Foreword

WHEN KEENELAND accepted the obligation to maintain an organized library on Thoroughbred racing and associated subjects, it was not responding to popular demand, since there was no general demand for information in such a specialized field. Rather, it was establishing a broad inventory of reference material for horsemen, a few hobbyists, and a few scholars. In a broader sense, it was storing up information against the day when racing, as the most nearly universal of the great spectator sports and as a large industry affecting social and economic life, would be called upon to furnish data for research in genetics, probability theory, economics, manners and morals, history, law, physiology, psychology, and other fields of inquiry.

The opportunity for such studies has been only dimly appreciated, partly because horsemen themselves are too entangled with detail to search for generality and are untrained for such work; partly because the scholar with time for research has been unaware of the possibilities in available data; and, of course, partly because so few students have addressed themselves to the task of assaying the abundant ore in one of mankind's oldest and most important forms of recreation.

A catalog listing the resources of the Keeneland Association Library is a contribution to numerous fields of knowledge. It provides a handbook in a highly specialized and relatively obscure branch of library science. It challenges the student of genetics, probability mathematics, and population statistics. Not altogether incidentally, it offers the historian a list of sources which may be absent from much larger but less specialized libraries. The old
Spirit of the Times, for instance, provides one of the most faithful records of American life and manners in the nineteenth century.

This unique work will, at the least, prove useful to writers, turf historians, folklorists, librarians, booksellers, publishers, occasional students, and the scattered few whose pleasure it is to collect and pore over the literary treasures and reference materials of Thoroughbred racing and breeding. Conceivably, it may draw the attention of scholars in many fields to a tremendous store of raw material awaiting the research worker. But even if Mrs. Buckley's work serves only as a guide to a comprehensive collection, it remains unique and valuable.

Acknowledgments

IT IS WITH sincerest appreciation that I acknowledge the consideration in time, technical advice, and sustaining encouragement which Dr. Edward J. Humeston, Jr., head of the department of library science of the University of Kentucky, and Mrs. Emma Lou Lecky and Miss Laura K. Martin, professors in that department, have given me. Miss Norma Cass, head of the reference department, and Miss Jacqueline Bull, head of the archives department, of the Margaret I. King Library of the University of Kentucky have been more than generous with their assistance in the development of this study.

I was most fortunate in having the interest and aid of W. T. Bishop, general manager of Keeneland Race Course, and Joseph A. Estes, editor of The Blood-Horse, both of whom were most cordial in sharing their time and store of knowledge about the racetrack and the library.

Without the information gleaned from lawyers, public librarians, track managers, horse trainers, magazine editors, bookdealers at home and abroad, and forbearing friends, the study would have been the poorer, and I am happy to express my thanks to each of them.

THE KEENELAND Association Library is a research library in Thoroughbred racing, breeding, and related subjects, and is located at the Keeneland Race Course, Lexington, Kentucky. Keeneland was organized for operation on a wholly nonprofit basis, with all returns beyond maintenance expenses being devoted to charity, education, and research. Because of the unique philosophy of its organizers, education and research have been emphasized from the outset. It is the only racetrack in the United States which maintains, provides service in, and makes available to the public a comprehensive library of turf literature.¹

The library was begun in 1939 with the gift of William Arnold Hanger. No library had been anticipated in the original plans of the organizers of the track, but as the entire Keeneland picture developed, such a library seemed suitable and appropriate at a racetrack dedicated to the betterment of the sport. When Mr. Hanger, one of the stanchest and most imaginative supporters of the new track, offered a collection of books to the association for the establishment of a library at Keeneland, it was readily accepted. The board was quick to sense the benefit to Thoroughbred racing and breeding interests to be derived from such a library at the racecourse. It promised to be a fitting and well-placed adjunct to the whole establishment.

