editorial board will be selected on a merit basis. The competition for membership in the student board is now going on and the selections will be made before the publication of the next issue. A reorganization on some permanent plan will be effected before the end of the year. With the opening of the University next September it is expected that the normal pre-war enrollment in the College of Law will be reached. Vacancies in the faculty will be filled. With the hearty cooperation of the members of the bar in the way of contribution of leading articles, making this publication their forum for the discussion of legal questions of state and national interest, it is believed that the Kentucky Law Journal may make a place for itself among the legal publications.

Meeting of the Kentucky State Bar Association.

The Kentucky State Bar Association will meet in Lexington June 26th and 27th.