CONTRIBUTORS' NOTES

R. L. Barth, poet in residence in the rural libraries of Kentucky, recently published poems in The Southern Review, Translation, and The Compass and an essay on J. V. Cunningham in The Southern Review. He is currently writing a group of poems on the Vietnam War.

Warren Chappell, artist in residence at the University of Virginia, designed the typefaces Lydian and Trajanus and has illustrated several hundred books. As an author he is best known for A Short History of the Printed Word (Knopf, 1970). He received the Goudy Award of the Rochester Institute of Technology in 1970.

Mary Rae Chemotti, who lives in Cedarburg, Wisconsin, holds a master's degree in art history from the University of Kentucky.

John Spalding Gatton, a doctoral candidate in English at the University of Kentucky, has published articles on Harriet Martineau, on Oscar Wilde, and on nineteenth-century American theatre. His "Delacroix's Reading of Byron's Marino Faliero" will appear in a forthcoming issue of the Byron Journal.

George Ella Lyon, a native of Harlan, Kentucky, is primarily a poet. Her work has appeared in such journals as The Prairie Schooner, Modern Poetry Studies, and The California Quarterly, and she has just completed a book of poems called Out of the Common Dark. She is executive director of the Appalachian Poetry Project and teaches part-time at Centre College.

Jane Vance, an associate professor in the University of Kentucky Honors Program, was a coordinator of the 1980 Women Writers Conference at the university. Her poems have appeared in several anthologies and in a number of periodicals, including The Hollins Critic, Southern Poetry Review, and Southern Humanities Review.
