CONTRIBUTORS' NOTES

Raymond F. Betts is professor of history and director of the Honors Program at the University of Kentucky. He is the author of a number of books on European imperialism, including The False Dawn: European Imperialism in the Nineteenth Century (University of Minnesota Press, 1975) and Tricouleur: The French Overseas Empire (Gordon and Cremonesi, 1978), and is currently preparing a study of twentieth century colonial empires.

David F. Burg is president of Communication Services Corporation and a lecturer at Transylvania University. He has written Chicago's White City of 1893 (University Press of Kentucky, 1976) and numerous articles in the area of American studies, and is editing John Jacob Niles's autobiography.

Robin Myers is the author of many publications in the field of bibliography and the book trade, including British Book Design Since the War (Galley Club, 1967) and A Dictionary of Literature in the English Language from 1940 to 1970 (Pergamon Press, 1978). She served as Librarian and Head of Book Information at the National Book League in London, and currently teaches English literature and is archivist at the North London Collegiate School. A Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries, she was among the first six women Liverymen "admitted to the cloathing" of the Stationers' Company, for which she is Honorary Archivist.

Allen Shepherd, professor of English at the University of Vermont, has published articles on Robert Penn Warren in such journals as Critique, The Mississippi Quarterly, and The Southern Literary Journal. His poetry and fiction have appeared in the Kansas Quarterly and The New Yorker.