As a nucleus for the proposed library, Mr. Hanger purchased the carefully selected turf library of Robert James Turnbull, a New York lawyer and bibliophile. Numbering approximately 2,000 volumes, this collection was a sound foundation with which to begin, for Mr. Turnbull had spent twenty-five years buying, discarding, and replacing books which emphasized the historical aspects of Thoroughbred racing and breeding. Comparison with other collections in the field reveals how thoughtfully and carefully this one was assembled. Mr. Turnbull not only knew the desirable familiar titles, but exercised rare discernment in searching for less well known works. If a well-known title is missing, one may believe that this is because he never found a copy of it which met his standards.

After Mr. Hanger's original gift was housed, other owners of turf libraries made gifts of books from their collections to the new Keeneland library. The late Robert Livingston Gerry, member of the Jockey Club, Thoroughbred breeder, and owner of the experimental Aknusti Stud in the Catskill Mountains, was the first to make such a gift, in March, 1941. In addition to a large number of finely bound and rare volumes, there were pamphlets and materials of an ephemeral nature covering the widest range within the field. Sales catalogs of yearlings and breeding stock, broadsides and leaflets, and booklets and pamphlets concerning breeding farms provide a revealing picture of the Thoroughbred horse of an earlier day. Mr. Gerry's preservation of many catalogs attests to his appreciation of their usefulness in a research library. This portion of his gift has formed a fine nucleus for the present pamphlet file.

Pierre Lorillard, grandson of the founder of Rancocas Stud at Jobstown, New Jersey, and presiding steward at Keeneland for several years, donated approximately 100 volumes from his family's library in the summer of 1942. Later individual gifts of titles of local interest have added material that otherwise would be difficult to acquire. A copy of Benjamin Gratz Bruce's Memoir of Lexington is an example of this kind of gift, as is the two-volume Stallion Register by William Treacy and Kenner Walker. Leonard Sutcliffe, America's foremost photographer of the Thor-roughbred horse in the 1920's and 1930's, assembled to special order his albums of Famous Stallions and Famous Mares. The library's copies, which otherwise would have been almost impossible to obtain, were a gift from the family for whom they had been made.

In January, 1954, files of the three American sporting papers loosely called Spirit of the Times, covering the years 1836-1892, were given the library. It has been written that "No sporting library is complete without a file of the Spirit of the Times, as during its publication it provided a chronicle of the events in its world which was complete, conscientious, admirable, and for the period unequaled. In the history of sporting journalism it must on this account, occupy a distinguished place." The library's file contains volumes 5-31 of the "old" Spirit of the Times, volumes 1-6 of Porter's Spirit of the Times, and volumes 1-104, 106-122, 125, and 126 of Wilkes' Spirit of the Times (later, "Wilkes'" was dropped from the title and the paper appeared until its merger as Spirit of the Times).

The value of the library has steadily increased with the growth of its collections and with their more thorough analysis, cataloging, and evaluation. In addition, the increase in horse breeding as an industry and of racing as a spectator sport requires more intensive research on the part of a larger number of people. This would indicate a growing demand for the service which such a library as Keeneland's can offer, situated as it is at a racetrack in the heart of a racing and breeding country and in one of the most important bloodstock sales centers in the world.

Although horseracing as a sport in the United States dates from the seventeenth century, collections of the literature of Thoroughbred racing are not numerous. Most of them have been made by private individuals and therefore are not generally

3 Triangle Publications, American Racing Manual (1953-58). The number of breeding farms has increased from more than 1,261 in 1952 to more than 1,645 in 1957. Attendance in 1952 at racetracks for Thoroughbred racing was 26,434,903. By 1957 it had risen to 30,617,824.
accessible. So far as can be ascertained, the Keeneland library is the only library which has extensive material on the subject, available to anyone for use the year around. It may be consulted at all times by correspondence and telephone.

An annotated guide to the books on Thoroughbred racing, breeding, and related subjects which comprise the collection at Keeneland seems desirable for the use of lay persons and librarians interested in the contents of this specialized library. Such a guide, it is hoped, will be of great benefit to all persons interested in tapping the resources of this collection.

