CONTRIBUTORS

Joseph A. Bryant, Jr., served for eight years as Chairman of the Department of English at the University of Kentucky and was named Distinguished Professor of the College of Arts and Sciences for the year 1986-1987. His research focuses on the literature of the English Renaissance and the modern American South. The most recent of his six books is Shakespeare and the Uses of Comedy (1987).

Dennis Carrigan, Assistant Dean of the College of Library and Information Science at the University of Kentucky, has a particular interest in academic libraries. His articles have appeared in the Journal of Academic Librarianship, College & Research Libraries, Library Journal, and Wilson Library Bulletin.

David E. Gamble studied both philosophy and English at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale and teaches English at Wichita State University. His essay on Wendell Berry is one of a series he has been writing on contemporary American nature writers, including, in addition to Berry, Loren Eiseley, Edward Abbey, Wallace Stegner, and Annie Dillard.

Jim Wayne Miller is a poet and essayist and a member of the Department of Modern Language and Intercultural Studies at Western Kentucky University. His most recent publications are His First, Best Country (1987), and Brier, His Book (1988), both published by Gnomon Press, of Frankfort, Kentucky. The 1988 spring issue of The Iron Mountain Review, published at Emory & Henry College, Emory, Virginia, is devoted to Miller’s work.

James Ringo, critic and musician, studied under Darius Milhaud and Olivier Messiaen. He has written for Opera News, The Cabellian, Music Library Association NOTES, Revista Musicale Italiana, and was book and record critic for American Record Guide. He was winner of the 1967-1968 ASCAP-Deems Taylor Award for articles on Music. He is author of a novel, Uncle Theodor, and a play, The Gentle Fascist.
