TOM MARSHALL'S METHODS.

"I select a subject and study it from the ground up. When I have mastered it fully, I write a speech on it. Then I take a walk and come back and revise and correct. In a few days I subject it to another pruning and then recopy it. Next I add the finishing touches, round it off with graceful periods, and commit it to memory. Then I speak it in the fields, in my father's lawn, and before my mirror until gesture and delivery are perfect. It some times takes me six weeks or two months to get up a speech. When I have one prepared, I come to town, I generally select a court day, when there is sure to be a crowd. I am called for a speech and am permitted to select my own subject. I speak my piece. It astonishes the people as I intended it should, and they go away wondering at my power of oratory. They call it genius, but it is the hardest kind of work."

The Henry Clay Law Society has planned to give a series of mock trials as its program on Monday night of each week. The first one was given on the 22nd, at which there were about 100 visitors present, including Dean Anna J. Hamilton and a number of girls of Patterson Hall. The accused was F. A. Harrison, indicted under section 1201a of the Kentucky Statutes for chicken stealing. He was represented by R. E. Cullen and I. M. Nickell, while the Commonwealth was represented by B. D. Sartin and R. E. L. Murphy. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.