The use for which this guide is intended has been a determining factor in its construction. It is designed not as a definitive bibliography in the subjects of Thoroughbred racing and breeding but as a guidebook to a collection of turf literature to be found in one library. It is an alphabetical author arrangement of the titles in the library's catalog as of June 1, 1958. Included are more than 900 monograph titles, of which more than 140 are in foreign languages, chiefly French, and more than 100 serial titles. Other types of material listed are selected sales catalogs, private studbooks (as distinguished from those listed as continuations), bound pamphlets, and a limited amount of manuscript material.

The complete file of the sales catalogs of The Breeders' Sales Company, an organization closely linked to Keeneland, is entered in the guide. Individual sales catalogs have not been entered, although the library has many of them and continues to add them to its collection. Through the years there have been dispersal sales of historic interest to Thoroughbred racing and breeding. If a catalog of such a sale is in the library's collection, it is entered under the name of the stud owner. An example of this is the dispersal sale catalog of August Belmont's Nursery Stud issued in 1891. The catalog included Mr. Belmont's breeding theories and has more interest for the researcher than the average sales catalog.

Private studbooks, on the other hand, are included in the guide, being entered by the name of the stud owner, who in most cases was not the compiler. Issued at irregular intervals, these studbooks constitute reference material on a particular farm's breeding pattern.

Aside from the general run of sales catalogs, other materials excluded from the guide are pamphlets, microfilms and recordings, the photographic negative collection, and a very few titles on unrelated subjects which were in the original gift. Materials in the pamphlet file may be located through the pamphlet catalog, which is arranged by subject. Microfilmed books and recordings of Thoroughbred sales and turf events are not numerous in the collection, as yet, and the card catalog of the extensive photographic negative collection must of necessity be its guide.

As has been noted, the guide is arranged alphabetically by author. A title with author unknown is placed in the arrangement alphabetically by first word (article excluded) of the title. Serials are entered in the same manner. Entries include information from the title page of the book, which with few exceptions will include the author, title, edition (if that can be determined), place of publication, publisher, date, number of pages or volumes as the case may be, and illustrations, if any. Clippings, letters, and manuscript notes accompanying the volume which add pertinent information are referred to in a note following the completion of the entry.

The writer has attempted a thorough search in the case of each incomplete entry and has made a reference check as far as possible in the case of all others. It is hoped that those using the guide will report all errors, the present writer trusting, as did a turf writer in 1865, "that those who in their leisure hours may condescend to peruse [it] will make allowances for any errors which may creep in, or delusions under which the author may labour; and as the poet said, remember that

'Everything has faults; nor is't unknown,
That harps and fiddles often lose their tone;
And wayward voices, at their owners' call,
With all their best endeavours only squall:
Dogs blink their covey, flints withhold the spark,
And double barrels (d— them!) miss their mark.'"

Note on the Cook Negatives

THE KEENELAND Association Library, through the cooperation of William Arnold Hanger, in 1954 acquired the invaluable photographic negative collection of the late Charles Christian Cook. Mr. Cook was one of the first photographers in this country to specialize in racing and racetrack scenes, and his work covered the sport from the early 1900's to midcentury. Roughly 15,000 negatives, many of them glass, comprise the collection, which is cataloged as a separate entity and will remain as such.

Although the major portion of the negatives were made at New York tracks (Mr. Cook's first picture in the East was made at Saratoga in July, 1904) and at Hialeah, where he was track photographer through the 1942 season, there are negatives of Louisiana, Arkansas, Chicago, and Maryland tracks, some of which are no longer in operation. Racing, track scenes, the horses, owners, trainers, riders, and those persons otherwise interested in the sport are all represented in the negatives. A fine series of polo pictures, including international matches and women's polo, along with a comprehensive steeplechase group are also to be found in the collection.

