This issue is the final one for the Journal during the present school year. The last number has been somewhat delayed owing to the rush and confusion attending examination and commencement. Nevertheless, with the September number, which will appear next, the Kentucky Law Journal will be off the press on the fifteenth of each month.

Starting with but slight encouragement, this monthly has grown in the five months of its existence, into considerable prominence in Kentucky legal circles. The subscription lists have materially increased and from all over the State have come messages of encouragement and praise for the promoters of the magazine.

It is hoped and believed that ensuing years will see the Kentucky Law Journal grow from strength to strength and that it will exert, as it has already begun to do, a helpful influence upon the bar and bench of this Commonwealth.
