“The beginning and the present day African American authors from Kentucky”

- Notable Kentucky African Americans Database – NKAA
  1. Patron grown. Grassroots. In-house project. Continuously updated. Free to all. That fellow librarian Rob Aken and I created beginning in 2003. NKAA turns 10 years old this year. It is 100% supported by the UK Libraries.
  2. People, places, events, communities, activities, definitions, and other information pertaining to African Americans in Kentucky and those from Kentucky.
  3. Listing of over 3,000 sources that support the entries and provides additional information about the entries.
  5. More than 200,000 hits per year from patrons first and foremost in Kentucky, but also from around the U.S., and many countries from around the world.

- American Colonization Society
  1. Founded the colony of Liberia in 1821
  2. One founder, Henry Clay, US Legislator for Kentucky – Henry Clay Papers 46M95
  3. Area named Kentucky, with a principal city named Clay Ashland
     a. The Liberian Connection – UK Media Library (AV-D7548)
  4. 658 Freemen from Kentucky went to Liberia, 1829-1859 – privileged
     a. President – Joseph Jenkins Roberts (1848-1856) & (1872-1876) – free born in Virginia in 1809, 1st African American President and the 1st President of Liberia
     b. Vice President – James M. Priest (1864-1868)
     c. President – Edward J. Roye (1871)
     d. Vice President and President – Alfred F. Russell (1883-1884)
     e. Vice President and President – William D. Coleman (1896-1900)
     f. President - Arthur Barclay (1904-1912)
g. President - Edwin J. Barclay (1930-1944)

5. President Alfred F. Russell was the grandson of Mary Todd Russell Wickliffe (the richest woman in Kentucky). Letter from Alfred’s mother in Monrovia, Liberia, to his grandmother Mary Wickliffe in Lexington, KY. Within the Wickliffe Preston Papers are a few other letters from former slaves who were living in Liberia.

6. Also letters in the Gordon Family Papers, letters written to Rev. Neal M. Gordon from his former slave Jacob Harris, who lived in Kentucky, Liberia.

- Slave Narratives
  1. Single volume books that were written by escaped slaves, the most famous of which was written by Frederick Douglas.
  2. Prior to the Civil War there were also a few Kentucky authors such as William Hayden, Andrew Jackson, Josiah Henson, Frances Fredric, and William Wells Brown.
  3. In 1849, The Christian Examiner recognized the narratives of fugitive slaves as a new and marketable addition to American literature. The journal also provided an early analysis of the potential impact and influence of this new Negro literature in the United States.
  4. These slave narratives became such a lucrative venture that there were false slave narratives published. And there were a few mistakes, such as the work Harriet Jacobs, Incidents in the Life of a Slave Girl, published in 1861, and the ongoing debate in the 20th Century as to whether it was a false slave narrative or not.
  5. One of the false slave narratives written by a woman was the title Autobiography of a Female Slave by Owensboro, KY native Martha Griffith, who had written the book with hopes of raising enough money to free the slaves she had inherited, and resettle them in a free state. The Louisville Courier Journal newspaper was one of the first to call foul, and referred to the title as abolitionist propaganda.
  6. Martha Griffith, a white abolitionist, was forced to admit that she had written the book. The book didn’t sell well, but the American Anti-Slavery Society gave Griffith the money to free and resettle her slaves.
  7. Today Mattie Griffith’s book is often, very often, mistaken an authentic slave narrative.
• African American Authors – Kentucky
  1. Nikky Finney – won 2011 National Book Award for Poetry – Head Off & Split: poems
  2. Frank X Walker – the 2013-14 Kentucky Poet Laureate, the 1st African American to receive the honor
  3. Both are members of the Affrilachian Poets. There is a listing of other members in the handout, as well as a few sources by researchers who have taken a closer look at tales, writers, and poets in relation to the now accepted term “Affrilachian.”
  4. There are hundreds more authors from Kentucky, starting in the 1840s up to present day.
     1. Joseph S. Cotter Sr. – White Song and a Black One (Bardstown)
     2. Joseph S. Cotter, Jr. – The Band of Gideon and other Lyrics (Louisville)
     3. bell hooks – Ain’t I a Woman and other works including her children’s books Be Boy Buzz and Happy to Be Nappy (Hopkinsville)
     4. Christine Claybourne Johnson – Poems of Blackness (Versailles) & member of the Nation of Islam
     5. Gayl Jones – Corregidora (Lexington)
     6. Edward Jordan McCoo, I – Ethiopia at the Bar of Justice (play) (AME Church minister in Newport, KY) – a play that was a standard for Negro History Week. In December of 1927, the well known dramatist Henrietta Vinton Davis staged the play at the Ward Theatre in Kingston, Jamaica. The performance was in service to the Universal Negro Improvement Association and African Communities Imperial League, founded by Marcus Garvey.
     7. George C. Wolfe – Jelly’s Last Jam (Frankfort)
     8. Albery A. Whitman – Not a Man, But Yet a Man (Hart County) – he was also the father of musician Casswell Whitman and the father of one of the most successful vaudeville troupes in the United States, the Whitman Sisters.
     9. Margaret Young – First Book of American Negroes (Campbellsville) – she was the wife of Whitney Young, Jr., leader of the National Urban League.
     10. Countee L. Cullen – Cooper Sun (Louisville or Lexington)

Neal MacDougal Gordon (d. 1871) served as pastor of the Ebenezer Presbyterian Church in Nicholasville for thirty years (1841-1871) and founded Gordon’s School for Boys in 1850 which trained young men for the Presbyterian ministry. The collections includes many letters relating to Neal Gordon and his interest in the education of ministers and the colonization of blacks in Liberia, a task which included educating young men for the “African Mission.” Efforts to return free-born and emancipated American blacks to Africa were motivated by reform sentiment and commercial and religious interests. Between 1820 and 1861 about 12,000 blacks, the majority emancipated slaves, were transported to Liberia, a country created by the American Colonization Society in 1817.

Twenty-five letters, most written to Gordon, relate directly to the colonization process. Two letters of particular interest are dated 1848 and 1857. They are from a former slave, Jacob Harris, who writes to Gordon from Monrovia, Liberia and “Kentucky in Liberia, Montasado County.” He writes of his satisfaction with his life in Africa, but also of illness and deprivation. He writes to Gordon: “We are now ready to receive thankfully whatever you may please to send us. We need it now very much.” A missionary, H. W. Erskine, was stationed at Kentucky in Africa and writes Gordon of the beauty he finds there.”
