CONTRIBUTORS

Kristina Groover is assistant professor of English at Appalachian State University. She is currently writing on literary constructions of spirituality in the works of American women writers including Sarah Orne Jewett, Zora Neale Hurston, Harriette Arnow, and Toni Morrison.

Jonathan Jeffrey is the Special Collections Librarian at Western Kentucky University’s Kentucky Library. He has a Master’s degree in history from Stephen F. Austin University in Nacogdoches and a Masters of Library Science from the University of Maryland. Jeffrey and his colleague, Donna Parker, have written a monograph on the history of textile production at South Union entitled A Thread of Evidence, published by the Shaker Museum at South Union. Jeffrey has also published several articles and booklets related to architectural history.

Joseph R. Jones has been a member of the department of Spanish and Italian at the University of Kentucky since 1967. He is interested in folk-life as well as early Spanish prose, and he became fascinated with local cockfighting after studying the introduction of the sport in the New World by Spanish immigrants.

Donna Parker, Exhibits Curator at the Kentucky Museum, Western Kentucky University, has co-authored several articles about the South Union Shaker textile industries. Ms. Parker has a Master’s degree in Institutional and Home Environment from Western Kentucky University and has research interests in historic textiles and clothing of the Kentucky/Tennessee region.

Jeffrey Suchanek is coordinator of Modern Political Archives and Assistant Director of the Oral History Program in the Special Collections Department of the University of Kentucky Libraries. He is currently processing the Governor Bert T. Combs Collection of political papers, and is preparing a paper on oral history interviews conducted with women veterans of World War II.
