Haloe Girl

Christina Godsey
DOI: https://doi.org/10.13023/DISCLOSURE.07.19

Follow this and additional works at: https://uknowledge.uky.edu/disclosure

Part of the Photography Commons

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial 4.0 License.

Recommended Citation
DOI: https://doi.org/10.13023/DISCLOSURE.07.19
Available at: https://uknowledge.uky.edu/disclosure/vol7/iss1/19

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Social Theory at UKnowledge. It has been accepted for inclusion in disclosure: A Journal of Social Theory by an authorized editor of UKnowledge. For more information, please contact UKnowledge@lsv.uky.edu.
Right and overleaf. Christina Godsey, Hailie Girl, undated.
Color prints.
Copyright belongs to artist.
Phil Jenks

Tattoo
poem

a white man
in a white room
in a white shirt
whose shirts feel
worse in the north side
his “I have the right to condemn you because I am right and you are wrong”
distended lecture laughter,
the funny (white) man.

but am i outside of him?
would that i puncture my skin w/the so-called “tribal”
or white lady verse figure?
white man says i’d ask you if you had a productive day yesterday
but since i Know you had no specific things to work on, to ask would do know good.”

his/my white certainty
can be found “logistically how to arrange it”
“i or my wife”
or “salary schedules” “division of management” “raw data” white white white anytime whites dont
say white they mean white.

Phil Jenks is a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Kentucky in political science.
© 1998 disclosure, No. 7, Committee on Social Theory, University of Kentucky, Lexington, KY, p. 197.