i grow weary: a poem in at least two movements

Mathias Detamore
University of Kentucky

DOI: https://doi.org/10.13023/disclosure.16.11

Follow this and additional works at: https://uknowledge.uky.edu/disclosure

Part of the English Language and Literature Commons

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial 4.0 License.
Mathias Detamore

i grow weary:

a poem in at least two movements i grow weary of my vanity i grow weary of others' vanity i grow weary of its strategic necessity i grow weary of the competitive culture of narcissistic aesthetes i grow weary how predictability prevails i grow weary of patterns i can't seem to break i grow weary that [can] no one [can] surprise me? i grow weary that [am] i [am] bereft of the ability to be surprised? i grow weary of unavailable men, unavailable bodies i grow weary how they write on me, into my flesh i grow weary of this pain, this pain i grow weary that my body is its canvass i grow weary that it is a surface of surfaces i grow weary that it is on which the breadth of an endemic melancholy takes shape i grow weary of it writing forlorn and tattered histories, the tumultuous placidity of my body railing[s against a current of satisfying]/destruction i grow weary of its destruction won't stop i grow weary that it can't stop i grow weary that it don't stop i grow weary how they taunt me, torture me i grow weary that i must carve this poem into my skin dirty tattoo, uneasy religion i grow weary of what forces compel

i grow weary of the the subtle energies of the universe [to] [that] penetrate me?

i grow weary of the forces i collide with forces i cannot stop

i grow weary of the forces that challenge my sanity oh my

i grow weary

i grow weary