6-1-1990

Robert A. Aken
University of Kentucky, robaken@uky.edu

Click here to let us know how access to this document benefits you.

Follow this and additional works at: https://uknowledge.uky.edu/libraries_facpub
Part of the Collection Development and Management Commons, and the Urology Commons

Repository Citation
https://uknowledge.uky.edu/libraries_facpub/175

This Review is brought to you for free and open access by the University of Kentucky Libraries at UKnowledge. It has been accepted for inclusion in Library Faculty and Staff Publications by an authorized administrator of UKnowledge. For more information, please contact UKnowledge@lsv.uky.edu.

Notes/Citation Information
Published in Library Journal, v. 115, issue 10, p. 162.

© 1990 Library Journal. All rights reserved.

The copyright holder has granted the permission for posting the article here.

This review is available at UKnowledge: https://uknowledge.uky.edu/libraries_facpub/175

With the help of writer Rothstein, urology professor Goldstein has produced this work focusing on male impotence (the title may mislead) with an emphasis on the interacting effects of psychological and physiological problems. The work is told from the physician’s perspective, with illustrative anecdotes and examples drawn from cases. While certainly not as accessible as Eileen and Bruce MacKenzie’s It’s Not All in Your Head (LJ 4/15/88), this nonetheless has the same self-help approach as Steven Mnuchin’s Love Again, Live Again (Prentice Hall, 1988). Except for the brief section on the future, this work has nothing new to add to the many current works on the topic. If, however, your collection lacks a current work on impotence, this title would be a good addition.—Robert Aken, Univ. of Kentucky Libs., Lexington