CONTRIBUTORS

Sue Bridwell Beckham is Professor of English at the University of Wisconsin—Stout, Menomonie, Wisconsin. She has written articles on topics in popular culture, including Southern souvenirs and Elvis Presley paraphernalia. She has recently completed a book-length study, A Gentle Reconstruction: Depression Post Office Murals and Southern Culture, to be issued by Louisiana State University Press in 1988.

David B. Dearinger is currently a doctoral candidate in art history at the Graduate Center of the City University of New York. He is co-author of the forthcoming catalogue of the permanent collection of American paintings and sculpture at the National Academy of Design and is researching his dissertation on the patronage of American neo-classic sculpture. He teaches at Hunter College in New York.

Harriet W. Fowler is Curator of the University of Kentucky Art Museum. She is the author of New Deal Art: WPA Works at the University of Kentucky, an exhibition catalogue published in 1985. She is currently at work on a study of the Decatur, Illinois Post Office murals, a 1930s federal art commission.