Not directly related to racing, but of great value in themselves, are other negatives in the collection representing Mr. Cook's work in France during World War I and his photographs for the Ringling Brothers' Circus. In 1917 he became one of the first aerial photographers. He was in command of an aerographic group in France, and after the signing of the Armistice he was required to remain abroad to photograph the Hindenburg Line from Coblenz to Cologne. This work is filed in Washington, but the Keeneland collection includes more than 100 negatives made during his army service. For fourteen years Mr. Cook photographed extensively for the Ringling Brothers' Circus. Much of this work was done at the circus winter quarters in Bridgeport, Connecticut. It was here that Alf Ringling had constructed a miniature jungle for authentic backgrounds for the wild animals which Mr. Cook "shot." Several hundred negatives depicting all phases of circus life comprise a pictorial account of a form of entertainment rapidly disappearing from the American scene.

A pastime from behind the American scene, so to speak, is depicted in sixteen negatives of cockfighting. This sport was closely associated with racing in England from the earliest days, but in 1840 legislation was passed against it and the Racing Calendar no longer carried the item "Cocking in Great Britain." However, as late as the early 1900's game chickens were advertised for sale in The Thoroughbred Record of Lexington, Kentucky. The fact that such an advertisement appeared in the then old and established racing and breeding magazine would indicate that cockfighting and horseracing in this country continued to be companionable. It seems most significant, therefore, that in this library is to be found a photographic record of a sport so closely associated with horseracing.

I have the eleventh volume being a list of the Matches run in 1761. (Signed) E. D. 7 July 1885” The volume for 1737 contains the following ms note which appears to be in the same hand as that of the note in the 1727 volume: “A complete set of these books should contain 24 years. See Advertisement at the end of Heber’s 5th volume. Heber’s Volumes begin with 1751. If Cheny’s ended with 1750 then they would begin with 1727 so that there would be five volumes wanting prior to these and seven subsequent.”

Ms notes: “The contents have the same pagination and the same paper as the Vade Mecums. I think that the publisher intended to publish a calendar solely dealing with Newmarket and then found it would not pay and never completed it. (signed) R. J. T.” Ms note: “The contents of this volume first appeared in the Sportsmans and Breeders Vade Mecum in serial form, continued throughout the issues of 1789-90-91-92-93-94-95. The account was run under the table of contents as ‘Account of the Races at New Market in the year 1728 to the second spring meeting 1773.’ The complete series has pages numbered to 350. This binding is the same as that used on the Annual ‘Blue boards, paper back.’ (signed) J. L. O’C.” Following in the same hand: “This volume is possibly a ‘one book edition.’ Perhaps the printers own copy.” Typewritten note: “I have tested a number of pages by collating them with Cheny, Heber, etc., and also (for the entries before 1750) with Weatherby’s Abridgment (1829). I find that Pick added a number of annotations, but as to ‘corrections’ I do not find anything which is not in Weatherby’s Abridgment and later in Baily. As to the provenience of the volume, I have made a note of an hypothesis, which is in the book with the card of bibliographic notes by O’Connor and yourself. It seems to me that there may well be in country houses in Yorkshire other such volumes, similarly made up from the files of the Vade Mecums, but probably bound in other styles. In any event, it seems that it is misleading to call the book, as the binder did with your copy, Pick’s Newmarket Calendar of 1770. (signed) F. H. May 26, 1933.” Typewritten note: “It is suggested that the Raymond-O’Connor-Turnbull volume was made up for an individual, not necessarily the publisher, by binding separately an incomplete collection of sheets extracted from the Vade Mecums. As the pagination is continuous it was apparently the publisher’s intention that the subscribers for the Vade Mecums might do this, and others may, therefore, have done so. If so, the book is not necessarily unique. (signed) F. H. May, 1933.”

Subject Index

MANY TITLES in the following subject index could be placed as suitably under any one of several subject headings as the one selected. The author's emphasis in his work rather than the range of subject matter he may have covered has been the determining factor in placing the title. As the guide has been arranged alphabetically by author, the subject index has followed that form also.
